Landon Wins In Two States; First Ballot Choice Likely

D. C. Contest Due For Hearing Today

Party Deficit Converted to $180,000 Balance, Committee Told.

By Franklyn Waltman.
A Staff Correspondent.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 3.—Prospects that Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas may receive the Republican Presidential nomination on the first ballot at the Republican convention here next week were measurably enhanced by the action of the Indiana State Republican Convention today indorsing him and by the announcement that Texas would give the Kansan its 25 votes.

Even the bitter-enders among the Landon opponents are beginning to concede that "it is all over," as one puts it. Not only has Gov. Landon built up a tremendous following within his party throughout the country, but he is getting all the breaks now—when every action has psychological influence—and the plans of his foes are misfiring badly.

Of course, it is too early to assert that Gov. Landon will be nominated on the first ballot. John Hamilton, his campaign manager, refused to make any such claim tonight, contenting himself with the assertion that "we will have better than 300 votes on the first ballot." He declined to state how many more, but as things now look, if the Kansan does not attain a majority on the first ballot he will not be far from it.

Meanwhile, the Republican National Committee today commenced hearing contests, but made slow progress. It voted to seat a "lily white" delegation from Florida in preference to an all-colored delegation. The District of Columbia contest probably will be heard late tomorrow.

In view of the action of the Indiana State convention today in instructing the State's four delegates at large to vote for Gov. Landon, and generally indorsing his candidacy, the Landon managers are counting on at least 24 of Indiana's 28 votes—and they hope that the other four will go along.

Called Hoover Setback.

Word reached here that the only way former Senator James E. Watson could assure his selection as a delegate at large from Indiana to the national convention was to hang on to the Landon kite. The Indiana result also was regarded as a setback for former President Herbert Hoover because his friends had sought an uninstructed delegation there.

Texas' 25 delegates plumped into the Landon bandwagon today when the State's national committeeman, R. B. Creager, announced that sentiment in Texas was strong for Landon and that the delegation would give expression to it by supporting the Kansan. His statement came 24 hours after the last remnant of the "Old Guard" began to crumble. Connecticut's national committeeman, J. Henry Roraback, last night announced its State delegation, with 19 votes, would favor Gov. Landon on the first ballot.

At the same time Roraback launched a boom for Representative James W. Wadsworth, of New York, for the Vice Presidential nomination, which immediately was taken up by other Easterners. But it is not at all certain that Wadsworth will be the choice for second place on the Republican ticket.

Most of the speculation, indeed, has shifted from the Presidential nomination to that for the Vice Presidency—since in most quarters Gov. Landon's nomination is conceded. There was widespread talk about Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, for second place on the ticket, while a new name came to the surface in that of Republican National Committee Chairman Henry P. Fletcher.

Held Entitled to Honor.

Fletcher, a Pennsylvanian and an attractive figure with an outstanding diplomatic career behind him, was suggested as an Easterner who might aid the national ticket and as one who deserved some recog-

Virginian Is Killed In Auto-Car Crash

C. L. Allison, 40, of Warrenton, Va., died in Georgetown Hospital last night of injuries received yesterday afternoon when his automobile smashed into the side of a car on the Arlington-Fairfax Electrical line at Dunn Loring, Va.

The accident occurred about 4 p. m. The force of the impact knocked Allison out of the car and he plummeted through the air for 30 feet. The automobile bounced from the trolley and struck a telephone pole, splitting it.

Postmaster Charles Elgin, of Dunn Loring, first to arrive at the scene, said he thought the man drove into the side of the car.

Allison was taken to Georgetown Hospital. He never regained consciousness and died about 10 p. m.

He is survived by his wife and a 4-year-old child.

White Opposes Coalition Ticket In G. O. P. Race

Kansan Says Party Must Be Reborn for New Era or Disappear.

Emporia, Kans., June 3 (AP).—William Allen White, who is expected to be one of the key figures in the Republican convention, dismissed discussion of placing a Democrat on the party's Presidential ticket with the comment "Nix on coalition" as he left tonight for Cleveland.

Mr. White, a delegate at large from Kansas and an intimate of Gov. Alf M. Landon, said in an interview:

"In order to catch Liberty League Democrats, who are obviously dissatisfied with Roosevelt, a coalition ticket would have to be tailed up with a conservative, hard-shelled Democrat. To catch liberal-minded progressive Republicans and Independents who are dissatisfied with the 'bad fist' President Roosevelt has made of the ideals, which all good Americans cherish, the head of a coalition ticket would have to be a liberal, progressive Republican.

Would Have No Chance.

"A fat chance a ticket would have if it were headed by a Progressive Republican like Landon or Vandenberg and flying leaden-tail-like with Gov. Davey of Ohio or former Gov. Ely or former Gov. Al Smith. * * *"

The Emporia editor, who is likely to sit on the platform-drafting committee at Cleveland, continued:

"To float such a ticket the platform would have to be a complete straddle, and to paddle this platform through the election rapids, with two kinds of anti-Rooseveltians on it—would take a cross-eyed four-armed oarsman with eyes in the back of his neck. Coalition would be a catastrophe."

"The Republican Party is either going to be reborn as a new constructive party to function in the new era that war and depression have made, or it is going to blow up from the inside and disappear.

Must Get Independent.

"This election cannot be won without getting the votes of independent, forward-looking Republicans who voted for Roosevelt four years ago and were fooled. He has failed to reduce unemployment. He has made relief a partisan program.

"His independent supporters," concluded Mr. White, "have come to their senses. They want to vote the Republican ticket but they don't want to be caught dead voting for a hybrid or mongrel—a cross between Mercury winging ahead and Lot's wife looking back."

Country Women Place Wreath On Martha Washington Grave

Delegates From 16 Countries Gather at Mount Vernon to Pay Tribute to Achivements of Wife of Nation's First President.

For the first time in history an organization on a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon yesterday placed a wreath at the tomb of Martha Washington, ignoring the grave of her illustrious husband, usually the recipient of such honors.

The Associated Country Women of the World went to the historic estate along the Potomac yesterday afternoon not to honor Washington, the Father of His Country, but Washington's wife, one of the first homemakers in the United States.

As Mrs. A. E. Brigden, of Marathon, N. Y., honorary president of the New York State Federation of Home Bureaus, placed the wreath she explained that "homage is thus paid to every homemaker, whether in palace, cottage, or tent, who is striving to create a place called home—a place to rest, a place to dream, a place to grow—where the truest satisfactions of life may be found."

Surrounding Mrs. Brigden as she

Expanded Civil Service Sought In Senate Bill

La Follette, O'Mahoney Are Authors of Measure to Establish Board.

By James D. Secrest.

A far-reaching bill aimed at ridding the Government service of both personal and political favoritism was introduced in the Senate late yesterday by Senators La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming.

Embodying the provisions of the O'Mahoney-Mead bill to place all postmasters under civil service, the new bill provides for the extension of the civil service laws to all Government agencies, save those definitely emergency in character, sets up a system of co-operation between the Federal and city and State governments, and establishes a Federal Personnel Council.

The latter council is authorized by the bill to provide for the State and city co-operation system and to co-ordinate the merit system in all Government agencies.

"That Government officials who have the power to direct and shape the program of the Government should be free from political control cannot be doubted by those who believe that the people should dominate the Government," a joint statement issued by La Follette and O'Mahoney said.

"All other employes, however, should have an equal opportunity to enter the service of the Government and to win promotion upon

Millions Bilked In Real Estate, SEC Declares

Firms Exploiting Investors Within Law, Douglas Reports to Congress.

By Sidney Olson.

How millions of investors who "trustfully" put their money into real estate bonds have been consistently bilked on a colossal scale, with no recourse under the law, was described yesterday by William O. Douglas, Securities and Exchange Commission member.

Douglas yesterday sent to Congress a 297-page report of the SEC's investigation into so-called "protective" committees for holders of defaulted real estate bonds, the second section of a study of the protective and reorganization committees begun in 1934.

The aggressive, sandy-haired young commissioner, describing the debacle which put in distress some $3,600,000,000 of real estate bonds as "one of the greatest tragedies in the history of finance in our country," said the SEC will recommend, on completion of the full report, legislation to "prevent the old crowd from again exploiting the Nation's investors."

In 15 slashing points, the report tore into the entire structure of the real estate bond underwriting business, with particular reference to the activities of protective committees to operate "in behalf" of holders of defaulted bonds.

Douglas specifically warned that "the old crowd" is reaching a monopoly over city real estate by squeezing investors.

He explained that their control over city property comes from the fact that houses which issued the defaulted bonds have now "jockeyed" themselves into posts as "trustees," charged with operating the very properties on which the bonds were sold.

The report is based on testimony

Parker, Sr., Seized In Wendel Case

Mount Holly, N. J., June 3 (AP).—Ellis Parker, sr., Burlington County detective, was arrested tonight on an indictment charging kidnaping and assault in connection with the abduction and alleged torture of Paul H. Wendel, disbarred Trenton attorney. Wendel confessed, then repudiated, participation in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

Parker was named in a superceding indictment handed up by the Kings County grand jury in Brooklyn today. Also indicted were his son, Ellis, jr., now a fugitive from justice; Murray Bleefield, Harry Weiss and Martin Schlossman, all of whom previously were indicted.

It was explained the superceding indictment became necessary following the death of Harry Bleefeld, also originally indicted. Bleefeld died about two weeks ago.

Roundup of 200 Clairvoyants Begun Here in Tax Case; 7 Held

A roundup of nearly 200 fortune tellers as conspirators in a scheme for wholesale tax avoidance was launched by Washington police last night following the arrest in New York of the "bishop" of the Washington Institute Church of Christ.

Seven Washington clairvoyants were taken into custody yesterday. Four of them were arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on charges of conspiring to avoid payment of the $250 license fee charged practitioners of clairvoyance by the District government. Two more were held on similar charges.

Warrants for the arrest of ten others have been issued, and these will be put in jail as soon as they can be located, police investigators said. Dozens more are expected to be rounded up within the next few days in a drive to wipe out a ring of Washington fortune tellers which, authorities charge, has been operating tax free in the District under the guise of a religious institution.

Members of the ring, police charge, belonged to the Washington Institute Church of Christ, a Spiritualist church. For the privilege of membership they paid $1, and for the additional advantage of a diploma certifying them to be holders of a "doctor of divinity" degree the charge was $50, according to police.

There are eight licensed fortune tellers in the District. Under the District law, religious groups and members of Spiritualist churches are exempt from payment of the license fee. Police charge members of the church claimed exemption under the law.

"Doctor of divinity" diplomas were issued to provide fortune-telling members of the church with documentary evidence of their supernatural powers, police said.

In New York, United States marshals arrested Ada V. Carver, 45, as the "bishop." She was charged with avoidance of taxes.

Last night, she was preparing to return to Washington in custody of marshals to answer her accusers.

She said her chauffeur would drive her to the Capital City. Last

Taxes Strike Senate Snag, Delay Holiday

White House Insistence on Corporate Levy Rise Holds Up Approval.

Early Session Ordered Today as Last-Minute Tilt Spoils Vote.

By Robert C. Albright.

In an atmosphere of tenseness that forced cancellation of plans for night passage of the $829,000,000 tax bill and dimmed adjournment hopes, the Senate yesterday joined the issues of drastic versus moderate corporate taxation. It recessed without making a decision.

A 10 a. m. session of the Senate was ordered today by Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, after the Administration's plan for high undivided profits levies, renewed at the last minute, frayed Senate tempers and spoiled chances of night session passage of the measure.

The tussle between Senate Administration forces and the so-called conservative majority of the Senate Finance Committee developed after virtually every other major tax item in the 293-page bill had been approved at a hectic pace. Passage of the bill appeared only a matter of hours, but whether Congress will finally adjourn or merely recess over the period of the Republican National Convention was still a moot question.

Passage Forecast Today.

Robinson predicted passage of the tax bill today and said House and Senate conferees "should not take more than two or three days to get together." He hinted that conferees will meet Sunday, and even Monday if necessary in an effort to complete work of the Seventy-fourth Congress before June 9.

The Senate literally raced through non-controversial items after a near-filibuster by Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, against a tariff on inedible whale oils, collapsed with the 12-to-59 defeat of an amendment by the New Yorker.

Word of an agreement to vote finally on the bill last night was passed around. Senators called off evening engagements and ordered early suppers from the Senate restaurant.

Then Senator Hugo Black (Democrat), of Alabama, working jointly with Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr. (Progressive), Wisconsin, laid the Administration issue of high graduated taxes on undivided corporate profits before the chamber, and the speeding legislative machinery suddenly was jammed.

The issue narrowed at once into a question of whether the Senate would accept the committee recommendations for a 15½ to 18 per cent corporation income tax and an additional 7 per cent levy on undivided profits, or the far more drastic Administration plan put forward by Black and La Follette.

The debate moved into delicate territory as Senator Walter F. George (Democrat), of Georgia, and Senator Josiah Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, tangled verbally with Black, whose statements they challenged.

George once rose on a point of personal privilege when the Alabaman claimed "committee bill" was a misnomer for the measure reported by the Finance Committee, and that it actually was not a majority report. George reminded Black that the committee voted 18 to 1 for the corporate tax principles it embodies.

Later Bailey challenged a statement by the Alabaman that the "issue" was whether or not tax avoidance was to be stopped, and the committee bill was not designed to that end. When Bailey said in effect that this was a reflection on the Finance Committee membership, Black denied he intended any such implication. The atmosphere was strained when Robinson, sizing up the trend, agreed to a recess.

Items Approved Rapidly.

Before the Senate reached the corporate taxation, heart of the revenue measure, Senators, in a dazzling burst of speed, approved a 1 per cent increase in surtaxes on incomes between $6,000 and $50,000, with a host of relatively minor items, as recommended by the committee.

Ill with a sinus infection, Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, committee chairman, was not on the floor. Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, and Senator George, in frequent conference with committee experts, managed the bill in his absence.

George presented the committ-

Ex-Mayor May Run Against Zioncheck

Representative Marion A. Zioncheck remained in a psychopathic ward at Gallniger Hospital last night, while from his home district in Seattle came word of a new possible opponent to run against him in the Washington State elections this autumn.

The potential challenge to Zioncheck's laurels, according to the Associated Press, is former Mayor Charles L. Smith, originator of the "Goofy Derby," the "Iceman's Kiss" and the "Put Out the Cat" contests.

His friends have mentioned him as a possible Republican candidate, Smith said. He was counted in with three other Republicans and five Democratic possibilities.

Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger, said, however, the Puget Sound lawmaker, who has been a patient since his arrest Monday, would be examined later by Dr. William A. White and Dr. D. Percy Hickling, noted psychiatrists.

350,000 Out; Strike Grows Over France

Workers Want 40-Hour Week, More Pay and Union Recognition.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 3.—A raging strike fever stayed the hands of 350,000 French workers tonight and alarmed a changing government with the menace of Paris food, water and gas shortages.

Official France, swapping cabinet horses in the middle of a turbulent labor stream, saw more than 300 factories idle, many of them in the hands of "folded arm" workers.

Apparently intent upon seizing immediate gain from the advent tomorrow of Leon Blum's leftist government, the strikers gained adherent's hourly, from police patrol drivers to biscuit-making mothers.

General Strike Threatens.

The movement fast was gaining the appearance of a general strike. Chamber of Deputies lobbies heard rumors that even the railroad workers and postmen would go out tomorrow.

From Roger Salengro, the man who will be the Socialist minister of interior in the new Blum cabinet, came a demand that Communists call off the strikes and order their adherents out of the plants.

"This agitation is not admissible," he declared. "The People's Front must not be in a state of anarchy. The People's Front stands for order."

He referred to the popular front of Communists, Socialists and Radical-Socialists which won the balance of power in the last Chamber of Deputies elections.

Tonight, throughout the "red belt" of factory suburbs that rings Paris, police guarded factories where more than 100,000 strikers slept on their work benches—men, women and children.

Gendarmes watched idle plants in the provinces, particularly in the northern industrial centers.

Bakers, plumbers and even waiters in the big cafes of Paris threatened to join the strikes, which in their tenth day affected more than a dozen industries, from metal workers to night club entertainers.

A strike of refrigerating and ice making plants threatened the milk supply and a 10,000,000-franc ($680,000) meat stock on hand in packing houses. Pumping station workmen said they might quit.

In 30 suburbs, a gas shortage was threatened by a strike at the Nanterre plant.

In the north eight textile plants at Lille and suburbs were newly occupied by idle workers.

News Carriers May Quit.

The French faced a dearth of newspapers, for employes of the company holding a virtual monopoly of their distribution debated a walkout. Already, the paper industry was involved in the strikes.

Police wagon drivers stepped down from their wheels and authorities pressed taxis into service to transport prisoners. In one biscuit factory, mothers brought two dozen babies to work—but did no work.

Paris department store and warehouse workers were quitting late today. In motion picture studios, furniture plants and perfume factories there was the same situation.

One film plant, where American studios store their Hollywood movies, was occupied by workmen who refused to allow the films to be taken out for delivery to theaters.

Outside of Paris, the chief strike centers were Lille, Rouen, Nantes, Touloise, Lyon and Marseille. Branches of American firms occupied by idle workers included the Richard Hudnut perfumery plant, the Matford Automobile Co., affiliated with Ford, and the Crane plumbing fixture concern.

A munitions factory at Valenciennes and a shipyard at Marseilles were affected.

Socialists and Communists were hailing a "workers' victory" each time a local strike was settled. They blamed the movement on long discontent with the deflationary policies of previous governments, particularly the salary cuts effected through decree laws.

Communists, declaring the strikes "justified," refused to make any promises. They charged the French worker's buying power had been cut 30 per cent in the last four years.

In every case the workers wanted

Speaker Byrns Dies Suddenly At Hotel Suite

Dies Unexpectedly

SPEAKER BYRNS.

Native Tennessean In House 28 Years

Was Under Heavy Strain With Chamber Speeding to Adjourn.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of the House of Representatives, died of a cerebral hemorrhage in his suite at the Mayflower Hotel early this morning. He was 66 years old and was elected to Congress from Tennessee.

With him at his bedside when death came at 12:15 a. m. were his wife, the former Julia Woodard, and two brothers, John Byrns, of Cincinnati, and M. J. Byrns, of this city.

The veteran legislator had been a member of the House since 1908. He became presiding officer upon the death of Speaker Rainey.

Taken Ill at Capitol.

The Speaker became ill at the Capitol late yesterday, and was taken to his home at 5:30 p. m.

Dr. George Calver, the Capitol physician, was summoned immediately. The Speaker suffered another stroke at 11 p. m. and lapsed into unconsciousness.

Dr. Calver issued the following bulletin immediately after the Speaker died:

"Speaker Byrns suffered a heart attack at 5:30 p. m., Wednesday afternoon.

"At 11 p. m., he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and at 12:15 a. m., he died."

The White House was informed immediately of the Speaker's death.

Rapidly the news was relayed to officials throughout the Capital.

Dr. Calver said four physicians were in conference when Byrns died.

The Speaker had worked as usual at his desk and in the House throughout most of the day. His health apparently was excellent yesterday morning.

Under Severe Strain.

Although death had been unexpected, the Speaker had been under a severe strain in recent weeks as the second session of the Seventy-fourth Congress was speeded up in an effort to bring it to a close before the political conventions.

Friends believed the tax upon the Speaker's vitality may have hastened the end and been partially responsible for his death.

Precedent Sought.

Parliamentarians early today were seeking a precedent and attempting to work out a course for the House in the remaining few days of this session.

It was pointed out that the House would be required to elect at least a Speaker pro-tem in order to sign bills passed between now and the end of the session. No one not elected by the membership is authorized to sign measures.

Representative Bankhead, of Alabama, was mention as a likely choice for the protem- position since he is majority floor leader. It was considered likely House Democrats would be called to a caucus this morning. South Trimble, Clerk of the House, has authority to call the House to order but cannot sign bills.

Native of Tennessee.

Power as Speaker of the House of Representatives came to Speaker Byrns when the Seventy-fourth Congress convened January 3, 1935. Back of him was a full quarter century as a member of the House from the "Hermitage District" of Tennessee, a tenure which saw him go through a dozen successful political campaigns and which brought him chairmanship of the House Appropriations Committee, leadership of the Democratic majority and head

South Chinese Open Civil War, Japan Asserts

Cantonese Have Invaded North, Tokyo Says Over Nanking's Denial.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Wednesday), June 4.—A huge Canton army has struck swiftly at cities affiliated with the Nanking Nationalist government, launching civil war, Japanese sources reported today.

A force of 250,000 men, these quarters said, "moving with lightning rapidity, entered Hunan Province (of the Nanking government) without opposition, the Hunanese apparently having withdrawn."

The Nanking government, the reports continued, has massed 13 divisions and a squadron of 20 bombing planes to hurl back the attack. Southern cities were preparing defenses against expected air raids, it was said.

War Demanded.

The developments followed by less than 24 hours a Canton, or South China, government manifesto demanding that the National government go to war immediately with Japan. Canton promised Nanking its full support in a war against "aggression."

There were conflicting reports in other quarters, but it was known troops in the southwest were on the march.

"The Japanese reports about the situation in the southwest are not confirmed in any quarters here," said a Nanking spokesman.

Provincial authorities of Kwangtung (which, with Kwangsi Province, makes up the Canton government) were quoted as saying two divisions of the Kwangtung southern army crossed the border of southern Hunan Province and occupied Ichang. The soldiers are marching on Chinchow from Ichang, it was said.

Troops Moving.

A neutral Hongkong source reported troops were moving, but said their objectives were obscure.

Japanese dispatches said the seventh army of Kwangsi Province (including remnants of the famous nineteenth route army which defended Shanghai against the Japanese in 1932) captured Lingling, a walled town 15 miles inside Hunan Province.

Japanese quarters said the Canton government decided to declare war on Nanking because it believed the latter was preparing for a forcible union of the two governments.

Chinese, however, asserted Japan was spreading these reports to draw attention from smuggling in north China and the reinforcement of Japanese garrisons there.

Another mystifying element was added when foreign and Chinese sources here received from Canton what was represented to be a statement by the Kwangtung commissioner for foreign affairs branding Japanese reports of Canton launching a war as "absolutely false."

4 Prostrated, Sailor Rescued; Mercury at 11-Year High of 96

Thundershowers late yesterday broke the season's worst heat wave but not before the highest temperature for June 3 since 1925 had been recorded at the Weather Bureau.

Fair and cooler is the forecast for today.

Fifty minutes after the year's highest mercury reading—96 degrees—the weather man's thermometer read 73, the 23-degree drop being brought about by rain which fell with varying intensity in different parts of the Capital.

Four heat prostrations were reported.

The gale upon which the showers were carried caused slight property damage and nearly cost the life of Myron Foster, an airplane dispatcher at Washington Airport. The 16-foot catboat he was sailing in Washington Channel capsized at the first gust and he was hurled into the water. Policemen E. K. Shelton and W. F. Davis, of Harbor Precinct, witnessed the accident and put out in a boat to rescue Foster. He was uninjured.

The day's heat victims were John Monroe, 37, of 1509 Fifth street northwest; Herbert Van Gender, 28, of 452 Randolph street northwest; Richard Novell, 32, of 4410 Hayes street northeast, and Rufus Prince, 47, of 1[illegible]6 D street northwest.

The temperature mounted steadily from 72 at 5 a. m., and reached its peak just before the storm, at 4:10 p. m. The reading of 96 was 3 degrees [illegible] the all-time high for June [illegible]ded 11 years ago.

A live [illegible] was leveled by the wind and rain in the 6800 block Chevy Chase parkway. Police stood guard while workmen made repairs.

Landon Choice Likely on First Cleveland Vote

Indiana, Texas Indorse Kansan, Who Denies Commitments.

The chairman created a deep impression when he told the National Committee at its first meeting today that whereas the committee owed $206,000 when he assumed the chairmanship, it is now out of debt and had on hand an uncommitted balance of approximately $180,000. In addition, he pointed out that the committee's organization was now "more complete and more efficient than at any other comparable time."

George F. Getz, the committee treasurer, subsequently revealed that the committee had a cash balance on May 31 of $219,881, having collected since October 19, 1933, the sum of $1,529,085. These announcements brought applause from the committee.

Some talk also persists about the party selecting an anti-New Deal Democrat as Vice President. Creager, of Texas, is promoting that idea, but most of the Republican leaders seemed unimpressed. Hamilton, the Landon manager, insisted that no thought had been given to Vice Presidential candidates. He said his group had no candidates to offer and that nobody has been authorized to make any bargains or dickers along that line in behalf of Gov. Landon.

Denies Deals, Pledges.

At Kansas City, in fact, Gov. Landon tonight asked leaders of the Kansas delegation to make public the following statement:

"I've made no deals and no pledges. Nor will my friends in Cleveland make deals or pledges for me."

The Governor's statement was made public by Will T. Beck, Kansas Republican chairman, who led a contingent of Landon-pledged delegates which entrained at Kansas City. Beck received the statement from the Governor in Topeka at the Landon headquarters here.

Asked specifically if he believed the convention should make any bids for Democratic support for the Republican ticket, Hamilton replied:

"I think Mr. Roosevelt already has done that for us. It is up to the Democrats to decide whether they want to stick with him. If their conscience is not too elastic, they will come with us."

Meanwhile word went around that Senator William E. Borah's campaign manager, Carl Bachmann, planned to demand that the Lion of Idaho, as well as other Presidential candidates be given an opportunity to address the convention. An invitation formally was presented by the convention arrangements committee yesterday to former President Hoover. He responded today that he would be pleased to address the convention next Wednesday, the second day of its session.

Suggestions Many.

The anti-Landon spokesmen threw out several suggestions regarding the Hoover speech—but not for quotation. One was that the former President would draw a picture of the requirements for a Presidential nominee in such a way that he would turn the delegates away from Gov. Landon and toward Col. Frank Knox. Another suggestion was that the former President would make a supreme effort to win the nomination for himself.

But these predictions were generally discounted. Nevertheless Bachmann contended that since Hoover had been invited to address the convention, a similar invitation should be sent to all Presidential candidates. It was reported that he was motivated by the thought not only that Senator Borah is an impressive speaker and thus would enhance his standing before the convention but that Gov. Landon is a comparatively poor speaker and thus would disappoint the delegates.

It is unlikely, however, that Senator Borah or any of the other active candidates will be invited to address the convention. Hamilton indicated the opposition of the Landon camp to the idea when at his press conference he declared that "I don't think the convention has time to hear all the Presidential candidates—almost 20 of them." It was his contention that if any were invited to speak, then every Republican who has been suggested for the Presidential nomination should be asked.

National committeemen insist that Hoover was not asked as an active candidate, but as the only living former President and as the titular leader of the party. They pointed out that some days ago he emphatically denied he was a candidate for renomination.

Only Way Open.

If Senator Borah is not invited by the convention to address it, there is no other way for him to get to the platform. Only delegates and their alternates are permitted on the convention floor, and he is neither. Of course, it will take unanimous consent to give Hoover the privilege of speaking, but it is not thought anyone will object Bachmann made it clear he would not. On the other hand, there is certain to be objections if a motion is made to let Senator Borah address the convention.

The only formality of the day was the meeting of the Republican National Committee, which gathered chiefly for the purpose of hearing contests. Before taking up the contests, however, the committee adopted memorials regarding deceased members and took other routine action. It was during this part of the program that Fletcher reported on the work he had done.

Finally the chairman called up the contests, inquiring if the Florida contestants were ready to be heard.

"Yas, sah, your honor," came a Negro voice from the back of the hall.

The arguments developed that the contest was between a colored and a "lily white" delegation from the State. J. Leonard Lewis, a member of the Negro delegation and its spokesman, contended the white Republicans, led by the Florida national committeeman, John F. Harris, had sought to keep Negroes out of the party conventions at which delegates to the national convention were selected and that, when they managed to get in, they were ejected, even though there were five times as many colored as white Republicans in the State.

Call Them Neophytes.

He referred throughout an impassionate discourse to the white group as "made-over Democrats—kicked out of the Democratic Party," and "lily white Republicans" and as "neophyte Republicans." He said meetings were called by the white Republicans at hotels where Negroes were not permitted, "unless they wore brass buttons and white coats." He insisted that the white Republican group had no love for the party, but was interested only in patronage and in money coming into their pockets."

Harris, speaking for the white group, denied that any effort was made to prevent the Negroes from attending the meetings at which the national delegation was selected. He held that this group's selection had been regular in every way and in conformity with Florida law.

The committee, meeting later in executive session, agreed with him and adopted a resolution to seat the "lily white" delegation. The Negro group announced they would take their fight to the credentials committee next week.

The national committee passed on only one other contest. This was from the Eighth Illinois District and involved the question whether the district should have one or two votes in the convention. The allocation of one vote to it was approved by the committee.

Hearings Resume Today.

Meanwhile contests in delegations from Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alaska and the District of Columbia remained to be heard. The committee will continue hearings tomorrow.

The two contesting delegations from the District of Columbia sat through the arguments in the Florida case this afternoon. Edward F. Colladay, national committeeman and leader of one faction, sat with the committee, while his delegates occupied vacant press chairs at one side of the hall. Leo Rover, former district attorney and leader of the opposing faction, sat with his group in the rear of the hall. This contest will be the last to be heard.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel, as national committeewoman from the District of Columbia, attended the meeting with Colladay. The Virginia committeeman and woman, Joseph L. Crupper and Mrs. Murray Boocock, also were present, as was Mrs. Calvin Gabriel, the committeewoman from Maryland. Ovington E. Weller, committeeman from Maryland, however, was absent and was not represented by a proxy.

Galen L. Tait, former Maryland Republican chairman, however, was here, busily talking in hotel corridors. He is understood to be friendly to Landon's candidacy. What Maryland will do after voting for Gov. Harry W. Nice on the first ballot, is not definitely known, but it is thought the delegation will switch to Landon.

Taft to Free Votes.

Cincinnati, June 3 (AP).—Robert A. Taft gave free rein today to the 47 Ohio delegates pledged to vote for his nomination as the Republican candidate for President at the Cleveland convention.

He selected Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, and an advocate of conservative-liberal alignment of political parties, to place his name in nomination.

The elder son of the former President and late Chief Justice William Howard Taft, will leave for Cleveland Saturday to confer with Ed D. Schorr, State Republican chairman, and other party leaders on the course to be followed by the "favorite son" delegation elected at the May 12 primary.

Taft disclosed that tentative plans call for the 47 votes controlled by that delegation to be cast together for his nomination for several ballots. It will then be up to each delegate, Taft said, to "determine for himself when he has finished his obligation to me."

Hoosiers Indorse Landon.

Indianapolis, June 3 (AP).—The Indiana State Republican convention today nominated candidates for State offices and by a voice vote favored the nomination at Cleveland of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas for President.

The resolution favoring Gov. Landon's candidacy, although not binding on the State's 24 district delegates, instructed the four delegates at large "to vote and work" for Landon "so long as he should have a chance for nomination." With the six district delegates previously instructed for him by district caucuses the Kansas Governor will have at least 10 of Indiana's 28 votes on the first ballot.

Former Senator James E. Watson, George A. Bail, national committeeman; Don B. Irwin, retiring State chairman, and Ralph F. Gates, a member of the Hoover faction in the State, were elected delegates at large.

A previously arranged slate of candidates for the minor places on the ticket, headed by Joseph B. Kyle, of Gary, as lieutenant governor, was put through with little opposition.

Tampa Judge Leads.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 3 (AP).—Late reports in Florida's 14-candidate race for the Democratic nomination for Governor tonight gave Judge W. Raleigh Petteway, of Tampa, a lead of more than 7,000 votes, and boosted William C. Hodges, of Tallahassee, from fourth to second place.

Fred P. Cone, of Lake City, was only 200 votes behind Hodges, while B. F. Paty, of West Palm Beach, slipped from second place to fourth.

Unofficial reports from 1,045 of the 1,321 precincts gave Petteway, 37,390; Hodges, 30,338; Cone, 30,128; Paty, 29,241.

A run-off primary June 23 will determine the Democratic nominee who will oppose E. E. Calloway, of Lakeland, the Republican candidate, in the November general election.

All of the State's five Representatives in Congress except Representative at Large Joe Sears, of Jacksonville, were leading their primary opponents. Sears and Representative R. A. Green, of Starke, were pitted against each other in the Second District. Green was ahead by a wide margin.

Landon Adds 2 in N. Y.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 3 (AP).—Two "North County" delegates to the Republican National Convention announced their support of Gov. Alf M. Landon today and brought to ten the total of New York State delegates who outwardly advocate the nomination of the Kansas Governor.

Treadway for Landon.

By the Associated Press.

Representative Allen T. Treadway, of Massachusetts, last night announced he would vote for Landon and added:

"Although elected as an unpledged delegate-at-large from Massachusetts to the Republican National Convention, I am convinced that a majority of the Republicans of that State whom I, in part, represent, favor the nomination of Gov. Landon."

Once Powerful G. O. P. 'Old Guard' Seen Eclipsed in Boom for Landon.

By Franklyn Waltman

CLEVELAND, June 3.—One cannot be in Cleveland, the Republican National Convention city, more than a few hours without realizing that the once powerful "Old Guard" of the G. O. P. very definitely has gone into an eclipse. This is the impression one gets in Washington, but it is much more definite here.

WALTMAN

At past Republican conventions the inquiry most frequently heard around hotel lobbies was "What does Hilles think?" or "Have you talked with Roraback?" Incoming newspapermen first sought interviews with these and other "Old Guard" leaders in an effort to get their bearings.

But all that is no more. Instead, one hears in the lobbies of the Hollenden and Cleveland hotels: "What does John Hamilton think?" And the headquarters suite of the Landon campaign manager—six days before the convention opens—is jammed with Republican leaders and delegates seeking to get near the throne.

None seems to care greatly what Charles Dewey Hilles, the Republican National committeeman from New York, thinks. Of course, he was asked today by correspondents, and he was not very communicative. He was still looking the situation over, was the gist of his answer. But as he looks the situation over, the Landon bandwagon is moving ahead and unless he jumps soon, he will be left a forlorn figure, ignored by everyone.

Indeed, Mr. Hilles already is a rather lonesome figure. The last chance of the "Old Guard" doing anything effective in the way of stopping Gov. Alf M. Landon in his march to the Republican Presidential nomination went glimmering last night, when Connecticut's Old Guard national committeeman, J. Henry Roraback, jumped for the bandwagon with the statement that his State's 19 votes would be cast for the Kansan.

The Southern delegates—usually bandwagon riders, but likewise loyal to Old Guard leadership—have become restive. The Roraback announcement convinced many of them that Gov. Landon is a sure bet, and these Southerners were seen around the Landon headquarters today. Richard B. Creager, national committeeman from Texas, for instance, let it be known that Gov. Landon could expect 25 votes from his delegation.

The more one sees of the Old Guard here the more clearly the impression becomes that Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, who has severely assailed the group, has been kicking a dead lion. These old boys just do not have any life in them. Indeed, they are afraid of their own delegations.

The Landon managers—with John Hamilton and Oscar Stauffer at their head—have taken charge of the convention, but in an unostentatious way. The first thing these two did today was to announce that they would hold press conferences twice daily. The attitude they reveal is the key as to what will happen regarding the Vice Presidential nomination and the platform. They declined to discuss either one today.

But they are looking ahead. For instance, they have already selected the Landon campaign song. That old tune of the frontier trail and the covered wagon, "O Susanna!" will now take its place alongside of "The Sidewalks of New York" and "Happy Days Are Here Again" as campaign songs.

"O Susanna" conjures up the kind of picture the Landon camp is trying to present to the country—a picture of prairies, of men strong and silent and self-reliant, of covered wagons and other reminders of the things which made this country great.

The Landon headquarters is distributing campaign buttons bearing the words "Landon—Deeds Not Deficits" on a background of white and blue. But by the time the big delegations start arriving, 20,000 sunflowers also will arrive from Kansas and a Landonite will be known by the sunflower in his lapel.

Back East—any place this side of Cumberland Gap is West to an Easterner—much is made of the fact that Gov. Landon has been a dry in Kansas politics. But the way to find his headquarters in the Hollenden Hotel is to follow arrows pointing the way to the "Rendezvous Bar"—it is just next door to the Landon headquarters—which now bears a sign, "Closed for the Summer."

Photographers covering the first meeting of the Republican National Committee were more interested in getting shots of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms than anyone else. She held the proxy of the New Mexico national committeewoman, Mrs. Margaret Kent Medler. The daughter of Mark Hanna, who once ruled the Republican Party with an iron hand, dressed in a brown ensemble and a black hat, sat beside her husband, former Representative Albert G. Simms, the national committeeman from New Mexico. Once they were seen holding hands during the hearing of a contest. Perhaps the former Ruth Hanna found that more interesting than the glum expressions on the face of the "Old Guard."

POROSTYLE SUITS
CUSTOMIZED BY
Hickey-Freeman

It required years of research to develop Porostyle. The cloth had to be extremely light in weight, yet it had to lend itself readily to the finest tailouring. It had to be available in light colours, even white, as well as dark shades, yet stand rigorous wear and vigorous cleaning, at times. It had to be the most porous cloth made, yet be constructed of the finest worsted yarn obtainable so it would hold its shape without frequent pressing. All these qualities were at last embodied in Porostyle and Hickey-Freeman tailoured the suit. We believe it to be the finest summer suit obtainable.

Executioner for Black Legion Bares Details of 'Discipline' Murder.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 3.—Blind obedience even to the point of murder was required by the Black Legion from its members, the confessed executioner for the hooded band testified in court today as 12 co-defendants on murder charges and a silent, intent audience looked on.

Waving aside the shouted objections of his attorney and ignoring the hostile gaze of his fellow defendants, Dayton Dean testified he shot and killed Charles A. Poole, young WPA worker, May 12, at the end of a "one-way ride," because it was expected of him after "Colonel" Harvey Davis, another defendant, had "got the thing up"—the slaying of Poole.

Dean was the least disturbed of the many persons in Common Pleas Court as he related the story (already told in detail in confessions from several of those under arrest) of arrangements for Poole's "punishment" and its execution.

Of the actual slaying, Dean said he pumped eight bullets into Poole's body from a distance of 10 feet, using two pistols, while members of his party looked on. He fired so many shots, he said, "just from nervousness."

It was the first eyewitness story of the slaying that led to disclosure of the existence of the hooded terrorist band with its widespread ramifications.

Defense objections balked Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea when he tried to ask Dean if he had knowledge of any Army Reserve officers being active in training members of the Black Legion. A charge that such training had been given was made in Washington by Representative Samuel Dickstein (Democrat), of New York, who is seeking a Congressional investigation of the terrorist organization. Dickstein said he had information an Army Reserve officer was using Cavalry horses to train Black Legion members to be "night riders."

Michigan Democrats in Washington joined Dickstein in asking an investigation by Congress. Representative George Sandowski, Detroit Democrat, charging State authorities are taking no action because Black legionnaires were affiliated with Republican organizations.

At Jackson, Mich., another reported "hotbed" of hooded night-riding activities, Prosecutor Owen Dudley, conducting a grand jury inquiry, reported evidence of the flogging of a Black Legion member in 1935 after charges of misconduct with a woman. He obtained an assault warrant against Glenn Finkel, of Jackson, who testified several days ago. Dudley said other witnesses named Finkel as a "guiding hand" of the Black Legion in Jackson County.

Dean, who admitted he once was a "major" in the Black Legion but lost his rank when he moved to another "district," was said by Detective Sergt. John Harvill to have told how he himself was flogged by the terrorists about 18 months ago for "failing to bring in enough new members."

Yawning frequently on the stand, Dean accused Davis and Ervin Lee, also a defendant, with having decreed the killing of Poole, ostensibly for beating his wife. Poole's widow has denied her husband ever mistreated her.

Knew of Band, Says Cummings.

By the Associated Press.

Attorney General Cummings yesterday said he had known about the Block Legion for "about a year," but had not found any Federal law being violated by the organization "either then or now."

The Attorney General said Duncan C. McCrea, Wayne County prosecutor, had not furnished to the Justice Department any evidence of violation of Federal laws in the Black Legion's activities in Michigan.

He side-stepped a question as to whether the Federal Government would investigate if it were shown that a man had been taken from Detroit to a Canadian island and hanged.

night, as she talked to reporters, she wore a long blue robe with blue loose, flapping sleeves. She wore black shoes and a black hat trimmed with daisies.

That is the outfit, it is understood she will wear to Washington.

Marshal J. J. Kelly said her offer to return to Washington would be acceptable.

After months of undercover work by John O. Patton, of the Metropolitan Police Department, Washington police and Federal officers here and in New York launched their drive to exterminate the ring simultaneously.

Washington pilice arrested Mme. Zelda alias "Lizzia" Harrison 47, 1000 block of Seventh street northwest; May Defiance Trigg, 46, of the 1200 block Seventh street northwest; Zolie A. Wright, 51, the only male soothsayer held, 400 block of New Jersey avenue southeast; Janet R. Bremer, 38, of the 1200 block of Seventh street northwest; Belle May Ferber, 47, of the 1200 block of Jackson street northeast, and Maude A. Orton, 47, of the 3100 block of Tenth stret northeast.

The first four named were arraigned on the conspiracy charges yesterday before Commissioner Turnage and released under $1,000 bonds for appearance at a preliminary hearing June 17. The others, taken into custody later in the day, will be formally charged tomorrow.

Mrs. Lillian Holmes, 64, of 420 Tenth street southeast, was arrested last night at her home. She is the wife of James C. Holmes, former Metropolitan policeman, who has been retired from the force for five years. She was taken to the Women's Bureau, where bond was set at $1,000.

In uncovering the ring's activities, Patton feigned an interest in the fortune telling business and joined the "church." He had spent several months learning church tenets and rituals and the night before the arrests was to have taken his final orders involving the payment of $50 and the issuance of a diploma, he said.

The group was named in complaints brought yesterday as "an incorporated religious association for the purpose of evading and defeating the purposes" of the licensing act.

According to Patton, it was organized by a Dr. H. P. MacKnight, who proclaimed himself "archbishop" several years ago and started the diploma mill grindnig by the issuance of degrees at a price. Recipients of diplomas, according to Patton, became practitoiners of the art of clairvoyance without going to the trouble of paying $250 for a license. They would, according to Patton, peer into a client's future at charges ranging from $1 to $5.

MacKnight died in April and the authority of the church passed, according to Patton, to the Carver woman.

Day Testifies in His Own Defense in Attempt to Escape Chair

By the Associated Press.

Joliet, Ill., June 3.—With James Day's own witness stand story of the fatal prison bathroom fight, his defense climaxed today its effort to save him from the electric chair for the razor-slaying of "thrill killer" Richard Loeb last January 28.

Calmly before a crowded courtroom, which included some women, the 21-year-old larcenist recounted the tale he previously had given authorities: That the co-slayer of little Bobby Franks, of Chicago, had the "run" of the prison, sought to put him under obligations through favors, "hounded" him for 14 months with improper advances, and was killed when they met in the bathroom to discuss their differences.

"Why did you slash Loeb?" asked Defense Counsel Harold Levy.

"I had to do that or else get killed," the defendant replied.

"When you saw Loeb with the razor in his hand did you believe that a criminal assault was about to be made upon you?" questioned Levy.

An attempted reference to the victim of Loeb and Nathan Leopold in the sensational murder of 1924 brought immediate objections from Prosecutors Walter O. Herchbach and Charles McKeown. Day got as far as "all I thought of was Bobby Franks—" before he was required to change his answer. He then replied "yes."

Shortly after Day finished on the witness stand, the defense rested and arguments got under way with the prospect that the jury might get the case early tomorrow.

Air Conditioning Held Aid to Moth Breeding

Ithaca, N. Y., June 3 (AP).—Studies indicating that common clothes moths will work all winter in air-conditioned buildings were announced today at Cornell University. Ordinarily they work only in spring and summer. The reason is the pleasing humidity which air-conditioning can substitute for the dry air of ordinary winter heating.

Dr. Grace H. Griswold and Dr. Mary F. Crowell have proven that moths can breed during every month of the year. They discovered that humidity plays an important role in the development of larvae.

Bartholomew Parents Join in Custody Suit

Los Angeles, June 3 (AP).—Freddie Bartholomew's parents, heretofore pursuing separate courses in the fight over the little actor's custody, joined forces today with a single attorney. Isaac Pacht, counsel for Cecil Llewellyn Bartholomew, the father, said he had been retained by Mrs. Bartholomew as well. The mother, until now, has had her own lawyer.

Pacht expressed hope that at the next hearing, set for June 8, he could announce a settlement. Miss Myllicent Bartholomew, Freddie's aunt, is his legal guardian. The parents are contesting the award, but have indicated a willingness to compromise. Freddie is a $1,000-a-week star at 12.

Anthony was taken to Garfield Hospital.

'Woman in Red' Denied Rumanian Stage Career

Bucharest, Rumania, June 3 (AP).—The home office today forbade a theater to engage Anna Sage, the woman who gave up Gangster John Dillinger to American authorities in Chicago. She was to have received $25 nightly for her appearance.

Mrs. Sage, known as "the woman in red," was deported from the United States as an undesirable alien because she was convicted of operating a disorderly house in Gary, Ind.

British Crowds Wildly Acclaim Haile Selassie

Emperor Weeps, Says He is Confident of Getting 'Justice' in England.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 3.—The British people made little Haile Selassie forget momentarily today the ashes of Addis Ababa.

The exiled Ethiopian ruler, arriving here today, couldn't keep back the tears in the midst of the popular acclaim given him.

"I have come to England confident I'll be able to obtain justice," he said.

Just a month after abandoning his distant African capital to fire and pillage before the steady march of the Roman legions, the Negus arrived in England. He came without a throne. But he received a reception seldom given even reigning monarchs.

Battalions of bobies, both in Southampton and London, fought waves of cheering spectators to keep them within barriers.

Traveling as a private citizen, the Emperor spared British officialdom any possible embarrassment. Little welcoming bands of his own countrymen, however, were shunted into a back position as the British people took the Emperor into their midst.

On the Waterloo Station platform in London Sir Norman Angell, heading the council of the Ethiopian Association, read an address of welcome.

"We greatly admire the steadfastness and courage with which your majesty and your government defended your country, in the manner in which you have complied with your obligations to the League of Nations, and we deplore the failure of the League so far to give your country the protection to which it was entitled," Angell said.

O. C. Harvey, private secretary to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, was the official greeter for the government.

The Lion of Judah arrived as labor circles continued to predict that Premier Baldwin shortly would effect a deal with Premier Mussolini in the tense Anglo-Italian situation.

Dino Grandi, Italian Ambassador to London, was closeted with Eden across the Thames from the station for a second discussion within a week of sanctions.

The emperor was met by cheers from the moment he disembarked at Southampton.

While here he will occupy a house loaned to him by Sir Elly Kadoorie, Baghdad-born millionaire. Detectives were detailed to guard him and the residence during the stay.

Mme. Lanet Dies; Native of France

Mme. Marie Emilie Desiree Lanet, native of France, died yesterday at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Saul, 3217 Reservoir road northwest, after an illness of more than two months. She was 78.

Mme. Lanet came to this country in 1927, accompanied by a grandson and a son-in-law. She was born in Beaucharmon, Haute Marne, France.

Besides her daughter she is survived by a sister, a brother and other relatives in France.

Tentative funeral arrangements call for services at Trinity Church and burial in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Texans Are Challenged To Spitting Contest

Baton Rouge, La., June 3 (AP).—Gov. Richard W. Leche stepped out of character today to challenge Texans at their centennial to "a tobacco juice spitting contest."

Coming into the House of Representatives chewing tobacco, something the smooth-mannered Governor has not been in the habit of doing, he aimed at several cuspidors—managed to hit one—and remarked:

"I'm going to challenge the Texans to a tobacco juice spitting contest," he said. He plans to go with the Legislature to the Texas Centennial at Dallas.

Navy Officer's Flight Is Detroit-D. C. Record

The National Aeronautic Association announced yesterday that Lieut. Charles F. Greber, commanding officer of the Naval Air Base in Detroit, had set a record speed record in flying from Detroit to this city Tuesday.

Greber, who was flying in line of duty in a Grumann Flighter standard Navy plane, made the 380 miles in 2 hours and 12 minutes and 2 seconds. Although no previous speed record has been recognized, the flying time of air transport planes between the two cities is 3 hours and 20 minutes.

Five District Cadets Honored at Fishburne

Five Washington cadets at Fishburne Military Academy, Waynesboro, Va., were awarded medals and honors Tuesday at commencement exercises of the school.

They were:

John Douglas Adair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Adair, 2680 Woodland drive, a conduct medal; Donald F. Fuller, son of Capt. and Mrs. Harry N. Fuller, Army Medical Center, a conduct medal; Raymond Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Harris, 629 Longfellow street, a conduct medal; Robinson Minick, 4420 Volta place, a medal for the neatest room, and Robert Westbrook, son of Mrs. Mildred DeM. Westbrook, Willard Hotel, honorable mention for the neatest room.

350,000 Strike in France

higher wages, a 40-hour week, abolition of overtime, recognition of unions and pay to discharged workers.

Warned on Devaluation.

Chamber observers feared there might be serious consequences for the new Blum government if the strikes, thus far orderly, get out of hand.

The cabinet was faced with stiff financial problems even before it was formed, with financial experts warning devaluation was virtually inevitable if Blum tries to effect higher wages and a shorter work week.

The franc sagged today, French issues reacted on the Bourse and gold, valued at $10,000,000, left France aboard the S. S. Aquitania.

Charles Rist, honorary governor of the Bank of France, added his name to the growing list of devaluation adherents, declaring it was the only cure for France's economic crisis.

In a letter to Le Petit Parisien, Rist suggested the franc be tied to the pound following devaluation, to abolish the 20 per cent margin between French prices and those in England and the United States.

Blum's tentative cabinet list was shaken up anew this afternoon, with the principal names unchanged. Ready to head the most extreme Left cabinet in modern French history, he resurrected an old royalist custom by deciding to give some prospective secretaries of state the rank of minister. This, it was understood, was done to avoid jealousies.

Blum Alters System.

It was Louis XIV who first included secretaries of state in the cabinet, but after the revolution of 1789 the custom was abolished as undemocratic.

Blum also brought back the royal custom of charging ministers with the formation of policy and the secretaries of state with liaison between policy and practice. The undersecretaries of state will head the actual work.

Premier Albert Sarraut's cabinet, meeting late tomorrow afternoon, will submit its resignation at the Elysee Palace as soon as Edouard Herriot, the only candidate, is chosen president of the chamber.

President Albert Lebrun then will call upon Blum to form a new cabinet.

Premier, Leon Blum, Socialist.

War, Edouard Daladier, Radical-Socialist.

Navy, Francois Blancho, Socialist.

Air, Pierre Cot, Radical-Socialist.

Justice, Marc Rucart, Radical-Socialist.

Agriculture, Georges Monnet, Socialist.

Merchant marine, Paul Maulion, Radical-Socialist.

Finance, Vincent Auriol, Socialist.

Foreign affairs, Yvon Delbos, Radical-Socialist.

Interior, Roger Salengro, Socialist.

National economy, Charles Spinasse, Socialist.

Education, Jean Zay, Radical-Socialist.

National solidarity (Labor), Jean Baptiste Lebas, Socialist.

250,000 Out in Spain.

Madrid, June 3 (AP).—Labor disturbances grew more serious in Spain today as the government puzzled over solutions to a dozen simultaneous strikes involving nearly 250,000 workers.

A strike tying up the entire Asturian basin seemed inevitable as the government professed to see no way of complying with demands for back pay and bonuses. Some 25,000 miners are scheduled to quit work tomorrow.

Workers of Santander announced a general strike in protest against the wounding of the publisher of a Leftist newspaper by an alleged Fascist, who then killed himself.

Nearly 125,000 farm workers in Malaga are on strike; 40,000 construction workers of Madrid are out, and a general strike looms in Cadiz.

Strike Ties Up Antwerp Port.

Antwerp, Belgium, June 3 (AP).—Extension of the French strike fever to Belgium tied up this port tonight as dock workers demanded pay increases. It was unofficially estimated that between 10,000 and 15,000 workers quit their jobs.

Mexican Train Mishap Is Laid to Insurgents

Mexico City, June 3 (AP).—A dispatch from Sombrerete, Zacatecas, today brought word of the derailment early yesterday of the night Mexico-Durango train. No one was injured, and damage was slight. The dispatch credited the derailment to rebels.

Another dispatch from Saltillo, Coahuila, said soldiers arrested Jose Lopez Hernandez as he walked through the town carrying a suitcase containing 2,000 rounds of ammunition.

From Parral, Chihuahua, came reports of attacks on two motor vehicles by bandit bands, in which one youth was killed and another seriously wounded

Canadian River Breaks Dykes, Floods Farms

Vancouver, B. C., June 3 (AP).—The rising Fraser River crumbled dykes and rolled over hundreds of acres of rich farmland near its mouth today.

Dykes were threatened 100 miles inland in the fertile Fraser Valley as the river rose 20 inches above the danger mark. At Port Mann men bolstered the river walls with sandbags.

Twenty farms were under 4 to 10 feet of water. Homes of the 500 residents of Dewdney were reported in danger.

60,000 Romans Greet Badoglio, Hero of Africa

Ethiopia's Viceroy Warmly Kissed by Mussolini on Return Home.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, June 3.—A modern Roman conqueror returned from his "mission of civilization" in Ethiopia today to receive the kisses of Il Duce and the adulation of all Romans.

Viceroy Pietro Badoglio, whose legions swept into Addis Ababa on the heels of the fleeing Emperor Haile Selassie, swung off a special train here to receive a hero's welcome.

Premier Mussolini kissed him on both cheeks. High-ranking Fascist military leaders paid homage. But what moved the strapping campaigner most was the roar from 60,000 Roman throats.

Before the gray veteran strode within sight of the multitude, Mussolini lingered behind so as not to detract from the mass lionization.

Absent from the scene was the gnarled little general, Emilio de Bono, predecessor of Badoglio in the African campaign. The white-bearded 70-year-old conqueror of Aduwa and Makale returned six months ago on a rainy winter night, in contrast to today's reception. Today he was home, ill.

A special train bore Badoglio home on a vacation, after which he is to return to Ethiopia in the discharge of his viceregal duties.

Mussolini was on hand early for the general's arrival. Twice he reviewed the picked troops, which were drawn up at the station as an honor escort.

His entire cabinet and his aviator son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, were at his side as he met the African hero.

Officers presented bouquets to the new viceroy and to Signora Badoglio.

As Badoglio rode away through the throng echoing his name and praises, the new viceregal banner on the car took the breeze to symbolize the newly created Fascist Italo-Ethiopian Empire.

From the station reception he went to his home. Later he intends to go to the watering place of Fiuggi for a rest.

Details of the grand military review to be held Sunday were published today, but the part Badoglio will play was not mentioned.

Druggan Offers Tax Compromise to U. S.

Chicago, June 3 (AP).—Terry Druggan, prohibition beer baron, has offered a "substantial sum" to compromise his income tax trouble, Assistant United States District Attorney David L. Bazelon said in court today.

For this reason, Federal Judge William H. Holly postponed the Government's case against Druggan until July 1. The Government claims Druggan owes $267,000, due on his income in 1922, 1923 and 1924. Bazelon said the Government was considering Druggan's offer.

League Charts African Policy Session June 22

Britain's Reception of Haile Selassie Watched for Hint of Stand.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, June 3.—Upon Argentina's demand for a review of the Italo-Ethiopian situation the Assembly of the League of Nations probably will meet June 22, officials said tonight.

A meeting officially has not been called, but preparations for it were under way.

What the Assembly will do when it meets—whether sanctions will be lifted or strengthened—remains a topic on which there is the widest possible divergence of opinion.

League circles were watching the stay in London of Emperor Haile Selassie most closely for some indication of Great Britain's attitude toward annexed Ethiopia's status at forthcoming Assembly discussions.

Premier Mussolini's displeasure at the plan to reopen the Assembly was believed clearly shown by his sudden withdrawal of the Italian delegation from a labor conference here.

This conference has nothing to do with Ethiopia. Il Duce, it is recalled, has threatened repeatedly to refuse to collaborate in international movements until sanctions are lifted.

The mandates commission decided to resume Monday its discussion of the situation in Palestine.

Dutch Banker Killed.

Amsterdam, The Netherlands, June 3 (AP).—A. Johannes Van Hengel, 50, Dutch banker and manager of the Austrian Creditanstaldt Bank, was killed today in an airplane crash at Schipol Airport.

Crop Curb End Within 2 Years Wallace's Hope

Rising World Prosperity Will Solve Problem, Secretary Thinks.

By Felix Bruner.

Secretary Wallace said yesterday that he hoped that within the next year or two prosperity in the United States and in the world would have increased sufficiently to make crop production control unnecessary.

The Secretary of Agriculture in discussing the general farm situation took an optimistic view of the possibility that increased exports may soon play a considerable part in solution of the farm problem.

Meanwhile, the Senate Agriculture Committee moved rapidly to bring about adoption at this session of Congress of President Roosevelt's suggestion that benefit payments to large producers be reduced. The committee reported a bill cutting in half benefit payments of more than $51,000, but later indicated it would change the measure to make the drastic reduction apply to payments of more than $10,000.

Working along the same lines, the House Agriculture Committee approved a resolution to extend the sugar quota system and to revive benefit payments to producers. The appropriation to finance the benefits was cut from $30,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Thus the Administration has adopted one of the Republican farm plans and has forestalled some of the Republican criticism of huge payments to large producers, most of which are corporations. The action followed revelation that some benefit checks have totaled $1,000,000 or more.

In addition to cutting large payments in half, the Senate committee proposal as originally submitted provided for a 1 per cent reduction in payments of $2,000 to $3,000, and an additional 1 per cent for each additional $1,000 up to $51,000. Later it was changed to curtail payments from $2,000 to $10,000 by 25 per cent and that portion of payments over $10,000 by 50 per cent.

Secretary Wallace said he believed the plan to be "roughly in the right direction." He said he expected the changes to apply to this year's payments.

"We want to be sure that payments do not encourage extension of corporate farming," he said.

He added, however, that he hoped the reduction would not mean that large producers would drop out of the program. He said his department had been studying the possibility of graduated payments for a long time.

"Whenever facts are brought forward showing the necessity for change we recognize that necessity," Wallace said. "The situation has changed greatly in the last two years, especially as regards sugar."

Wallace's discussion of the agricultural situation was prompted by a question at his press conference as to the contents of the agriculture plank in the Democratic platform to be adopted in Philadelphia.

He smilingly remarked that he did not think there would be a great deal of difference between the Republican and Democratic planks. Four years ago, however, the Democratic plank declared against crop production control and the Republican plank declared for it.

Wallace would not say whether the Democratic plank would contain a discussion of production control, but said he is "banking a great deal on the return of world prosperity and of prosperity in this country." He added that the mechanism for control should be available to be used when and if necessary.

"I think that production control in 1934 and 1935 was quite justified," he said, "but I don't think we want to give up hope for an increased world market.

Inquest Today Into Brookhart Traffic Death

3 Year Old Grandson of Ex Senator Killed by Auto Late Last Month.

Inquests into the traffic deaths of William W. Brookhart, 3-year-old grandson of former Senator Smith W. Brookhart, and Ernest Easley, 54, of 1359 L street southeast, will be held today at the District Morgue.

The Brookhart boy died in Georgetown Hospital May 27 a few minutes after he was struck crossing the street in the 3200 block Highland place northwest, when he left the kindergarten school he attended with his sister.

William, the son of Smith W. Brookhart, jr., who lives at 5714 Chevy Chase parkway, died of a fractured skull. Mrs. Dorothy W. Ralph, 4563 Cathedral avenue northwest, driver of the car that struck the boy, will appear at the inquest. Mrs. Ralph, an expectant mother, had been confined to Georgetown Hospital until a few days ago.

Thirty-eighth Fatality Here.

Easley, the thirty-eighth District fatality, was killed instantly Tuesday night by a street car in the 1300 block Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Benjamin F. Hale, 29, of 3608 Thirteenth street northwest, motorman of the street car, was released in the custody of a Capital Transit Co. attorney. He will appear at the inquest.

Representative Hull (Progressive), of Wisconsin, yesterday was added to the traffic sub-committee of the House District Committee for the purpose of assisting in the proposed investigation of street car and bus operation in Washington.

Hull was the author of the resolution to conduct the mass transportation inquiry. He complained specifically against overcrowding on buses and street cars.

Representative Patman (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the sub-committee, said there would not be time to conduct a thorough investigation before Congress adjourned, but Hull added that the sub-committee would try to get some information from the Public Utilities Commission.

Three driving permits were revoked and 21 others suspended for from 1 to 45 days yesterday when the Revocations Board acted on the cases of 24 motorists convicted of speeding.

Revoked—Bernard P. Saul, 2224 Wyoming avenue northwest, 50 miles; Howard L. Smith, 2222 Q street northwest, 60 miles; Arthur H. Walter, 1409 Fourth street southeast, 44 miles.

Harry R. Ober, 5718 Third street northwest, lost his license for 45 days when found guilty of a second offense, speed of 40 miles an hour.

Thirty-day suspensions — Thomas R. Palmer, 4129 New Hampshire avenue northwest, 42 miles; Percy Parnes, 1242 Fifth street northwest, 42 miles; Homer A. Patterson, 1350 E street northeast, 40 miles; Hilda H. Parry, 1332 Thirty-first street northwest, 44 miles; Orville A. Platt, 2841 Monroe street northeast, 40 miles; Harry L. Purdum, 819 Quintana place northwest, 44 miles; Donald R. Royer, 46 Seaton place northwest, 42 miles; Louis Simon, 5226 Thirty-ninth street northwest, 40 miles; George F. Stone, 814 New Jersey avenue northwest, 45 miles; Mance Suber, Fordham road and Upton street northwest, 45 miles; Clarence H. Swider, 3349 Nichols avenue southeast, 42 miles; Harry E. Wallach, 108 Fourth street southeast, 44 miles; Wilson Warder, 1110 South Carolina avenue southeast, 44 miles; Israel Wiener, 2200 Georgia avenue northwest, 42 miles.

To Study Milwaukee Plan.

First-hand study of Milwaukee's traffic scheme is to be made by a committee of four District officials in the hope they can get some ideas for improving local regulation.

The committee is composed of William A. Van Duzer, director of traffic; John Nolen, city planner of the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission; Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, director of highways, and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Milwaukee has about the same population as Washington. During 1935 there were 65 traffic deaths in that city, compared with 113 in Washington. There were 116,000 automobiles registered in Milwaukee, compared with 180,000 in Washington. There were 3,432 persons injured in Milwaukee compared with 4,551 here.

BRIG. GEN. JAMES K. PARSONS (top). COL. LORENZO GASSER.

Parsons Named Major General By Roosevelt

Fifth Brigade Commander Is Slated to Succeed Johnson Hagood.

Brig. Gen. James K. Parsons, commanding the Fifth Brigade in Vancouver, Wash., was nominated yesterday by the President for promotion to the rank of major general.

He will succeed Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, who retired several weeks ago after serving one day in his "vindication" command at Chicago. Before that he had been disciplined for criticizing the Administration's spending policies.

To fill the post of brigadier general to be vacated by Parsons, President Roosevelt named Col. Lorenzo Gasser, chief of staff of the Fourth Corps Area, stationed at Fort McPherson, Ga.

Parsons entered the service as a lieutenant in the Third Alabama Infantry during the Spanish-American War. The following year he was commissioned in the regular Army. During the World War, as colonel of the Thirty-ninth Infantry Fourth Division, he was wounded and gassed in the Argonne. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, the Purple Heart and the Distinguished Service Medal.

A graduate of both the Army and Naval War Colleges, he has served on the War Department General Staff.

Gasser also saw action in the Spanish-American and World Wars, receiving the Distinguished Service Medal and the French Legion of Honor. He served a tour of duty as a member of the General Staff in Washington.

Trade Pact Discussed.

Melbourne, Australia, June 3 (AP). The Japanese consul general was understood to have attempted today to establish a basis for a new trade treaty between Japan and the Commonwealth of Australia. He conferred with Sir Henry Gullett, Australia's assistant minister for trade. Manchukuo's proposal to ban Australian flour also was discussed.

Jelleff Lauds Brown's Work For Boys Clubs

President of Police Units Is Guest at Luncheon of Managers.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown and his associates were praised yesterday by Frank R. Jelleff, president of the Washington Boys Club and a member of the Parole Board, for the successful record of the Police Boys Club against juvenile delinquency.

Jelleff was guest of honor at a special luncheon-business session of the Board of Managers of the Boys Club of the Metropolitan Police at the National Press Club.

He recommended better clubs, with adequate and standard equipment for each unit, and pledged full co-operation of the pioneer clubs in co-ordinating a development program that would "find no duplication of effort" in the various precincts and sections.

"In my parole experience it just about breaks my heart to know that the majority of imprisonments that later result in appeals for parole involve a great percentage of young men between 18 and 21," said Jelleff.

Bliss Presents Diplomas to 95 At Graduation

Commencement Exercises Held in Electrical School's Hall.

Ninety-five men were graduated and three others received master of electricity degrees at the Bliss Electrical School commencement exercises last night.

The ceremonies were held in the dining hall on the campus grounds. The graduates received their diplomas from L. D. Bliss, president of the school.

The address was given by Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the National Education Association of the United States. The invocation was made by the Rev. Reno S. Harp, jr., rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Takoma Park, D. C.

Real Estate Bond Houses Bilk Millions, SEC Member Claims

Banks Exploit Investors Within the Law, Is Douglas' Charge.

taken at public hearings by the commission in the fall of 1935, on questionnaire returns filed by numerous real estate bond committees and by the Chicago Title & Trust Co., and on special studies of real estate reorganizations. The hearings were devoted chiefly to defaulted real estate bonds sold to the public by the following houses of issue:

S. W. Straus & Co., Greenebaum Sons' Investment Co., American Bond & Mortgage Co., Lackner, Butz & Co., Cochran & McCluer Co., Foreman-State Trust & Savings Bank, and Madison & Kedzie State Bank.

The report states that while these houses are but a small number of the total of companies underwriting real estate bonds, three are among the largest distributors of these securities—S. W. Straus, Greenebaum and American Bond.

Total Put at $700,000,000.

The commission said the Straus company sold more real estate bonds than any other underwriter in the country, selling during its existence slightly more than $1,000,000,000 worth. The total amount of defaulted bonds sold by the seven companies named was more than $700,000,000, representing about one-fifth of all defaulted real estate bonds in investors' hands.

It pictures the house of issue as frequently underwriter, fiscal agent, trustee, depositary, dealer, insurance broker, property manager, receiver and voting trustee, with almost absolute control over the remuneration to be paid by the bondholders for each service. In many cases, it states that one counsel has at the same time served the committee, the depositary, the trustee and the underwriter. It claims that the guaranties of the issuing houses as to quality of the liens, investment safety, etc., are often "fraudulent misrepresentations."

The more important of the 15 points of the report are:

Houses of issue almost invariably appointed themselves fiscal agents. The moneys received by them in this capacity were recklessly handled. At times these funds were invested in companies in which the houses of issue were interested.

"Never a Champion."

The indenture trustee was practically never an independent and aggressive champion of the rights of investors, since he was usually an officer, employe or affiliate of the house of issue.

On this point the report says an examination of 137 Straus indentures revealed that in each case the trustee was an officer, employe or affiliate of Straus.

Houses of issue concealed defaults from the bondholders for a substantial period of time in order to create an impression of stability.

On this point the commission cited as typical that Greenebaum Sons had made advances by late 1929 of some $6,000,000 on 53 issues while they proceeded to sell the bonds as securities in good standing. These advances were funds necessary to meet payments of interest, principal and taxes to conceal the defaults.

Monopoly Charged.

issue a virtual monopoly in the organization of protective committees and in control over the reorganization.

The monopoly in the formation of protective committees possessed by the houses of issue was utilized to an extent unparalleled in other fields of reorganization. Single houses controlled the fate of hundreds of issues.

(On this point the commission cited more than 3 protective committees the Straus company allegedly formed, all of which were manned by Straus officers, while several Straus officers served on more than 120 committees.)

The control of protective committees gave the houses of issue protection against claims arising from fraud committed by them in the issuance and sale of the bonds.

Control over the protective committees enabled the houses of issue to salvage the interests acquired as a result of their advances to the detriment of bondholders.

The practice of using voting trusts and liquidation trusts is placing the control over millions of dollars of investments in urban property in relatively few hands.

House Leaders Send Aid Bill To Conference

$1,425,000,000 Measure Faces Votes on PWA Fund, Florida Canal.

The deficiency appropriation bill, which includes $1,425,000,000 for relief, was brought a step nearer final enactment yesterday when it was sent to a conference committee over the objection of some of its opponents in the House.

Conferees representing the Senate and the House will meet today to go over the numerous amendments written into the measure by the Senate.

The bill was forced into conference after the Rules Committee had agreed to a rule the adoption of which would have given it to the conferees. Chairman Buchanan of the House Appropriations Committee agreed that two of the provisions of the bill would be brought back to the House for a separate vote. These are the provision reviving the Florida ship canal project and that permitting the PWA to make allotments from a $300,000,000 revolving fund.

Another provision to which some members of the House have objected is an amendment adding $57,600,000 to the bill for reclamation. It was believed the House might vote down the ship canal proposal and retain that for the PWA. It was doubtful whether the reclamation item would remain in the bill.

Meanwhile, Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, introduced his resolution calling for submission of a constitutional amendment permitting the President to veto separate items in appropriations bills. Vandenberg was prompted by the Senate action in adding amendments to the deficiency measure.

Speed Up Working With The Coolness Lurking In a Portable YORK AIR CONDITIONER

PAY THE THERMOMETER WAY---BY DEGREES
As the mercury goes up — your payments rise to nominal; as the mercury goes down, so do your payments. Most budget plans make the same rate of payment monthly. Ours lowers it gradually so your monthly payments are almost nothing one-half the year and very nominal the other months.
The room-size York Portable Air Conditioner in your office or home brings inexpensive, cool comfort to your employes—and family. Step up the working efficiency of your office, give your clients a "cool reception" that will arouse a warm response. Work faster, happier, more effectively—and, remember, this air conditioner is movable. Just plug it in the wall like a light socket—it costs only a few cents an hour to operate. The modern York Unit filters the air, de-humidifies it—makes it healthful and fresh. Enjoy it downtown, enjoy it at home—you can install the York without ducts, pipes or extra costs. Mail the coupon today for better nights and days this Summer, and full explanation of how you "Pay the Thermometer Way."

The Fall Of Jimmy Thomas.

It really matters little whether or not criminal proceedings are instituted against Mr. James Henry Thomas, or whether attempt is made to oust him from the seat in the House of Commons which he has held for a quarter of a century. The special tribunal set up to investigate the leakage of advance information on the recent British budget has now found the former colonial secretary solely responsible. And no formal punishment can add anything substantial to the ineradicable stigma which "Jimmy" Thomas must carry to his grave.

In his long and versatile public life Mr. Thomas has never lacked both critics and active opponents. But all England has willingly paid tribute to the energies, talents and personality of this laborer's son who worked his way up from an engine wiper to become first a fireman, then an engine driver, then leader of the powerful National Union of Railwaymen and finally an important member of the British cabinet. For that reason it is the tragedy of this sordid termination to an honorable career, rather than the unprecedented nature of the charge of which Mr. Thomas is found guilty, which is uppermost.

One story in England is that Mr. Thomas, in a golf game with his sporting friend Alfred Bates, strongly emphasized the phrase "tee up," thus providing all the tip necessary for a few insiders to cash in on the higher tea duties which were announced a few days later. It is quite possible that the cabinet member's indiscretions were confined to such innuendoes. But even so, the hard-hitting board of inquiry was able to disclose that only close associates of Mr. Thomas had profited by "improper information of budget secrets." The integrity of the Civil Service is sustained by the concentration of blame upon the politician.

From Mr. Bates the colonial secretary coincidentally accepted the gift of a $75,000 house as "advance payment" for an autobiography which the former labor leader had promised to prepare. The inquiry revealed that Mr. Thomas has not yet begun work on the story of his life. Now it scarcely seems probable that he will do so. The story of meteoric rise from humble obscurity to national power and prestige is pleasant to write as well as read. But except for whitewash purposes few prominent failures have ever had the heart to recount publicly the false steps which ruined their careers.

Nevertheless it will be a loss if the story of "Jimmy" Thomas, sunlight and shadow both, is not given to the world. He belongs with the not inconsiderable few in British history who have climbed very high, and eventually fallen pitifully low, by the energetic exercise of those strangely involved character traits about which psychologists can still tell us very little.

An Aid To Economy.

A proposed amendment to the Constitution giving the President power to veto individual items in appropriation bills has been introduced by Senator Vandenberg. If Congress were willing to accept the advice of an executive budget director, or if it were to adopt the practice of excluding extraneous items from appropriation bills, such an amendment would not be necessary. However, there is not the slightest ground for hoping that the omnibus appropriation bill—an evil of long standing—will be abandoned. Congress might express a desire to reform itself, but it would most assuredly "backslide," if left to its own devices.

When Congress is in a reckless spending mood, the omnibus bill is a very serious obstacle to attempts at economy. Moreover, this sloppy legislative practice provides the President with an excuse for failing to take effective action to eliminate wasteful and unwise expenditures. Forced to choose between vetoing an appropriation bill which might severely cripple the orderly functioning of the Government and accepting an obnoxious "rider," the President virtually ceases to be a free agent. Given the right to veto individual items in such a bill, he would be no longer at the mercy of the Legislature.

States which have given their Governors the right to veto separate items in appropriation bills have benefited by the reform. It tends to make the legislative branch of government more responsible and gives the executive less excuse for a refusal to exercise his veto powers in the public interest. The chief difficulty seems to be that a Congress which habitually resorts to omnibus measures to authorize projects that would not otherwise be approved, may be reluctant to propose any amendment under which such strategy could be defeated.

On Wooing Independent Votes.

Current talk of offering the Republican Vice Presidential nomination to a distinguished anti-Roosevelt Democrat is significant chiefly for two reasons. It indicates that practical politicians, regarding the choice of a Presidential candidate as a settled issue, have turned their attention to the second place on the ticket and the party platform. And it emphasizes a growing conviction among Republicans that the one important objective in the 1936 election is to defeat President Roosevelt.

For several weeks it has been apparent that Gov. Landon will be the Republican nominee. The decision of the Connecticut delegation to vote for the Kansan merely suggests that the Old Guard has acquiesced in the inevitable. No doubt this lead will be followed by other delegations. Before the convention opens it may develop into an enthusiastic rush for the bandwagon.

With the major task of the Cleveland convention thus simplified, groups of Republicans are making a determined effort to strengthen their party for the ensuing contest. The coalition idea, which has been frequently advanced in recent months, is merely one of these endeavors. It is based on the assumption that a Democratic nominee for the Vice Presidency would attract a large number of votes from the New Deal. And, should the coalition ticket win, it is said that a "friendly" Vice President would be in a unique position to secure the co-operation of the Senate, which will retain a Democratic majority in any circumstances.

Certainly the G. O. P. must appeal to independent voters if it is to make any headway in the forthcoming contest. But it does not seem reasonable to suppose that those voters would be especially impressed by the choice of a Democratic running-mate for Mr. Landon. The rank and file who are opposed to New Deal policies will probably vote the Republican ticket whether or not it represents a coalition. But a coalition ticket would not likely draw the active support of any substantial number of disgruntled Democratic leaders.

In some respects, moreover, a direct appeal to old line Democrats would be a confession of weakness on the part of the G. O. P. With due allowance for the spirit of buoyancy that characterizes all political conventions, no such compromise can be expected at Cleveland. In drafting the platform, however, there will be a good opportunity to invite the support of all independent voters who fear the consequences of New Dealism. National political issues have undergone a metamorphosis since the "twenties" both because of the depression and the current era of experimentation. The 1936 platform must look forward to a new situation. If the Republicans adopt a truly constructive program, many independent voters will be almost automatically attracted.

So far as post-election harmony is concerned, it is difficult to imagine any sort of co-operation between a Democratic Senate and a presiding officer who would be regarded as a traitor to that party. Instead of trying to assume the pose of a coalition, therefore, the Republican Party would do much better to formulate a program that will command support from the voters for its intrinsic merits.

A Job For Experts.

Creation of a commission to determine how much the Government should pay toward the maintenance of its Capital City now seems to be virtually assured. If Senator Thomas' joint resolution providing for continuation of the $5,700,000 lump sum arrangement, and for appointment of such a commission, should for any reason fail of enactment, a continuing resolution having virtually the same effect will doubtless be approved.

There is still a question, however, as to whether the proposed commission will be able to bring to an end the annual controversies over Federal responsibility to the Capital. As the Thomas resolution now stands it would set up a commission of three—one to be appointed by the President, one by the Vice President and one by the Speaker of the House. The only qualifications required are that none of the commissioners shall live in the District or own property here.

Obviously, the way is left open for political appointments. Under the influence of Representative Blanton, the Speaker might select a member of the House known to be antagonistic toward the District. If members of Congress should be excluded, there would be danger of entrusting this delicate problem to politicians utterly incapable of working out a "fair and equitable formula for the annual computation" of the sum to be provided by Congress for the Capital City.

Obviously, the commission should be a group of experts, capable of analyzing the intricate relations between the local and national governments. If Congress fails to provide for the selection of such a group, there is grave danger that its labors would be merely a waste of time. For the opinions of unqualified persons could scarcely be expected to end the controversy which has brought so much grief to Congress and the District in recent years.

Graduated Farm Subsidies.

A clear-cut political motive may be seen in President Roosevelt's recommendation that subsidies paid to growers under the proposed sugar control measure and the soil conservation act be graduated so as to reduce the rate of benefits received by large-scale producers. No doubt the same motive is responsible for the hasty action of the Senate sub-committee handling this proposal.

Details concerning the distribution of AAA payments amounting to $10,000 or more await publication of a report requested by the Senate at the urging of Senator Vandenberg. Enough is already known about the huge sums paid to certain large-scale farmers, however, to make it certain that the forthcoming report will be most unpleasant reading for the Administration supporters on the eve of a national election. Every effort will be made, therefore, to convince the public that a repetition of the inconsistencies developed under the AAA will not occur under the new system of agricultural control.

Although graduation of the scale of payments is an obvious and fairly simple device for limiting the size of subsidies, it does not touch the root of the evil. Under the soil conservation plan, as well as under the defunct AAA, the real aim is to decrease production of marketable crops and in this way to raise farm income. In order to insure adherence to scarcity pacts of this sort, subsidies must be paid to large-scale, prosperous farmers as well as to small, hard-pressed growers.

Indeed, the well-to-do farmers with relatively low production costs have to be particularly well remunerated to induce them to agree to cut output. Any curtailment plan which excludes such producers from participation in benefits, or even reduces those benefits substantially, is likely to prove ineffective. It is rather strange that Secretary Wallace now favors graduated payments, although in the past he has strenuously defended the present system as an essential feature of production control.

President Roosevelt's attempt to link graduated rates of benefit, designed to favor the small grower, with graduated taxes on corporate income loses sight of a very important difference. Graduated taxes on net income undoubtedly cut into the profits of corporations. But graduated rates of benefit would not necessarily reduce the profits of farming corporations. The President apparently has forgotten that these payments are made to compensate the recipients for not growing crops that would have yielded profits. If the compensation does not seem adequate, the prospective beneficiary may abandon curtailment plans, and increase his profits by increasing production.

While a reduction of large benefits may afford protection against political assaults, it does nothing whatever to correct the inherent defects of the Administration's restriction plans which aim to improve the position of the farmer by reducing the volume of his output. The way to remedy this wasteful and invidious system of agricultural subsidies is to start afresh upon a new basis. High prices resulting from scarcity reduce foreign outlets for farm products and restrict domestic consumption. The country needs larger markets at home and abroad, obtained by encouraging increased production at lower per unit costs.

To Spite Their Faces.

What may now be termed simply a "noble experiment" has come to an unhappy end with the announcement that the National Symphony Orchestra will not go on with its second season at the Watergate. Thousands of music-lovers who managed to get cooled off last summer while listening to strains of their favorite pieces will be sadly disappointed. And their regret will be accentuated by realization that the "sunset symphonies" have been sacrificed to a relatively petty squabble.

This decision marks the climax of a long-standing disagreement between members of the orchestra association and the local musicians' union. By their unwillingness to permit out-of-town musicians to accept employment here, the "home-town boys" have apparently cut off their noses to spite their faces. It is quite certain now that imported talent will not play to Washingtonians under summer stars or compete with local musicians for jobs. But it is equally certain that the money which local musicians might have earned will thus be denied them.

Few cities are more ideally situated or more receptive to the idea of summer concerts than Washington. To the thousands of grown-ups and children living in stuffy apartments or working in hot offices, the idea of music in the cool of an evening made life a bit easier. The futile controversy that will this year deny the public such pleasure, after it has contributed a considerable sum to make summer as well as winter concerts possible, is no less unfortunate for the orchestra than for its prospective audiences.

Note For Landscapers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The transformation of Washington's parks, once gay with native flowering shrubs, passes into the phase of drab, dark and gloomy exotic evergreens, of English and Irish yew, box and privet. Formalized, stiff and baroque—poor imitations of foreign affairs.

Why do American landscape architects have to use foreign species when we have right here so many beautiful flowering shrubs—dogwood, redbud, mountain ash, laurel, rhododendron? They all thrive in this climate and need no more trimming and annual care than a stiff yew or box hedge. Haven't our landscape architects any imagination or vision to see the possibilities in our native species? It would seem not.

And then there are trees. We seem to have gone wild on the planting of oaks in Washington. Oaks are fine trees, hardy, long-lived, but there are other fine local species.

Why not try sweet gum—a magnificent autumn tree, rivaling the maples, and suitable for street planting? One finds a street in Portland, Oreg., planted with this species—not native there but beautiful, while Washington plants ginkos—a poor shade tree at best and most unsuited for street planting. Why not more black gums and tulip poplars, and American basswood in Washington parks? Is it lack of appreciation of our own native trees?

I have long wondered why American lanscapers have never discovered the sweet gum as an ornamental tree. J. G.

Everyone Welcome.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In today's issue of The Post the president of the National Cathedral Association writes: "People in Washington . . . are proud of it (the cathedral on Mount St. Alban) because it stands for Christian unity, welcomes to its services members of all denominations."

That makes the vote for Christian unity altogether unanimous. What church, large or small, can there be in or around Washington that does not gladly welcome to its services members of all denominations?

Training For V. F. W.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Obviously the members of the self-styled Veterans of Future Wars should be required to undergo some sort of compulsory military training—and like it.

Intensive training similar to that administered the majority of veterans of past wars would suffice to convince these embryo would-be cut-ups that the real deserving veteran is merely being compensated—rewarded for service rendered. A. M. STEPHENS.

J. Edgar Hoover As A Showman.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is neither a criticism nor the cry of a wounded soul. I have written too many daily columns myself to wish to wreathe raspberries around such a competent neck as that of Mr. Westbrook Pegler. Furthermore, he is a personal friend, and I am one of his devout admirers. I rooted for him in 1917 when the admirals of the English navy decided that if they were to keep their minds on their business they would have to jettison Pegler, or whatever is the nautical term for the bum's rush. Mr. Pegler was at the moment in the article of providing proof that he was right when he said that the average British admiral would be quite as efficient if served with a brown sauce and mushrooms and—bowing toward that excellent literateur but misguided gastronomist, Mr. Reginald Wright Kauffman, the Post-Impressionist—garlic.

I continued to be with him in spirit when, as a correspondent with the American armies, he noted that the walls of the heads of several Allied generals had grown together from the inside, the main difference between the Allied heads and the American heads, in his opinion, being that the Allied head had its hair cropped shorter. I happened to be one of a number of other correspondents with the armies who had reached the same conclusion, but as we did not wish to have the sweetest assignment a reporter ever had taken away from us, we only uttered this subversive thought when overtaken by the country wine.

And I've been with him 99 times out of each possible 100 since then. He has poured acid on our favorite national swindle—boxfighting—and jeered at the hairy mammoths who grunt through wrestling matches, and lighted matches under a number of our very best politicians and watched them shrivel. And if he ever gets around to being bilious about the New Deal, I will have a swell morning.

I merely wish to present the other side to his argument in this morning's Post, in re J. Edgar Hoover.

Perhaps Hoover is a showman. If he is, he is the best showman we have ever had in the police business. When he got going, two years ago, thanks to new laws which Attorney General Cummings cajoled through Congress, he knocked several kinds of variegated hell out of the business of crime in this country. It may be showmanship to knock off John Dillinger in a theater alley, but Dillinger had not been disposed to frequent any target ranges where the G-men could get at him. It may have been showmanship to drop a bucket over the head of every one of the kidnapers who were stepping high and wide not many years ago. It may have been showmanship to bust the 10 or 15 gangs of topnotch bank robbers until their innards are hanging from every sagebrush in the West. It may have been showmanship to walk up on Alvin Karpis, the one remaining big shot in bankrobbery, and tell him to get 'em up or go home to heaven in a dense fog.

Mr. Pegler objects to Mr. Hoover's insistence that the agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation continue to be anonymous in the public prints. Yet Mr. Pegler, in his days as a reporter, must have been irritated by the detectives who are so condemned anxious to break into pure reading matter that they conducted their dealings with criminals to that end. Broadly speaking, the more one reads of the charming personalities of the detectives the less frequently does one see pictures of the criminals in handcuffs.

I am not offering a defense of Mr. Hoover, for a man who has done what he has in the last few years does not need one. I only wish to suggest that the public think over his record, and judge him on that record, and not because of any pique Mr. Pegler may feel because he seems to have been the latest of a long line of newspapermen who would like to break into Alcatraz and write a good story about Al Capone and the rest of the "boys," and failed.

I will be willing to quote against Mr. Pegler the things said about Mr. Hoover by Pretty Boy Floyd and Shotgun Ziegler and Ma Barker and Alvin Karpis and Frank Harmon and Machine Gun Kelly and Handsome Jack McGurk and Killer Burke and 50 or 60 other hoodlums who are either proving that stone walls do a prison make or are slowly resolving into whatever original element goes to the make-up of a gun-man. They said far worse things than Peg did—and here's luck to him when he shoots at a target that should be shot at.

A Little Politics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In support of social features of the New Deal, Mr. M. Soames eloquently discusses the effect of green apples upon the internal economy. These effects he credits, with much greater moderation than the Deal's air orators, to the misdemeanors of previous administrations.

Leaving aside that this closed phase is valuable only as ancient history, to stumpers of the Farley type seeking to justify the wisdom of New Deal blunders; that it dealt with a different set of conditions and a hang-over war-developed public psychology, the point is not argued.

At least they had the green apples then, which, permitted to mature, furnished pretty good fodder. What we're afraid of, among a swarm of other fears, is that after four years more of Roosevelt and his world-renowned ensemble of skit artists and jugglers, there won't be enough of the product left to provide a full-sized ache. The source of supply will have been hacked off at the base.

It seems generally evident that three-fourths of the Roosevelt fetishes ensure the defeat of his desirable social reforms. That part of the public which exerts its skull has lost faith in those who seek to dynamite their way through the fog when power lights, foghorns and a sense of restraint are available to get the craft to port.

Voters for the '32 Democratic platform prefer to see those aims advanced under "anybody but Roosevelt"—after observing the fate of that platform and the course of government.

Their vote still goes hell bent to Mr. Warburg, who, like some of the rest of us, would be ready to approve the Roosevelt government—if with the aid of the Lick telescope and the F. B. I. they could isolate something (other than half-baked panaceas) to approve.

Benches In The Parks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you please take some action through your paper to remedy this situation? My writing to you is inspired by the courageous fight you wage for any just cause, particularly when it affects a great number of people.

Some of our parks, torn up for months, are now being used, but only by those wishing to pass through them, and by dogs. This is particularly true of the parks on Pennsylvania Avenue, at 18th and 20th streets. There are no benches and the available ground space has been reduced in favor of flower beds and other forms of plant life.

What purpose are they serving as compared with the past when even then their capacity was limited because of the too few park benches available to the heavy apartment-house population in the neighborhood? They have been transformed from useful, quiet recreation places into "garden spots" of a practical use. Evidently the transformation has been accomplished by, and with the permission of, the present-day "theorists" who probably have sufficient space of their own in the suburban areas.

What an enormous benefit would result from more benches around the Ellipse, and along Seventeenth street, which afford much shade on hot afternoons, particularly on Sundays.

The essence of the whole matter is—are we to have merely beautiful parks which serve no practical use? Something should certainly be done about it. A SUBSCRIBER.

Cruelty To Horses.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During my frequent visits to Washington, I am distressed to note the increasing instances of cruelty to horses.

The potent influence of The Post against it might serve as a reminder to many of the horseback riders who enjoy the beautiful parks and bridle paths yet are both thoughtless and wantonly cruel.

The Post Impressionist

Of course, it's a lucky horse that wins at Bowie—lucky for its owner and all whose money it carries. But it's a luckier horse—for itself—that can run through a modern war at all. Ninety-nine out of every hundred horses entering a race finish—in some form or other. Not anything like one-half of one per cent of the horses entered in a war have more chance of coming out alive than the traditional snowball has of escaping undissolved from the infernal regions.

This columnist sacrificed two horses to the World War, and to the Army of His Imperial Majesty George V—most unwillingly. The British Expeditionary Force took our "Squire" for the Scots Greys, because "Squire" was gray. The same B. E. F. took our favorite mare, "Bonnie" for the Scots Greys, because, "Bonnie" being black, they could color her gray—until they reached the Flanders Front, where all horses were immediately colored khaki.

But the Post-Impressionist spoke of one exception a few months ago and has now come across another. The latter went through the more than four years of the World War. His fitting name was Warrior. He was the preferred mount of Gen. Jack Seely—now Lord Mottistone—who headed the Canadian Cavalry.

Picture a bay gelding some 15:2 hands high—a thoroughbred. The head is the small head of the truly intelligent horse; the girth is of the depth that assures endurance. The legs are the short legs of the ideal charger.

There you have Warrior as, at the age of 6, he came to Seely, from Yafford on the Isle of Wight.

Seely rode Warrior in the advance to the Marne—rode him at the First Battle of Ypres, and through the Somme. Man and beast were together in the thick of thingse at Paschendaele. Warrior helped to capture Equanccourt and Guyencourt—did his bit during both the major actions of Cambrai.

At Ferte-sous-Jouarre, a German shell descended among the British horses in a crowded corral. Warrior was one of the few survivors.

Again a high explosive missile burst so near to him that he was bowled on his back and completely covered by earth—all except one foreleg. He came up smiling.

A shell that broke in two, instead of exploding, divided Warrior's equine neighbor into neat halves. Warrior wasn't touched

An enemy aviator, flying low, emptied his machine-gun at Warrior and Seely. Every shot was a miss.

Warrior was buried alive in the ruins of a French villa. He suffered merely a little lameness of the shoulder.

None of the General's other mounts fared so well. Most of them fared badly. On five fatal occasions, when Seely had left Warrior in the rear, to get a badly needed, though unwanted, rest—or to recover from some minor hurt—the replacement-horse was killed under his rider.

By 1918 and the Battle of Amiens, Warrior was a veteran and ready for his greatest feat.

You remember the main attack of the Canadian Cavalry in that engagement. Well ahead of it rode Warrior, carrying Seely—headed for the Bois de Moreuil. The ground to be covered was swept by bullets—but Warrior beat the bullets. He covered the terrible track at racing speed and came to panting pause only when he reached the objective, and Seely could safely plant his flag there and establish Brigade Headquarters.

What's more, the brute liked it! Always alert, "yet placid and steady as a rock in the cataclysm of battle," he was confused by no emergency—never gave anything except his best. The Cavalry Journal assures us: On all occasions, when the decision was taken to advance, Warrior became a changed horse. He would quiver, not at all from fear, but from the joy of battle." He went into a fight with ears pricked and nostrils wide, with his eyes eager and with every muscle in happy play.

General Seely that was, Lord Mottistone that is, has written a book about Warrior (My Horse Warrior, Hodder & Stoughton, Publishers, London). He gives this animal unstinted praise, and no small credit for Seely's own successes—how the horse bore him to victory, how Warrior's "vivid personality" helped his master "to gain the confidence of thousands of brave men."

But we suspect Warrior hasn't read the book. We suspect that his chief satisfaction is telling his own war-reminiscences to his boyhood friends at Yafford.

For he's back home again, ending his days in good health and excellent pastures. He's 28 years old.

We hope, for his sake, that his non-combatant companions are better listeners than some human non-combatants whom we could mention!

All:
Five little girls with cash are we
Without a care financially;
No other babes before or since
Have ever done so well as quints.

Cecile:
Tho teething, all is joy and bliss;
What's teething in a life like this?

Emile:
When I've a tummyache I know
I'm simply getting too much dough.

Yvonne:
I've got a pain, but I don't cry—
I'll sell it to some movie guy!

Annette:
A pin is sticking in me; Good!
'Twill make a short for Hollywood!

All:
The joy of being quints is this:
We operate like one big biz;
No matter how we act or feel
It makes a big time movie reel.

Dr. Dafoe:
There! There! My little babes, be still!
You know quite well you're never ill.
You have no ache; I disavow it;
The government will not allow it!

David Croll (Ontario Minister of Welfare):
My little darlings, toodle—oo!
Look what your guardian has for you!

The Quints:
The goody-goody man has come—
I'll bet he has a sugar plum.

Croll:
No sugar plum, I must confess;
But kiddies, you've another guess.

The Quints:
A picture book? A rattle new?
A pretty doll with ribbon blue?

Croll:
To infant toys each girlie clings—
They ought to yearn for bigger things.

The Quints:
Your gift, dear guardian, relate—
We cannot wait, we cannot wait!

Croll:
Well, here it is; just look at that—
Six lovely checks all big and fat,
From movies and the press, of course—
And lots of things that you indorse.
(The quints examine the checks and hand them back.)

The Quints:
We could not take them if we tried—
Because they are not certified!

Dr. Dafoe:
Ahem, I think my little darlings dear,
We should make an exception here;
Things certified have been my rule
In raising kids . . . but I'm no fool!

Tax Bill

tee's case for moderation of the Administration's plan. Warning that steeply graduated undivided profits taxes ultimately might lead to tapping of State and National Government resources to maintain the industrial structure, George argued that no facts or comprehensive studies were available to justify present application of the President's plan.

George denied that all earnings withheld by corporations represent "tax avoidance," and said it was impossible to "single out" or estimate the amount of avoidance involved. He questioned the wisdom of penalizing the mass of corporations for abuses of which some were suspected.

George described the Administration's proposals as "an untried and experimental program."

Substitute Offered.

When George had finished, Black took the floor to offer the Administration substitute framed by himself and La Follette. Briefly, they proposed that the present corporation income tax of 12½ to 15 per cent be continued, that no additional tax be imposed on the first 20 per cent of earnings retained by a corporation, that a 20 per cent surtax be imposed on the next 20 per cent, and a 30 per cent levy be superimposed on undivided profits of more than 40 per cent. The Black-La Follette plan called for a flat $15,000 exemption from the undivided profits tax.

Taking the floor in defense of this plan, Black contended the proposal had been so moderated as to impose no undivided profits tax whatsover on 230,000 out of 257,000 corporations in the country.

"This," he said, "is a fight between those who believe in imposing additional taxes on those best able to pay, and those who insist, in spite of tax evasion, that we should wait."

Majority Leader Robinson would make no prophecies last night on the outcome of the struggle, but King said the Black-La Follette substitute would be defeated easily.

Business Strikes Again.

As the embattled Senate drove the tax bill toward passage, two organized business groups—the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers—struck again at both House and Senate measures.

Conceding that the Senate bill is the less drastic of the two, the chamber in a statement declared the measure still is "open to many serious objections," and would have "destructive effects upon companies."

A motion by the Democratic whip—J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois—"that this bill be postponed and returned to the committee to await action following the next general election" was still pending when the Senate recessed.

"I cannot see any immediate need for this tax bill," said Lewis. "The bill should be withdrawn from Congress. * * * We are unnecessarily alarming the merchant, frightening the producer and giving opportunity to fill the toiler with the effects of alarms and dangers which will be heralded to him from every source that is opposing the measures of the Administration."

Chapter Twelve.

The Drift Toward Dictatorship.

If there is one thing that emerges clearly from the ghastly experience of 1914-1918, it is that democracy cannot stand war. A nation fighting for its life places itself under too great a handicap if it attempts during a war to govern itself on the democratic principle.

And so, no matter how greatly a people may cherish its freedom and its right of self-government, it will submit itself cheerfully to rigorous and arbitrary authority in order to protect its national safety against aggression.

This, however, is only true so long as a people believes in the rightness of its national cause.

We submitted cheerfully to rigorous and arbitrary authority in 1917-1918. We did this because we recognized that our normal democratic form of government was by its very nature too slow and cumbersome to cope with the swiftly arising exigencies of modern warfare.

But, when the war was over, we resumed, or intended to resume, our normal method of self-government.

The same thing was true in France and England.

In other countries, notably in Russia, Germany and Austria-Hungary, the war produced a dissatisfaction with the previous forms of government so intense that revolutions took place and constitutional democracies, most of them rather similar to ours, were set up.

It looked for a time as though the war had actually served to protect and even propagate the democratic principle.

Need of Strong Leaders Brings on Dictators.

But the backlash of war brought economic disturbance. People began to lose confidence in their ability so to govern themselves as to give reasonable security to their country as a whole, or to individuals within their country. Cries went up for "a strong leader." And, as always happens, there were men waiting to seize the reins of government, getting authority for themselves by promising security to all.

Stalin Hitler. Starhemberg, Horthy, Mussolini, Pilsudski.

Russia, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Italy, Poland, all dictatorships.

First one man, then another and another, came into supreme control of the people's affairs, with the result that, throughout the world, we now see a tendency to concentrate arbitrary power in the government, and to concentrate government in one man.

Why?

Because of many interwoven causes, most of them having their origin in the World War. But primarily because of one cause:

The intensification of the desire for national self-sufficiency.

Most wars arise over an economic bone, such as a market for surplus products, or coveted source of an essential raw material.

For fear of war and the consequent cutting off of essential supplies nations seek to become self-contained.

Self-containment means the elimination of imports.

The imports of one nation are the exports of other nations.

Thus, for fear of war, the nations of the world are doing the very thing that provokes war.

But, beyond that, self-sufficiency can only be attained, or approximated, under a government of arbitrary authority. It involves a strict government control over imports and exports. This in turn involves a control over production and consumption, which cannot but lead to precisely the sort of complete regimentation that we see today in Italy or Germany.

No people will long remain contented under the rule of a Hitler or a Mussolini. And, when the people over whom a dictator rules become discontented, history shows that the dictator almost invariably goes to war.

We have only to read the newspapers to see that in this respect history is repeating itself today.

And so we see the full extent of the tragedy.

Democracy jettisoned in a feverish quest of national security. Security sought by means of national self-containment. And national self-containment provoking the economic conflict and the social unrest which lead to war.

Of all the major belligerent countries, only France, Great Britain and the United States succeeded in maintaining their constitutional democracies. And, since March of 1933, the case of the United States has become extremely doubtful.

Roosevelt Repudiations Cause of U. S. Doubts,

But—

If this Administration has brought us to the brink of relinquishing our right of self-government and becoming vassal subjects of an arbitrary Federal authority—

If this Administration has interfered with the economic life of our country to an unwarranted degree—

If this Administration has played havoc with our currency, dishonored our national promises, and spent the people's money heedlessly and wastefully in pursuit of a strange mixture of Utopian dreams and cynically practical partisan purposes—

If all these things are true, they are true largely because Mr. Roosevelt repudiated his pre-election promises and gave us something different than what we had voted for. They are largely true because Mr. Roosevelt is Mr. Roosevelt.

But they are also true because we have failed to exercise diligently that fundamental right to govern ourselves which is the essence of America.

We, just like the weary and distressed peoples of Europe, threw up our hands and clamored for a leader.

We, just like the weary and distressed peoples of Europe, began to think of government as something separate from ourselves—as having power to do what we ourselves were unable to do.

And we, just like the people in other countries, began to think of the government's pocketbook as something quite separate from our own pocketbook.

If Franklin D. Roosevelt was truly great, he would not have encouraged and taken advantage of these manifestations of weakness and distress.

He would have told the people that the Government had no power other than the people's own power.

He would have told them that the Government had no money other than the people's own money—as he certainly realized when a candidate for office.

Instead of pointing out again and again these two fundamental truths, as, I repeat, a truly great man would have done, Franklin D. Roosevelt chose to cater to the demand for miracles born of misery, and to lead this Nation upon the heels of Russia, Germany, Austria, and Italy, away from the democratic principle and toward dictatorship.

Cannot Pose Now as Champion of Democracy.

It seems clear that—in spite of his extraordinary agility — Mr. Roosevelt cannot now pose and be re-elected as the champion of the democratic principle. Astute politician that he is, he must know that, were he to change his course again, he would lose the support of those upon whose ignorance and gullibility he has been preying with unfulfillable promises, without gaining the support of those who have learned how to evaluate his promises and his avowed convictions in the light of past performance.

In the election next November it is clear that Mr. Roosevelt must stand for a continuance of the world-wide trend away from democracy.

If he is re-elected, it seems inevitable that the trend will continue further—just how far no one can tell.

If he is defeated—then it is quite possible that the tide will turn throughout the world. For, if we succeed in re-establishing the democratic principle, and if other nations see us prosperous and happy because we have succeeded, the days of Stalin, Hitler and of Mussolini may well be numbered.

That is why I say that the decision we shall reach this year may well affect the history of Western civilization.

I have heard it said that, no matter what any one may say or do, Mr. Roosevelt is sure to be re-elected because the millions on the relief rolls and the millions of farmers will not "vote against Santa Claus."

This, I think, is slander of the American people.

There are millions of American citizens on relief who know of their own bitter personal experience the humiliation they have had to suffer in order to have their morale "protected" by the political bureaucracy of Mr. Farley's machine. There are millions more who have tried, and are still trying, unsuccessfully, to obtain a hearing.

There are millions of farmers who disagree with Mr. Roosevelt in his stated belief that it would be a catastrophe if they once more became "lords on their own farms, free to grow whatever and how much of it they pleased."

It all comes back to the same thing.

Citizens Must Exercise Duties as Free Men.

The medicine men in Washington have been teaching us to look to them for a solution of all our problems. Through using what Mr. Roosevelt calls "the organized power of the Nation"—meaning the arbitrary power of the Executive and his bureaucracy—we are told that we shall reach "the more abundant life."

I, for one, think we shall reach it through our own efforts, or not at all.

And our own efforts must be directed, not only to the performance of our individual tasks, but to the intelligent and vigilant exercise of our duties as free citizens of a free republic.

If we have learned this lesson from Mr. Roosevelt—and can show by defeating him this November that we have learned it—then future generations may well have cause for being grateful to him.

Ask yourself these questions:

1. What is it that has made America prosperous in the past? What is it that is slowly but surely making her prosperous again today?

Has it been, and is it still, the skillful contriving of men, or groups of men, in Washington?

Or is it her God-given natural resources and the intelligent enterprise of her people in using them?

2. What is it that has made America the land of hope and opportunity?

Is it because men in Washington have provided, and are providing, hope and opportunity by law and regulation?

Or is it because our people have insisted upon remaining a free people—upon governing themselves—and upon not permitting any one man, or group of men, to enjoy more than a carefully limited delegation of their own authority?

And finally:

3. What is it that you want for the future?

A state in which reliance for the preservation of freedom, opportunity, prosperity, and happiness is placed upon such wisdom as may be concentrated in a small group of men in Washington—a state in which the Government is responsible for the welfare of the people, and in which, because it is responsible, the Government must regulate and control the lives of the people?

Or a state in which reliance for the preservation of freedom, opportunity, prosperity and happiness is placed by the people upon their own ability to utilize with energy and intelligence the resources which Providence has placed at their disposal, using their Government as a servant toward the attainment of this end?

The one is what Mr. Roosevelt is trying, and, if re-elected, will go on trying to create.

The other is what our forefathers actually created.

Speaker Byrns

of the Democratic Congressional campaign committee.

"Uncle Joe" to his constituents, he was a shrewd politician, a masterful parliamentary strategist and a fair-minded chairman and presiding officer whose personal qualities won praise from political opponents.

He was a lawyer by profession, an avid reader of history, biography and detective stories and a fisherman whenever a let-up in his work allowed him to indulge in that pastime. He liked to travel by airplane.

Marked by Barber's Joke.

Close to 6 feet 2 inches tall, he was rangy and soft-voiced. Rugged features were accentuated by beetling, shaggy eyebrows that lent themselves to caricature. The eyebrows were the result of a practical joke played on Byrns in his youth when he went to sleep in a barber's chair after asking for "a clean shave." The razor wielder carried out the request to the letter. The eyebrows grew out bushy and, as Byrns' son said in later years, "marked him for life."

Byrns' service on the pivotal Appropriations Committee began early in his Congressional career, which started in March, 1909. By the time that the election of Woodrow Wilson brought his party control of the national Government, Byrns was near the top of the Democratic membership of the committee and in the World War he was chairman of the sub-committee which guided the huge war appropriations through the house.

Was Ranking Member.

When the Republicans regained power, Byrns was ranking minority member of the committee, and through the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations worked as hard to turn off the tap as he did to turn it on for Wilson. Democratic ascendancy returned in 1931 and Byrns became chairman, resigning the position when he was chosen party floor leader in 1933. He stepped from the latter post to the speakership following the death of Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois.

Byrns was made chairman of the National Democratic Congressional Campaign in 1929 and it was a matter of pride to him that it was under his leadership that his party regained control of the House.

He was born on a farm near Cedar Hill, in Robertson County, on Tennessee's northern border, July 20, 1869. He was the eldest of six children and through much of his boyhood attended a rural school. But later his parents took their brood to Nashville so the children could have better schooling.

After being graduated from high school, Byrns entered Vanderbilt University, earning his tuition by working in the tobacco fields of Robertson County during vacations. He took an academic course for two years, then switched to the law school and was graduated with the degree of LL.B. in 1890. After one more summer of farm work he hung up his shingle in Nashville.

Elected to Legislature.

Politics opened a natural pathway to the acquaintanceship needed by a young lawyer and Byrns, four years after he began practice, was elected to the State Legislature. He served three successive terms in the House from 1895 to 1900, being Speaker in his third term, then went to the State Senate for one term. A campaign for district attorney general of Davidson County in 1902 ended in defeat, the only time he was beaten at the polls.

Byrns was a Presidential elector in 1904 and in 1908 became a candidate for Congress. He had to defeat a redoubtable campaigner, John Wesley Gaines, to win the nomination, but turned the trick, carried the November election and took his seat in the national House March 4, 1909.

Mrs. Byrns was the former Julia Woodard, of Nashville. They were married August 23, 1898, and their one son, Joseph W., jr., became his father's law partner.

Won Renomination.

Except for a case of illness, Byrns might not have reached the Speakership. In 1930 he announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator and laid plans for a State-wide campaign. But after he had made one speech illness forced his withdrawal from the race. Instead he sought, and won, renomination to the House.

The "Hermitage District" which thus renewed its faith in Byrns, got this name from the fact that it contains the homestead of Andrew Jackson. Officially it is the Sixth Tennessee District, embracing five counties, with Nashville as the center, in the north central section of the State. It was primarily Byrns territory and there were more people in it who called him "Joe" than there were who addressed him as "Mr. Byrns."

Probably one reason was that Byrns had a reputation for making good on his campaign promises. The story is told that in his first campaign he promised a crowd at Dover, in Stewart County, that he would get an appropriation for a lock and dam on the river at that point. Friends warned him he had promised the impossible, that others had failed to put the project through the National House, but Byrns reiterated his promise and in his first term maneuvered the appropriation through Congress.

Treasury "Watch Dog."

With a flair for "talking out" differences with opponents, coupled with his steadily mounting seniority, Byrns' influence in the National House grew through the years. He gained a reputation of being a "watch dog of the Treasury," counted himself a libetal and, on occasions, followed his own convictions rather than the party program. But he was enough of a regular to put aside his personal predilections as a "dry" and, in 1932, accept the Democratic decision to work for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

In 1931 he was chairman of the special economy committee of the House and also served on the Democratic joint policy committee of the House and Senate. He helped write the national budget law and once sponsored a bill combining the War and Navy Departments into a department of defense, explaining it would save $100,000,000 yearly.

The economic crash in the waning months of the Hoover Administration and its resultant backlash in politics served to thrust Byrns further into the limelight as one of the "key men" in the recovery program of President Franklin Roosevelt.

"I supported the President in all of his recovery measures without a single exception and, as majority leader, was in charge of maneuvering those bills on the floor of the House," he said pridefully at the close of the Seventy-third Congress. His loyalty to the White House led him to support the Executive's opposition to cash payment of the bonus to World War veterans and to warn the bipartisan majority which voted for it that they were jeopardizing the whole recovery program.

Saved Recovery Bills.

Defeat of an attempted Republican filibuster in the closing days of the busy 1934 session was regarded by Byrns as one of his greatest single feats. The maneuver would have blocked action on several measures which the Administration considered essential.

Choked Filibuster.

Byrn's tactics in this emergency showed his talent as a strategist. He quietly laid his plans with Democratic members of the Rules Committee, and the Republicans discovered the situation only after all arrangements for the Byrns coup had been perfected.

The plan was to amend the rules so that Byrns, as floor leader, could move for a recess instead of an adjournment at the end of each legislative day. This would make the record show each succeeding day's meeting as a continuation of the preceding day's session, keeping the first day's program before the House.

Despite Republican pleas, this amendment went through. The Tennesseean also was empowered to move for a suspension of all rules by a majority vote.

"The Republicans called this dictatorial," said Byrns, "but it choked their filibuster to death and we got all our bills through the House."

While he was floor leader Byrns followed the policy of having Administration bills introduced by the chairmen of the committees which considered them. Consequently his name appeared as sponsor of only one of the Roosevelt relief measures, the bill setting up the Civilian Conservation Corps. He offered this one because the chairman of the Labor Committee chose not to introduce it.

Unanimous Choice for Speaker.

Byrns went before the House as candidate for the Speakership on January 3, 1935, backed by the unanimous indorsement of the Democratic caucus. The party held 322 seats, the Republicans 102, Farmer-Labor 3, Progressives 7, and there was one vacancy. The formal ballot recorded 316 votes for Byrns. Addressing the House, the new Speaker said:

"I subscribe to the platform and principles of my party and shall endeavor, so far as I properly can, to assist in the enactment of legislation in accordance with those policies.

"But I have been in a minority, too, and understand its problems. While I shall help the majority to carry out its plans, I shall be equally insistent upon preserving the rights of the minority to debate and record its position on all public questions."

Party Hold Strengthened.

The first act of the House under Byrns' speakership was to rescind a rule which the Democrats had forced through in 1931 and which provided that a committee could be discharged from consideration of a bill upon petition of 145 members. By this action the House reverted to a law dating from the "czar" days of Speaker "Joe" Cannon, and requiring that a majority of the entire body must petition the Speaker to bring a bill out of committee.

The change strengthened the hold of the party upon what some observers had predicted would be a top-heavy and undisciplined majority. The presence of 109 new members and reports of some legislation which they had in mind, were the determining factors in persuading the Democratic leadership to give up the more liberal practice.

Body of Andrew Will Be Cremated

Gloucester, Mass., June 3 (U.P.).—Memorial services at which a Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi and a Protestant minister will officiate, will be held for the late United States Representative A. Piatt Andrew, 63, Massachusetts Republican, according to unusual funeral arrangements announced tonight.

In accordance with his one wish that "the body be not exposed to view after death," Andrew's remains will be cremated "with the least possible delay, bother and expense" before twilight Sunday, when memorial services will be held.

Andrew, one-time director of the United States Mint and a pioneer repealist of prohibition days, died at his Eastern Point home early today after more than five weeks' illness with influenza and high blood pressure. Immediate cause of death was given as arterio sclerosis.

Among his private papers was found a memorandum containing funeral instructions. It said in part: "I wish that it (any memorial service) be nonsectarian, nonofficial, without speeches or usual funeral hymns and that it consist of good instrumental music well played by a quartet or trio. * * *"

Round Table Talks Feature Rural Sessions

1,500 of 7,000 Delegates to Attend Banquet, Hear Wallace Tonight.

The huge conference of Associated Country Women of the World, largest gathering of women ever to assemble in Washington, yesterday broke up into small discussion groups, similar to county institutes, to talk over informally the practical problems confronting rural housewives.

At the rural education round table, Mrs. C. M. Scott, of Horam, Sussex, England, pictured city dwellers as the underprivileged and urged the country women to be more tolerant of those who come into the rural districts.

She appealed to her listeners to tear down their stone walls and high hedges so townspeople driving by can enjoy the country yards and gardens.

The leader of the discussion group, Mrs. Edward Young, of New York State, suggested that the American farm women write to Mrs. Scott about their struggle to rid the countryside of city signboards.

Other groups centered their discussions on health, library service, handicrafts, radio, art, drama, organizations for young people, movies, folk dancing and singing, and study of local history.

Tonight the conference will reach the climax of the five-day session with a banquet at the Willard Hotel with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, veteran women's suffragist, as the speakers.

At least 7,000 women have registered for the conference.

Most of the rural homemakers came to Washington on budgets which compel them to live much more modestly than the usual convention attenders. The banquet tonight at 7 will be in keeping with that economy program, costing each person $1.50.

Means of combatting the high death rate among women in childbirth formed the main part of the discussion at the round table on health. Mrs. Caldwell Thomas, of Melbourne, Australia, told how farm women in central Australia can always get in immediate touch with a physician by using a small wireless set. Every home is equipped with a set.

The physician, a member of the Flying Doctors Squadron, takes off in his plane with a nurse for the home of the patient as soon as he receives the call. By this method a physician is able to serve farm homes in a 300-mile radius.

Mrs. Thomas told also of the Bush Nurses Association in Victoria, composed of young women who, through four years' training, are competent to act as midwives. Each nurse has an automobile and a horse to reach every home, no matter how isolated, in a 25-mile radius.

Mrs. C. Nelson Beck, of Charlottesville, discussion leader of the health group, said she thought farm women were inclined to neglect their own health, so absorbed were they in the health of their children. She advised the women to have physical examinations semiannually or at least annually.

Bethesda Market Women to Sell Products to Country Delegates

Farm women from Maryland's widely known Bethesda Market will go through the familiar motions this morning of selling fruit, vegetables, flowers and dairy products.

But today their customers will be other farm women and their stand will be in the Government Auditorium, on Constitution avenue between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, instead of in the Bethesda market building.

Most of the buying and selling will be only a formality, a part of the exhibition arranged for the Associated Country Women of the World, meeting here for their third triennial conference.

If any member of the association wishes to buy outright she may do so, but the market will not be open to the public.

In the background of the Maryland marketing exhibit are large placards showing the score used in judging butter, cake and bread. Also on display is a copy of the market rules, showing that each woman must sell her products at prices set by an executive board, that she must be a member of a home demonstration group, that she must live on a farm, and that she must have her products checked at regular intervals by the extension service of the Department of Agriculture.

The 7,000 women attending the conference are expected to make a tour of the exhibits today between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m.

The Michigan delegation has a booth illustrating the study of child development by the farm women of that State. On display is furniture especially adapted to the child's needs.

Ohio women have set up a model kitchen emphasizing the importance of convenient storage, comfortable working conditions and attractive surroundings for the rural homemaker and her family.

The New Jersey delegation has arranged a replica of a schoolroom in Warren County to illustrate the hot lunch project farm women are carrying out in that State.

To show that the machine age has not altered completely the attention given in the home to clothing, the New Hampshire women have an exhibit consisting of two sewing rooms, one modern, the other in the colonial period. The latter room contains a grandmother spinning, a mother knitting and a girl doing patchwork. The modern room shows a 15-year-old boy pressing his own trousers, a 4-H Club girl cutting out a dress and the mother fitting the lining into a coat on a dress form.

Another feature of the New Hampshire exhibit is a dress and smock made from grain bags.

Conference Program Listed

Today.

10:00 A. M. to 1:00 P. M. — United States Government Auditorium. Presiding, Miss Florence Hall. Music, Farm Women's Chorus, Iowa. Motion pictures, dramatic skits and conducted tours to booths will be used to indicate how the home demonstration staff of the Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture and the State colleges of agriculture, co-operating with rural women's organizations and/or farm organizations, offers educational services to all rural homemakers in the United States.

2:30 P. M. to 4:00 P. M. — Delegates from the member organizations from the different countries will be available to give information and answer questions regarding the work of their respective societies. (Young Women's Christian Association, Seventeenth and K streets northwest.)

7:00 P. M. — Banquet in the Willard Hotel ballroom, tenth floor. United States Department of Agriculture Chorus. Presiding, Miss Grace E. Frysinger, chairman, United States groups. Speakers: The Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and several overseas delegates.

spoke were delegates to the A. C. W. W. conference from 15 foreign countries and thousands of farm women from the United States. In spite of a threatening storm, more than 2,000 drove to Mount Vernon following the afternoon session in the Government Auditorium.

The wreath-laying ceremony concluded yesterday's program.

Mrs. Brigden, one of the two women from the United States who attended the first triennial conference of the association, in Vienna in 1930, told before she left for the historic estate of the difficult time she had in learning much about Martha Washington.

"There were hundreds of volumes about Washington, there were his letters and a history of his accomplishments, but there was scarcely anything about Martha," Mrs. Brigden said.

After much research, she managed to learn that the mistress of Mount Vernon was "a thorough housekeeper, looking after every detail of household affairs, with a buch of keys always hanging by her side."

While attending the conference of the A. C. W. W., Mrs. Brigden is a guest at the White House. Yesterday Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt took the New York State delegation through the Executive Mansion.

Farm Women AreEntertained At Luncheons

Mrs. Dern, Mrs. Coffee and Mrs. Gilchrist Among Day's Hostesses.

Mrs. George Dern, wife of the Secretary of War, entertained at a garden party yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in honor of the Utah and Nebraska delegates who are in Washington to attend the conference of the Country Women of the World. It was one of several parties given for groups of delegates. Assisting the hostess were the wives of the Senators and Representatives from Utah and Nebraska; her daughter, Mrs. Harry Baxter, and her sister, Mrs. Randall Curtis, of Sioux City.

Mrs. Hary B. Coffee, wife of Representative Coffee, entertained at two luncheons yesterday. In the absence of Representative Coffee, who is out of town, she acted as hostess to a group of 45 delegates to the convention from the Fifth District of Nebraska for whom she gave a luncheon in the Speaker's dining room at the Capitol at 11:15 a. m.

Honors Mrs. Clark.

At 1 o'clock Mrs. Coffee entertained at the Shoreham, at a luncheon in the main dining room in compliment to Mrs. D. Worth Clark, wife of Representative Clark, who is leaving Friday for the summer. Others at the luncheon included Mrs. J. J. Dempsey, Mrs. Charles E. McLaughlin, Mrs. Harold D. Cooley, Mrs. Ralph E. Church, Mrs. Wall Doxey, Mrs. Herron Pearson, Mrs. Edward C. Moran, jr., Mrs. Ray Van Orsdel, Mrs. Homer Greunther, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Miss Helen Wear and Miss Helen Morrow.

Representative and Mrs. Fred Gilchrist entertained last night at dinner at the Shoreham for a group of 40 women delegates here from Iowa. Mrs. Marvis Allen, daughter of the hosts, assisted.

Among those present were Mrs. Joe Oakes, Mrs. Fred Rowe, Mrs. Russell Lair, Mrs. Everett Louge and Miss Margaret Pheil, all of Graettinger; Miss Vick Walters, Mrs. Fred Laird, Miss Pauline Trimble, Miss Kveta Vondreck, of Rockwell City; Mrs. Earl Saxton, Mrs. Griffith, and Mrs. Everett, of Carroll; Mrs. Jay Ryon, Mrs. Ruth Hicks, Mrs. Brinkman, of Pocahontas County; Miss Daisy Williams, of Iowa Falls, and Miss Marjorie Chollett, with a group of 16 others from Hancock County.

A luncheon was given by chairmen of the local Washington committees who have been active in plans for the triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World yesterday for a group of officers and foreign delegates. The hostesses for the luncheon, held at the American Association of University Women headquarters, were Mrs. H. J. Nichols, Mrs. Paul Howe, Mrs. Karl Fenning, Mrs. R. Chapline, Miss Helen Atwater, Mrs. Ernest Danly, Mrs. Mary Meek Atkeson, Mrs. Charles J. Brand, Mrs. Lester G. Wilson, Mrs. Robey Evans, Mrs. Albert Goss, Mrs. Arthur Esgate, Mrs. W. I. Myers, Mrs. F. F. Hill, Mrs. Campbell and Miss Grace Frysinger.

Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, wife of Representative Lundeen, of Minnesota, and Mrs. Elmer Benson, wife of Senator Benson, of Minnesota, gave an informal supper last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Morell, 4824 Montgomery lane, Bethesda, Md., in honor of Minnesota delegtaes.

Among the guests were Miss Florence Lang, Mrs. Louis Haris, Mrs. Alec Sayolinen, Mrs. A. L. Drawz, Mrs. Ernest Beyer, Miss Mabel Fertig, Mrs. A. J. Miller, Mrs. Elroy Vaux, Mrs. E. Henning, all of Duluth, Minn.; Mrs. Nels Nelson and Mrs. Elizabeth Spriestersbach, of Virginia; Mrs. George Perham, of Iron; Mrs. Lewis Minion, Mrs. W. J. Lovett, Mrs. C. E. and Miss A. E. Morell, Miss Gena Hexeem, Mrs. O. A. Johnston, Mrs. George A. Perham, Miss Claudia Albrecht, Miss Emily Kneubuhl, Mrs. S. W. Maurer, Mrs. C. F. Bang, Mrs. Katherine K. Ansley, Miss Eves Whitfield, Miss Myrtle Bang, Mrs. C. R. Poncin, Mrs. W. F. Merrill, Miss Gladys Johnson, also Dr. and Mrs. Determan, of Minnesota. Mrs. Determan is a member of the State board of control.

...AND KNOW WHAT YOU'RE DRINKING!
GUNTHER'S BEER

Why every gin drink needs the Liqueur quality* of Gordon's Gin

When you order a gin drink at the bar—or mix one yourself at home—consider this fact: For 167 years—Gordon's has been the base around which many of the world's famous gin drinks have been created! The reason is—Gordon's has that important liqueur quality and higher proof—94.4, which means greater strength, sustained flavor. That is why drinks never taste thin with Gordon's Gin—and why Gordon's is the largest selling gin in the world.

AVAILABLE IN VARIOUS SIZES

LIQUEUR QUALITY*
Gordon's Gin is not, of course, a liqueur—it is not sweet—it is very dry. Gordon's attains liqueur quality through an exclusive formula—167 years old. Gordon's juniper berries are imported. Then aged over a period of years until ready to release their full, ripe, luscious flavor. Gordon's Gin is the heart of the distillate. It is crystal clear. Made with 100% grain neutral spirits. Its quality is tested every fifteen minutes. Thus with Gordon's Gin you get RICHER FLAVOR—VELVETY SMOOTHNESS—LIQUEUR QUALITY.

HIGHER PROOF—94.4
GREATER STRENGTH. Gordon's has found the higher proof, 94.4, to be the precise strength for perfect gin drinks. Gordon's pays a higher tax for this greater strength, but it means rickeys, cocktails, Tom Collins and other gin drinks that are always full-flavored! DRINKS NEVER TASTE THIN WITH GORDON'S GIN.

GOOD NEWS! GORDON'S GIN IS NOW MUCH LOWER IN PRICE!
100% NEUTRAL SPIRITS DISTILLED FROM GRAIN

Fat Girls Get The Go-By—Slim Girls Win Men

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

Here's a way to get rid of ugly fat that works hand in hand with Nature. Millions of people are losing millions of pounds of flabby flesh and getting back slender figures, without the need of starvation diets or back-breaking exercises.

Medical science has discovered that one of the causes of too much fat lies in a little gland. It is the duty of this tiny gland to make about one drop and a half every day of a vital fluid. This helps the body "burn" up food and excess fatty tissues just as a good draft of air helps the furnace to burn up coal without forming "clinkers". If this little gland doesn't make this drop and a half of fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat.

Doctors correct this condition by feeding this little gland the substance it lacks—and Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is published in every package so you know what you are taking.

So don't waste time and money with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Go to your druggist today and get a box of Marmola. Try this simple, easy way to get rid of excess fat.

Party Given By Women's G. O. P. Unit

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Rain dampened but did not spoil the garden party given yesterday by the League of Republican Women at the home of Senator and Mrs. James J. Davis on Massachusetts avenue. About 400 women played cards at tables arranged about the grounds, and more came for the program of the Venable dancer, which was nearly over before the downpour drove the young performers and their audinece indoors.

Mrs. Davis was assisted by her young daughters, the Misses Jane, Jean, Joan and Jewell Davis. Jewel, the youngest, was delighted with a toy elephant which came with small elephant banks sold at the party.

"Oh, look, mother," she exclaimed, reading the letters G. O. P. across the front of the toy, "he's a Gop!"

Gop has become a member of the Davis family and was the center of considerable attention at the paryt—in fact, with a few exceptions, everyone there was one of his loyal supporters. He will accompany Mrs. Davis and her daughters to Cape May, N. J., later this month while Senator Davis is in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Hull Chairman.

Mrs. Harry Hull, first vice president of the league, was general chairman of arrangements for the function, with Mrs. Warren Haines and Mrs. Frank Wheeler Mondell assisting. Mrs. William Fitch Kelly, president, already has gone to the Cleveland convention to join her sister, Mrs. Martha McClure, national committeewoman from Iowa. Mr. Virginia White Speel, District committeewoman, also has gone to Cleveland. Others who were missed were Florence Kahn and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, unable to be there because of their duties on Capitol Hill. Representative Rogers has the record of never having missed a roll call.

The program by the dancers, under Miss Marion D. Venable, included solos and group numbers, one of the latter an Indian dance, for which Chief Deerfoot, of the Apache Tribe, from River Bend, accompanied on the tomtom.

Among the guests was Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, who had with her Mme. Paul Ritter, wife of the former Minister of Switzerland, who has been visiting her and leaves today for Japan to spend six months with her son.

Among others at the party were Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. James E. Watson, wife of the former Senator from Indiana; Mrs. Wallace H. White, jr., wife of Senator White; Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, wife of Senator Wheeler; Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, wife of Representative Brewster, and Mrs. Ralph E. Church, wife of Representative Church. From the Japanese Embassy were Mme. Yoshizawa, wife of the Counselor, and Mme. Hayama, wife of the Third Secretary. Also present were Mrs. Elisha Hanson, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, Mrs. Merle Thorpe and Mrs. William A. Morgan.

Convent Holds Reunion Today

Graduates of 3 Classes Will Be Present at Exercises for Commencement.

Today is not only commencement day at the Georgetown Convent of the Visitation, but it is reuniin day for the classes of 1906, 1926 and 1931. Six members of Mrs. Joseph Leiter's class, that of 1906, are here for the reunion, two of them, Mrs. John Bower, of Hagerstown, and Mrs. A. R. Ludlow, of Mill Neck, Long Island, her house guests. Mrs. F. M. Gilman, of Amherstburg, Ontario, came for the reunion, and Miss Eleanor Connolly, well known in Washington, will attend. Sister Margaret Mary Sheerin, who was graduated in the same class, is now head mistress of the convent.

Tonght the Alumnae Association, of which Mrs. Leiter is president, is having a banquet at Sulgrave Club at 8 o'clock. Tomorrow morning the association will hold its forty-second annual meeting at the convent, to be followed by a luncheon given by the Sisters of the Visitation.

Alumnae members have come from all parts of the country for this meeting. Among them are Mrs. James O. Craig, Santa Barbara, Calif.; Mrs. Christopher Weber, New York; Miss Caroline Wilbur, Charleston, S. C.; Miss Harriet Cummings, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Allen Devine and Miss Margaret E. Murphy, Detroit; Mrs. George B. Duncan, Lexington, Ky.; Miss Constance McConville, St. Paul, Minn.; Mrs. John Page Caspar, Hancock, Md., guest of Miss Christabel Hill; Mrs. William Roberts, Landover; Miss Mary J. Berry, Baltimore, and several members from Pennsylvania.

Mrs. C. F. Courtney Visiting Daughter; To Leave Monday

Mrs. Charles E. Courtney has arrived in Washington from the West Coast and is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. O'Donnell, in their home in Georgetown. Mrs. Courtney will leave Monday for her summer home, The Lilacs, Sayville, Long Island, which she will open for the summer.

She will return to Washington for a brief visit about the middle of June, when she will be joined by Rear Admiral Courtney, who will arrive in the Capital to assume his new duties as director of the Bureau of Communications.

Mrs. O'Donnell will leave Washington the latter part of the month, accompanied by her children, for Sayville, to spend the summer with her mother. Mr. O'Donnell will join her later in the season for several weeks.

In the autumn Rear Admiral and Mrs. Courtney will open their home in California street, which has been leased for some time.

Miss Hemsley Wed To Lieut. Powers

Miss Lillian Dorothea Hemsley, daughter of Mrs. Omar I. Nigh, of Falls Church, and the late Dr. Philip Hector Hemsley, of Washington, D. C., and Indianapolis, Ind., last night was married to Lieut. Bennet Gordon Powers, U. S. M. C., son of Col. William Channing Powers, jr., U. S. M. C., Parris Island, S. C., and Mrs. Ethel Mansereat Hiserman, of Honolulu. The ceremony was at 8 o'clock in the Falls Church Episcopal Church, the Rev. Watkins Leigh Ribble, rector, officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. Nigh, and was attended by her aunt, Mrs. Fred F. Roberts, as matron of honor; Miss Rosemary Koontz, of Washington, maid of honor; the Misses Rosemary Palmer, of Harrisburg, Pa., and Louise Brown, of Clarendon, Va., as bridesmaids. Her half-sister, Miss Clara June Nigh, and the bridegroom's half-sister, Miss Evelyn Powers, were flower girls.

Lieut. Frank Tharin, U. S. M. C., a classmate at the Naval Academy, was Lieut. Powers' best man, and the ushers were the bride's brother, Mr. George Hemsley, of Falls Church, and Mr. Ewald C. Killinger, of Winchester, Va.

A reception at the home of the bride followed the wedding.

Mrs. McLean Gives Dinner For Davieses

Friendship Has Air of Pageantry at Colorful Affair for Couple.

There was the air of summer pageantry about the dinner party given last night at Friendship, the McLean estate on Wisconsin avenue, by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies.

The wide doors and long windows of the drawing rooms and dining salon were thrown open to give an out-of-door effect and afford a view of the grounds, the sweep of formal gardens, with their long white marble fountains, rare statuary and countless roses in bloom.

Mrs. McLean received in the drawing room, which extends nearly the length of the house. She wore the Hope diamond. Tall vases of flowers were placed throughout the rooms and an unusual color effect was achieved in the dining room by the use of green satin under the cream lace table cloths. Tall golden urns, filled with flowers, were on each of the score or more tables.

A motion picture was shown after the dinner. It was recalled that motion pictures were shown first at private parties at Friendship long before such entertainment at dinner parties was in vogue. In the early days of motion pictures the McLeans secured the first run of new films, sometimes before they had been shown anywhere else in the country.

Mrs. McLean's house party for the dinner is an interesting one. Miss Ethel Barrymore motored from New York yesterday and will remain until the end of the week. Other guests at Friendship are Mr. Joseph Hergesheimer, known as an entertaining dinner guest; Mr. and Mrs. Jay Carlisle, of New York, always greeted with enthusiasm when they come to Washington; Dr. Esther Richards, famous in the medical profession, and Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale.

Among te 125 dinner guests were the Ambassador of Argentina and Senora de Espil, the Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings; the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, and the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. de With.

Different political faiths were represented in the group from the Senatorial circles, which included Senator and Mrs. Hiram W. Johnson, Senator and Mrs. William H. King, Senator David I. Walsh, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Joseph Guffey, Senator and Mrs. James J. Davis, Senator and Mrs. Key Pittman and Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis.

Representative Florence Pragg Kahn, noted for her wit, was always surrounded by an interested group.

The Solicitor General and Mrs. Stanley Reed were there, as were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mr. Eugene L. Vidal, Mrs. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Hugh Campbell Wallace and Miss Mabel T. Boardman.

The friendship between Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Davies is of many years' standing. They have known each other since the days when Mrs. McLean was Miss Evalyn Walsh and Mrs. Davies was Miss Marjorie Post, and have frequently entertained for each other at Newport and at Palm Beach. The party last night was to welcome Mrs. Davies to Washington.

Edmund H. Lloyd, Mary J. Brahany To Marry Today

Many guests will come from out of town for the wedding this afternoon of Miss Mary Jane Brahany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Brahany, to Mr. Edmund H. Lloyd, son of Dr. and Mrs. Bolivar J. Lloyd, of Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. John D. Reichard, Mr. Harmon S. Auguste and Mr. William H. Combs will come from New York City for the wedding, and other guests from out of town will include Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Sinott, of Newark, N. J.; Dr. and Mrs. Edward Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Himes, of Frederick, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. Harris Melaskey, of Fort Meade, Md.

Peyton Hawes Is Betrothed To H. S. Dunn

Daughter of Former U. S. Senator Selects July 6 for Wedding.

Former Senator and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Peyton Elizabeth Hawes, to Mr. Henderson S. Dunn, of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Y. Dunn, of Lee, Mass., who will be married in Washington July 6. Only members of the families will be present at the wedding.

The bride-elect will have as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Lloyd Moore, of Glen Head, Long Island, the former Miss Eppes Hawes, and Miss Barbara Dunn, of Lee, Mass., sister of the prospective bridegroom, will be the maid of honor.

Miss Hawes attended the Sacred Heart Convent in St. Louis, Mo., received her A. B. degree from Washington University and her degree in journalism from the University of Missouri. Mr. Dunn is a graduate of Williams College.

Trunnell-Gawler Wedding Saturday

Ceremony to Take Place in Garden of Home.

The garden at the home of her parents, which won the Wesley Heights award as one of the finest in that section, will be the scene of the wedding Saturday of Miss Dorothy Grace Gawler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Gawler, to Mr. William Kenneth Trunnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Trunnell. The ceremony will take place at 2:30, the Rev. William A. Keese officiating.

Miss Dorothy Rausch will be the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Mr. Jack Zenns, of Washington, will be best man.

Following the ceremony, there will be a reception.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

Gardenia Cologne Fine for After-the-Bath Rub.

By Mignon.

(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, indorse or manufacture any cosmetics.)

IF YOU EVER have used cologne for a morning after-bath rub, you never will be able to take it off your shopping list. This is especially true in summer when the sticky hot weather begins. The alcohol in colognes dries the damp skin enough so that when you follow with a dusting powder the powder can take up any moisture that comes later in the day.

There are colognes and colognes. Some are so strong that they are very nearly perfumes. Others are so thin and watery that you get practically no fragrance—if that is what you want—even when you use great quantities of them.

Gardenia perfume and the flowers themselves have been a fad for some time now and one perfumer has brought out a gardenia cologne that is a joy forever. The bottle is the thing of beauty. You needn't use very much of it and the perfume in it is a true gardenia. It is a fine thing to give as a gift to a girl who has a gardenia complex—and there are plenty of them today.

Incidentally, the perfumer makes a dusting powder to match if you want to be a little more generous.

Posed by Joan Bennett.

Models to Show New Beach Garb

Shoreham Pool Opening Will Feature Exhibits.

Beach and surf fashions will be presented by Jelleff's at the formal opening of the Wardman Park Pool at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Models will parade informally and introduce the newest silhouettes, including the smart overprinted piques and seersucker "dressmaker" versions of the beach ensemble with short, full swagger coats. The alluring satin lastex suits in all of the seagoing colors and new sun tints will also be included in the pageant. In the tropical prints, brief halter and pareos will be on parade.

Women to Present Republican Plank

Merit System Plea to Be Made to Party.

Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, member of the Board of the National League of Women Voters and former Republican member of the Illinois State Senate, will present the league's plea for a "merit system in public office" platform pledge at the Republican National Convention next week.

This is the fifth national campaign year in which the league has proposed planks to platform makers. Mrs. Bohrer is a daughter of former Gov. Fifer, of Illinois. She served in the Illinois Senate for eight years and was the only woman ever elected to that body. She is an expert on governmental problems, and particularly those related to qualified personnel. She is a resident of Bloomington, Ill.

League headquarters will be established next Sunday at the Hotel Statler. Mrs. Bohrer, other members of the National League's special representation, and Mrs. E. L. Shoup, president of the Cleveland League of Women Voters, will comprise the headquarters committee.

English Country Women 'Outweave' Rug Factories

Delegate Here Tells How Farm Wives Are Taught to Beautify Homes.

PROOF of the American farm woman's energy and imagination is shown in the current handicraft exhibit of the conference of the Associated Country Women of the World. There are coverlets, bags, doilies and runners of every size and description to indicate the rural woman's skill with the needle, the crochet hook, the embroidery hoop and the loom. There also is an excellent display of all kinds of rugs, from the ones made of burlap bags to those hooked from dyed blankets, silks and cotton materials.

Judging from these, it would seem the typical rural housewife in this country knows a good deal about beautifying her home without benefit of factories; that, like her industrious feminine forebears, she makes her cottage or mansion attractive by her own handiwork.

Yet, has she ever learned to design and make a wool rug, 6 feet by 3, that in design, color and material could pass for a master-maker's product and cost as little as $4?

English Women Can!

Women of rural England have. Under the tutelage of Mrs. Godfrey Drage, a vice president of the Associated Country Women of the World, housewives there have learned to make rugs that would do honor to any big business house.

In Washington to attend the conference of the A. C. W. W., Mrs. Drage yesterday explained how members of the Women's Institute in England had learned to make pretty, but inexpensive, floor coverings.

As she told of this work, Mrs. Drage displayed sections of the different kinds of rugs now proving popular with women she teaches. "We use a canvas background that in some cases looks very much like that used for a petit-point base," she said. "Then, using a needle with an eye large enough to hold wool yarn, we work the rug with an over-and-over stitch of the same type used in making petit point. The expense of the whole thing depends, of course, on the price of the yarn. A very attractive rug can be made for 16 shillings—about $4. Another 'much cheaper' type of floor covering can be made of pile and costs a little over $2."

Few Floors Uncovered.

"Nothing adds more color and warmth to a room than an appropriate, tastefully chosen floor covering," Mrs. Drage continued, "yet, because it is one thing that poorer persons can do without, you find a number of homes in rural England without a single rug. Now that women are learning how to make rugs so cheaply, however, bare floors are disappearing, even in the cottages of the poorest farmers."

Mrs. Drage's instruction in rug making has taken up much of her time since the war. Through the women's institutes in England she has taught scores of homemakers how to assemble designs in keeping with rooms to be furnished.

Jealous Quirks In Elder Child Easy to Control

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

"JOHNNY, how would you like a baby in the house?"

"Can I play with it? Would it be our very own? Would it be a girl or a boy?"

"We don't know which it will be, but in a few weeks I think we may expect one. It will be very little at first, and can't be played with much. But you shall hold it sometimes. Meanwhile we must get things ready for it, and you must help."

For a month or two before the baby came, the old baby was always too busy helping mother get ready for the new arrival to think of his position. He was important, for he was an old, established member of the family and must help the stranger to become adjusted to his new environment.

Emphasize the retiring baby's importance in the family. Encourage him in a protective attitude toward the baby.

Only by emphasizing his new position can he be persuaded to give up gracefully his old one. When the baby comes, he is prepared for it, and feels none of the shock which he probably would feel were he faced by the necessity of suddenly giving up his position as king of the nursery and center of attention to an unexpected and unwanted rival.

The liver is the largest secreting gland in the body. It receives from the intestine, via large blood vessels, the absorbed products of digestion and reconditions them before they are permitted to enter the general circulation. It is also a storage reservoir for sugar, which is delivered to the blood as needed. In addition it is the source of bile, which is poured out into the intestine and which aids greatly in the digestion of fats. From one to two quarts are formed by the normal adult each day.

Like the appendix the gall bladder is susceptible to disease. It may become infected with bacteria and stones frequently form within it. Strangely enough, there is but little relation between a patient's symptoms and the number and size of stones. One stone may cause as much trouble in a given patient as a dozen of equal size in another.

The patient may tell of a feeling of tenseness or fullness after meals. Acute pain is felt whenever a gallstone attempts to pass along the duct which leads from the gall bladder to the intestine and occasionally a stone may become lodged in this channel.

Whenever a gallstone plugs the duct that leads from the liver into the intestines, symptoms of jaundice follow. This means that bile is unable to escape into the bowel and hence is absorbed into the blood. The urine will be brownish in color and the skin will show the presence of bile (jaundice), as will the whites of the eyes. Every organ in the body is similarly impregnated. Itching is generally an annoying accompaniment.

Under rest and the use of proper medicine the swelling of the tube around the obstruction may subside so that bile can again flow into the duodenum. Nevertheless, as long as the stone remains the symptoms will probably repeat themselves at a later date. In fact, many patients will complain of successive attacks at varying intervals of what they term gallstone colic, with or without the appearance of bile in the skin. We must understand, of course, that jaundice can be occasioned by simple swelling of the tube outlet (inflammation). This is called catarrhal and is the commonest cause. It is routinely relieved by rest, the avoidance of food and some simple medication.

Gall bladders when diseased may require removal, and modern surgery has surrounded the procedure with many safeguards.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

If Girl Loved Man, Could She Insist That They Not See Each Other for Six Months' Period?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I met a girl two years ago and afterward we went together for eight months. We discussed marriage and she influenced me to enroll for a course of study, which I am now taking. I am now 27 years old and it will be three years yet before the course is finished, as I am going to one of the best schools in the city. If I had gone to a smaller and more lenient university, I might have got through more quickly.

While I was going with the girl she was outspoken in her wish to be married to me and to be a good wife. I believe she will be. However, her parents are cold to the idea of their daughter's waiting three years to marry me. They do not seem to dislike me as an individual, but they just do not like the idea.

Three months ago, through no particular fault on her part or mine, we had a little squabble. Then she wrote me a letter saying we should not see each other for six months. She said she wanted to find out whether or not she really is in love with me. Do you think she is trying to forget me? She said, however, that I may call her after the six months have passed. That will be three months yet.

I have been going out with other girls in order to test my own love for her, and it seems the more I go out with other girls the more I care for her. I have not seen or talked with her since she asked me to stay away, and I am very lonesome at times. I feel at times I cannot wait for the next three months to pass. Should I telephone her? Please advise me what to do.

Although I know she is going out with other fellows, still she told me months ago that there is no other man in the picture. Very sincerely yours, WORRIED.

What to Think.

DEAR WORRIED: It is my guess that the girl honestly is trying to discover whether or not she loves you enough to wish to wait three years to marry you. And since you have not heard from her for three months it seems logical to assume that her love for you is not overwhelmingly intense. If she were as much in love with you as you would wish, it is probable she would have withdrawn her ultimatum before now.

On the other hand, of course, it is possible she is a person of real character and strength of will who can set for herself a most difficult task and stick to it, regardless of her feelings. If she is the latter sort of person, she will probably respect and love you the more if you can demonstrate a force of character to match her own. Your chances of winning and holding her love would be increased by forcing yourself to wait until the six months have elapsed before addressing yourself to her again.

If she is a coquette, or simply a girl of uncertain mind; or not even very much in love with you, seeming indifference on your part is the trump card to play. So long as she reasons that you are hers for the takiny, she may never come to any lasting conclusions as to how she really feels about you. But if the thought could be conveyed to her mind that she may lose you unless she takes care, she might give you the reassurance you hunger after. Under the circumstances, the only way to convey that thought is adapt yourself to the situation by entering as wholeheartedly as possible into other social affiliations, and let the world see and know that you can be happy without her as well as with her. M. H.

"XYZ" Is Praised.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please thank "XYZ" for his sensible, helpful letter on friendship published in your column of Sunday, May 24. He says so clearly what I have felt for months. "To be honest with yourself and sincere with others" is excellent advice. That paragraph I have clipped and placed on my desk for future guidance.

* * * *

I am alone but I have my thoughts, and a year ago I suddenly began to write verses—an open door into a magic place! A garden, my books, selected radio programs, a little house, a crescent moon swinging in the West, here and there a friend, each so beloved and dependable — Surely "God's in His Heaven." I ask for no more.

Very truly yours, MARY ELLEN.

* * * *

DEAR MARY ELLEN: "XYZ's" letter was sensible and helpful wasn't it? "XYZ" happens to be a neighbor of mine, and it was after a lively discussion of this difficult problem of making friends in a new community that he agreed to write a letter to this column, giving readers the benefit of his sound opinions on the subject. I am glad you liked what he had to say. And I am sure he will feel well repaid for whatever effort he expended in writing his theories (since writing is never an easy task) on hearing that his message has been so sympathetically received. M. # For Love or Money

By ROB EDEN

CHAPTER TYENTY-SEVEN.

THE ROOM which had been cool when Brenda had come into it was stifling now, and the air sickening with the scent of the great bowl of tea roses on the table mingled with the strong odor of Brady's tobacco.

Brady lapsed into one of his silences again. They were more terrible, Brenda thought, than his monologues. In the silences, he looked at her, his pipe in his mouth, the smile she hated so much curling and stretching his scar. And he could sit so still. Not a muscle in his body moved, the smile didn't change, even his eyes didn't flicker. She couldn't take her eyes off him, either, although she tried to.

"Nice lot of thieves you are," Brady broke his silence. "I don't know how much money you've gotten away with in this town, but it's been plenty, and I'm going to find out before I close the case. Ten thousand here, $20,000 there, and not a dime of it goes into the mine. Ever see the mine, Brenda? You don't mind my calling you Brenda, do you? Ever see the mine?"

She shook her head, and it was a relief for her to move.

"Didn't think so. Well, there is a mine, but what a mine! I've seen lots of 'em in my work, because every now and then I get one of your gold brick cases, but I've never seen a mine like the Gold Oak mine. Maybe there would be something in it, if it was worked, but it's never been worked.

Her Purse.

"Rush and Jason never intended to work it. I had a heck of a time even finding it, had to pack in on a burro for two days with a surveyor. By the way, I'd like to see your purse."

"My purse?"

"Yes, your purse."

"It's in the bedroom."

"Well, get it."

Brenda got up, slowly, and Brady got up, too, and followed her into the bedroom. She stumbled up to the dressing table and picked up the purse that was hers, not the black purse she had worn with her luncheon outfit that noon. Brady took it from her. "Sit down," he said, and because she was close to the bed she sat down on it.

She watched Brady go through the purse, take out her powder case, her lipstick, her comb, a handkerchief. He laid each article on the dressing table as he came to it. Last of all he opened her coin purse. In it was $5 in change, two door keys, one to the Corwin flat and one to this apartment, and the check, which Grace had given her yesterday and which she hadn't yet taken to the bank to put into Lally's account.

"Five hundred dollars. That your monthly salary, or a commission check"

"That's—a commission check."

"Amount up, don't they? You must have quite a good sum in reserve."

She opened her eyes, and saw him take out his wallet, and put the check into it. I'll be keeping this," he said. "I need it for evidence."

"Mr. Orth—"

"I told you my name was Brady. Tim Brady. We'll forget the Orth."

"Mr. Brady—what are you going to do—with—me?"

He took the pipe from his mouth for the first time, and laughed. The laugh shook the room, and came echoing and reechoing back to Brenda.

"What am I going to do with you? What do you expect me to do with you?"

Knew.

"What do you expect me to do?" he repeated. "Tell you I'm sorry you didn't realize what you were doing, and run along, little girl, don't ever do this again? We don't work that way, Brenda. You knew what you were doing, you can't pull that gag on me. Didn't you, now?"

"I—did," she said softly.

"Of course you did. You took the commission checks fast enough, and the salary checks. Snap job you had, providing you weren't caught. But you're caught, and you're in it as deep as Jason and Rush. And Ivar and Rush's father are in it, too. All five of you. Ever hear of a law that forbids using the mails to defraud?" He paused and glared at her again.

"Sure you have. Most everybody has who's been to grammar school, who reads the daily papers. Well, using the mails to defraud is a Federal offense, and that's just what Jason and Rush did. Used the mails to defraud. Sent phony assay reports through the mails. They sent one to me, addressed to Carl R. Orth at the Plaza Hotel, New York City. I asked for it, and they sent it. And they sent others, too. There are Federal penitentiaries for folks who send false assay reports through the mail. Leavenworth, MacNeil Island, Atlanta, Lewisburg, Alcatraz. We've got a lot of people in Federal prisons serving out time for what Jason and Rush have done, and I helped put a good many of them there. One to ten years the penalty is, but sometimes we let 'em out in about four or five years, if their behavior is good and they promise to be good.

"Women have more to lose. Youth is always more precious to a woman, and when she sees the best years of her life slipping by, well, it isn't pleasant. You wouldn't think it was pleasant, would you?"

He waited for an answer but got none. "How old are you?"

"Twenty-two——"

"If you got the full 10 years you'd be 32 when you got out. There's a big difference between 32 and 22—although you may not think it now."

Brenda was thinking; what have I done to you, Lally, what have I done to you——

"And then, again, there are State charges that can be brought against you. I haven't brought in the State yet, because I've been working from the Federal end, that's more important to me. That's my job. But all I'd have to do is to call the district attorney, tell him what I've found, and he'll start his own prosecution. I may do it, I don't know. If I do, you'll go to the State penitentiary, you and Jason and Ruth and Ivar, and Rush's father, the whole mob of you. Conspiracy, the State calls what you've done, and you'll get a couple of years for every count against you. It hasn't been necessary for me to call in the district attorney yet, and it may not be. It won't be, if I can find Jason and Rush. If I can't I'll have to call for help, and you'll be faced both with State and Federal charges. Do you understand all I've been saying?"

"I understand——"

"I wanted it to be perfectly clear. I think you can help me find Jason, Brenda."

'I?"

"Yes, you. He seems to think a lot of you. I've had you followed while I was at the mine. My men report that you've been out with him a good deal."

Get Jason.

He went through the same slow procedure of lighting his pipe that he had gone through in the living room, and for a long time the room was very quiet. When he was finally puffing smoke from the pipe, he spoke. "You come clean and get Jason for me, and I'll do what I can for you. How's that for a bargain?"

"You mean—" she leaned forward eagerly.

"I don't mean anything, yet, until you tell me what you know and produce Jason. Then we'll talk about the bargain, just what it will be. I may not even be able to swing it. I don't know, but I do know that I want Jason, and I think you can get him for me."

"I've no idea in the world where he could be."

"Not now, no, but you will know sooner or later. Sooner or later, he's going to try to get in touch with you, and then I want to know where he is. If I get him, I get Rush, and I want them both. Jason isn't going to forget you overnight. I don't think he's that kind. He's going to try to get in touch with you some time—and I'm banking on the fact that sometime will be soon, because he's crazy about you. In the meantime, I'll have my men hunting him too. They may be the ones to find him, and then again you may be. In any event, you turn him up, I'll do what I can for you. And that's the bargain, for whatever it's worth. Agreeable?"

"Agreeable—— Oh, Lally, what have I done to you?

"Good. Now, what I want you to do is go home, or do whatever you want to do. Live as you normally live. I'll expect you to phone me at Main 2121 at 12 sharp every noon, and when I say 12 sharp I mean 12 sharp. The number is a secret one, so I'll write it down for you." He took a blank card from his pocket and scribbling the number on it, threw the card on the bed. "I may not be there, but someone will be there. Simply say if I am not there that you are Miss Fayre and want to know if there is any message from me for you. If there is none, that will be all for the day. If Jason tries in any way to get hold of you, writes, phones, telegraphs, I must know about it immediately. And you must find out for me where he is, trace the call if necessary. I'll show you how if you don't know."

Ann E. Carver Again Chosen Prettiest Coed

Marian Barker, of District, Also Named by Students at U. of Maryland.

For the second consecutive year, Miss Ann E. Carver, of Perryville, Md., has been declared the most beautiful coed at the University of Maryland.

Miss Marian E. Parker, 2907 Thirty-fourth street northwest, has received the rating of "second most beautiful," with Miss Ruth Wellington, of Takoma Park, Md., third; Miss Betty L. Benton, Glen Echo, Md., fourth, and Miss Dolores A. Piozet, Hyattsville, fifth.

The Terrapin, university yearbook and sponsor of the annual beauty contest, announced the decision yesterday simultaneously with the appearance of the commencement volume.

Editors of the book said that names and pictures of nine coeds, elected by the student body, were submitted to a "nationally known artist" for rating. These other coeds, in the order adjudged by the artist, are:

Miss Christine Cook, Westchester Apartments, Washington; Miss Fredericka, Waldman, 2730 Chesapeake street northwest, and Miss Rosella Gengnagel and Miss Lucia Spehnkouch, both of Baltimore.

Miss Carver, a member of the sophomore class, is one of the few women in the college of agriculture. She has been active in the Footlight Club, local dramatic society.

The following annual commencement awards were announced yesterday:

Student medal and junior membership offered by the American Institute of Chemists to the member of the senior class who has attained the highest average in chemistry. Awarded to Leonard Smith.

Clara D. Noyes Dies; Red Cross Chief of Nurses

Victim of Heart Disease; She Was Decorated by Foreign Nations.

Clara Dutton Noyes, national director of nursing service for the American Red Cross and an internationally known leader in nursing, died here yesterday.

She was stricken with a heart attack yesterday as she was driving her automobile to work at American Red Cross headquarters from her home at 1411 Twenty-ninth street northwest. She was rushed to a hospital by her niece, Lucy Noyes, who was with her, and died almost immediately upon arrival.

Only the presence of mind of the niece prevented a serious accident. When her aunt slumped forward in the seat Miss Noyes jerked the emergency brake and brought the car to a quick stop.

Decorated by Foreign Nations.

As national director of the American Red Cross nursing service, Miss Noyes was responsible for maintenance of nursing activities of the organization and provided qualified nurses in disaster and other emergencies. She was responsible for maintenance of a nursing reserve for the Army and Navy.

As general of a host of white-clad nurses, she won wide fame and was decorated by several foreign countries.

Miss Noyes was born at Port Deposit, Md., in October, 1869. Her family, however, had long been established in Old Lyme, Conn.

In 1896 Miss Noyes graduated from the Johns Hopkins Nursing School and immediately upon receiving her diploma was appointed head nurse of the school. She served as head nurse in several hospitals in the East and then became superintendent of nurses in Bellevue and Allied Hospitals in New York.

Organized Base Hospitals.

In 1916, Miss Noyes was appointed director of the American Red Cross Bureau of Nursing, and organized base hospitals and all other Red Cross units which served America and the allies in the World War.

Miss Noyes succeeded Jane A. Delano as director of the Red Cross Nursing Service and chairman of the National Committee on Red Cross Nursing in 1919. As chairman of this group she headed 197 local and State committees of nurses.

She was awarded the Florence Nightingale Medal of the International Nursing Committee and decorated with the Medaille d'Honneur l'Hygiene Publique and the Medaille de la Reconnaisance from the French government.

The Bulgarian Red Cross honored her with a medal from the Latvian Red Cross Society. She was an honprary member of the Polish and Costa Rican Red Cross societies, and a member of the advisory board of the International Council of Nurses and the Johns Hopkins School of Nursing.

Senate Group Curbs Wagner Housing Plan

Loans Are Reduced, but Bonds Are Increased by 50 Million.

A considerably curtailed Wagner housing bill was reported to the Senate yesterday by the Labor Committee.

The committee sharply reduced proposed expenditures, eliminated loans to private limited dividend corporations and divorced the proposed Federal Housing Authority from the Interior Department.

The bill as recommended for passage would give public authorities, the Federal Government and local governments assisted by the Federal Government, complete authority over construction of low-cost housing with public money.

The measure as originally drawn provided that loans up to 85 per cent of the cost of projects could be made to private, limited dividend corporations, limiting the total of the loans to $25,000,000 in any one year.

Loans Are Limited.

In setting up a housing board, the original bill provided that the organiaztion should consist of five members with the addition of the Secretary of Agriculture as an ex-officio member. At present low-cost housing is under the direction of the Public Works Administration, headed by Secretary Ickes. The amended bill provides that the functions of other Government agencies may be transferred by the President to the new board.

The bill provides that grants and loans may be made to local authorities for housing, the grants not to exceed 45 per cent. Loans also are limited on the basis of acquisition costs. Grants may be made in annual installments or in lump sums. The authority also would be empowered to erect "demonstration" projects.

The new organization would be in the form of a corporatoin, empowered to issue bonds. The initial direct appropriaton was cut by the committe from $51,000,000 to $10,000,000, of which $1,000,000 would be paid for capital stock of the corporation. The committee also eliminated the provision that the RFC might make advances to the housing authority from time to time with the total limited to $100,000,000.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1936

School Hour Change Left To Parents

Traffic Solution Seen in Shift of 90,000 Pupils Here.

Many Households Gauge Activities on Present Hours, Argument.

Before Washington's 90,000 public school children are asked to go to school half an hour earlier than they have been, or half an hour later, to help reduce the District's traffic hazards, the Board of Education wants their parents' views.

The board yesterday discussed a recommendation from Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, that next year the opening hour, which is now 9 a. m., "be advanced to 8:30, or postponed to 9:30."

Without committing themselves on the proposal members decided to "talk to the parents first."

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, said any change "will have a very decided effect on the home conditions of a great many families."

"Parents Come First."

"I would not like to make any recommendation on this matter, or consider making any recommendation without first ascertaining the views of the parents," he said.

Mrs. Marion Wade Doyle, president of the board, in supporting Dr. Ballou's suggestion that parents be consulted, pointed out the time of opening school is a "community problem" and should be turned over to the community for consideration.

Mrs. Lenore W. Smith, another member, questioned the advantages of a change. Many parents, she said, find it convenient to take their children to school on the way to work. A change in school hours would mean making a special trip for many families, and this would put more cars on the street than ever.

The board yesterday approved the opening of vacation classes July 1 in the following schools:

Junior high—Macfarland and Stuart.

Senior high—Central.

Public school buildings throughout the city have been suffering an epidemic of windowpane breaking, Dr. Ballou reported. From May 22 to June 1 a total of 51 panes were broken—28 in the Lovejoy School in a single night.

9 Teachers to Retire.

The board heard a report on the retirement of nine teachers after the end of this school term. Those who plan to leave active teaching service are Miss B. H. Thompson, Adams School; Miss Isabell Clark, Murch School; Miss A. M. Williams, Murch School; Miss Maud White, Fairbrother-Rossell School; Mrs. C. V. Byram, Eastern High School; Miss L. C. McColm, Central High School; Mrs. M. S. Baker, Central High School, and Mrs. B. J. Bimont, Western High School.

Mrs. Byram, who began her teaching career in Washington in 1885, was formerly head of the public school music department.

D. C. Airport Site Group to Gather

The District airport site commission is expected to meet this afternoon and decide on its activities, if any, for the summer and fall.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the commission, called the meeting at the instance of Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, secretary, who is planning to leave Washington tomorrow.

A sub-committee has prepared an agenda for the commission, but has not disclosed its content pending approval. Because several of the members expect to spend the summer and early fall conducting campaigns in their home districts, it is not expected that the commission will do much site investigating before late fall or early winter.

Slugged by Thief, Dealer, 69, Returns to Work Within Hour

John W. Hunt Carries On After Being Knocked Unconscious in Holdup; His Attacker Escapes With $45, Misses $30 in Cash Register.

Like an old trouper whose motto is "the show must go on," 69-year-old John W. Hunt was back on duty in his paint store yesterday within an hour after being brutally slugged by a holdup man who escaped with $45.

Hunt, who lives at 3141 Mount Pleasant street northwest, was treated as Casualty Hospital for cuts and bruises on the face, then returned immediately to his shop at 1221 New York avenue northwest.

He was making out a monthly statement at a front desk when a roughly dressed man entered and asked the price of roof paints. Hunt rose, showed him samples and then took the "customer" into a rear room when the latter said he wanted some calcimine also.

While he was measuring the powder on a scale, the robber abruptly swung a long right against the grey-haired, bespectacled merchant's jaw. As Hunt staggered backward, he was struck twice more in the face. He fell to the floor unconscious.

Police were called several minutes later by Granville Johnson, Hunt's Negro helper, who was in the machine shop behind the store when the holdup occurred.

The store proprietor, who has been in business here since 1905, said the robber took a wallet containing $45 from his inside coat pocket but did not stop to extract $30 from the cash register. He told police his assailant was about 30 years old, about 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighed about 170 pounds.

District Scrip Bill Approved By House Unit

Mrs. Greenway Is Jubilant as Relief Plan Moves Nearer Passage.

Probable enactment into law of the Greenway plan for ending unemployment and Federal relief in the District through the issuance of "anticipatory revenue" certificates was foreseen yesterday after the House District Committee had unexpectedly reported the bill without holding hearings on it.

Unless an early adjournment prevents, the bill may be called up in the House, either under unanimous consent or on a motion to suspend the rules. Meanwhile, a companion measure may be introduced in the Senate.

Representative Isabella Greenway (Democrat), of Arizona, author of the bill, was jubilant when informed of the House committee's action. Because she will not seek re-election this fall, Mrs. Greenway is anxious to see the plan started in Washington this year.

Not Inflationary.

The motion to report the bill favorably was made by Representative Patman (Democrat), of Texas, leader of the House inflationary bloc. Mrs. Greenway, in explaining the bill, however, emphasized that it is not inflationary.

"I hope some day you will feel very proud of taking this step," she told the committee after pointing out that she hoped to see the system spread over the country.

Representative Mary T. Norton, chairman of the committee, thanked the Arizona Congresswoman for her "great service to the District."

"We want to thank you for all the time you have devoted to the interest of the unemployed an the money you have spent in working out the plan," Mrs. Norton said.

Ellenbogen Objects.

The only objection raised to the prompt report on the bill came from Representative Ellenbogen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, who described it as "pretty far-reaching."

The basis of the plan is the issuance of certificates of $1 denomination by the District Commissioners with a $5,000 revolving fund as security. The certificates would be distributed among co-operating business houses, which would use them to pay extra employes hired to relieve unemployment.

Two-cent stamps would have to be placed on the certificates each week for 53 weeks, at the end of which time they would be redeemable for $1 at the District Building.

Monday Evening Club To Hold Picnic Monday

Education Board Indorses Rat Extinction.

The Board of Education was called on yesterday to oppose the activities of rats, and went on record as indorsing a project directed toward extinction of the rodents.

The school trustees acted on a letter from Nick Ontico, president of the executive committee of the citizenship class of the Americanization school. The class was civic minded, Ontico said, and wanted to do something for the community.

"There are a lot of rats in our neighborhood," he said, "and we thought we could help by doing something to get rid of them."

Ontico's committee first sent a petition for co-operation to the District Commissioners, and followed that request with a letter seeking the school board "indorsement."

"I don't know what we can do," said Henry Gilligan, board member, "but I certainly move that we indorse the project."

The move was seconded and the resolution adopted.

Board Hears 15 Requests For Rezoning

Freeman Protests Plan for Commercial Area Near Cathedral.

Ickes Wants Status of Lot Changed to Provide Parking Space.

Commercial interests should not be permitted to encroach on the area of Washington Cathedral, the Right. Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, told the District Zoning Commission in a letter filed with the commission as public hearings on 28 proposed zoning changes began yesterday in the board room at the District Building.

Bishop Freeman's letter was in opposition to a proposal by owners to change the zoning of an unimproved lot at the northeast corner of Thirty-eighth and Macomb streets northwest from residential, 60-foot B area to first commercial, 60-foot C area. The idea of the owners was to develop, their representatives said, one of the rapidly growing "park-and-shop" areas.

The commission heard 15 of the 28 proposals during the day. It made no decision on any proposal. It will resume the public hearing today.

Wants Parking Lot.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes took a hand in the proceedings. He said he thought it would be a good thing if the zoning commission would rezone the lot on the northeast corner of Nineteenth and F streets northwest from residential to first commercial so that an automobile parking lot could be established there.

There was no opposition voiced to the proposal of the Fairfax Hotel, at Twenty-first street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, to raise the rear of the structure to eight stories. The front of the hotel is eight stories high.

Mrs. Leona Long, owner of property on Thirty-fifth place, pleaded with the commission to rezone the section along that street between Whitehaven parkway and the east-west alley north of T street. The property now is zoned residential, 40 foot, B restricted area. It is proposed to change it to 40 foot B area.

Asked Change.

Mrs. Long, it was said, had remodeled three houses she owned into two-family flats. She was brought into Police Court for doing so. Trial of the case was delayed pending decision by the zoning commission. If the commission decides in her favor the Police Court charge will be dropped.

Mrs. Long, it was pleaded before the commission, had made an honest mistake and had thought she was within her rights. It was not developed at the hearing how she got the required permits to change over her houses to flats.

W. Gwynne Gardiner, former District Commissioner and prominent District attorney; Hugh M. Frampton, lawyer, and J. Dallas Grady, real estate dealer, urged the commission not to approve a proposed change in the zoning of an unimproved lot at the northwest corner of Newark street and Connecticut avenue. Julian Brylawski urged the change and Bates Warren, who represented the owner, spoke in favor of the change, which would permit a parking lot next to Gardiner's residence.

Pendleton Hogan, Washington author of "The Bishop of Havana" and "The Dark Comes Early," will act as judge in the short-story contest of the Free Lance Society of Writers, it was announced yesterday.

He will be honor guest and principal speaker at their banquet at the Shoreham Hotel tonight, and announce the prize winners there.

Summer Series May Be Given By Musicians

Members of the Orchestra Seeking to Continue Sunset Concerts.

On the heels of the Natonal Symphony Orchestra Association's decision to hold no concerts this summer, an announcement was made last night that orchestra members themselves "will bend every effort to give summer concerts in Washington this year."

The announcement came from the orchestra members' committee, headed by Thomas J. Mullikin. It stated the musicians felt "confident that with the co-operation of the superintendent of public parks, and with the aid of the people of this city who have so generously supported us in the past, the members of our orchestra will be able to inaugurate this summer a series of co-operative concerts."

A further possibility that the sunset symphonies may be continued appeared yesterday in a statement by Fairfax Oyster, who five weeks ago announced a plan to launch a rival symphony.

Oyster said he planned to talk to Yasha Bunchuk, former Roxy musician, as to feasibility of organizing an orchestra now.

The orchestra association decided to discontinue the summer concert series after a long dispute with the Musicians' Union. Points at issue were importation of musicians by the association and dismissal from the union of George Gaul, orchestra personnel manager.

District Opens Parkway's Last Section Today

Rock Creek-Potomac Link Eliminates Stop Lights on Montgomery Route.

The last link of the Rock Creek-Potomac parkway, which will allow motorists to drive from Hains Point to Montgomery County without seeing a stop light, will be opened to traffic at 7 a. m. today, Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, director of highways of the District, announced yesterday.

"The roadway was completed at noon yesterday and we have been busy since 'cleaning up,'" Capt. Whitehurst said. "There still is some cleaning up to be done, but that need not keep the roadway closed. The barricades are to be taken down at 7 a. m. tomorrow.

"The Commissioners and myself feel the roadways are expensive investments and it is especially important that on these bitumastic roadways, such as this last parkway link, we get traffic moving over them as quickly as we can. The roads are built to sustain certain traffic. Too heavy traffic harms them and too little traffic harms them."

The link runs from just south of Q street to a point south of P street. It completes a park roadway which will permit motorists to run through parks from Mount Vernon, through the District, to Maryland. It will connect the Potomac park area with 40 miles of road in Rock Creek Park.

House Accepts Names For Avenues in Mall

A joint resolution to rename four thoroughfares in the newly designed Mall for four States—Oklahoma, Ohio, Maine and Missouri—was called up in the House yesterday and adopted by unanimous consent.

Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, called up the resolution.

District Fund Is Sidetracked For Tax Bill

Senate Halts Other Business to Consider U. S. Revenues.

Thomas Hopes to Obtain Compromise Soon; Seeks Meeting.

Efforts to break the deadlock on the District supply bill were at a standstill yesterday as the Senate put all other business aside to debate the tax bill.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, will call up the resolution instructing the Senate conferees and setting up a fiscal relations commission at the first opportuity, he said yesterday.

Meanwhile, he is trying to arrange another conference with House managers in a final move to compromise or to sign a formal disagreement. He said that all the conferees cannot be brought together for two days at least.

The fate of the District appropriation bill appears to depend upon the speed with which Congress adjourns. If present plans to end the session this week or early next prove successful, Thomas may be forced to put through a continuing resolution at the last minute.

However, should Congress recess over the Republican Convention, more time will be available for further conferences and the prospects for an agreement on the original bill will be improved.

Senator Thoams expressed the belief that the plan to adjourn this week will not be effected and that an accord may yet be reached between Senate and House conferees.

The resolution, which was blocked Tuesday on a technical objection by Senator McNary, minority leader, instructs the Senate conferees to insist upon the $5,700,000 lump sum in the pending bill and, at the same time, sets up a fiscal relations commission.

One of the three members would be named by the Speaker of the House, one by the Vice President and the chairman by the President.

The commission would report to the President and the next District budget would include whatever Federal contribution the commission recommended.

Notable Screen Bills Feature The New Week

New Programs Promise to Afford Diversified Entertainment.

Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell, Frank Morgan and Reginald Owen are the foremost players in "Trouble for Two," the screen feature of the bill announced for the week beginning tomorrow at Loew's Fox Theater. The story is a film adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson's fantastic tale of "The Suicide Club" and abounds in adventure, comedy and romance. On the stage, the chief attraction will be the symphony orchestra of 60 pieces assembled by Yascha Bunchuk, which is expected to mark a new high point of musical achievement for Capital picture houses. Others on the stage bill will include Vivian Fay, the Three Swifts, Talbott Haslett, Washington singer, and the Elida Dancers.

"Fatal Lady" is the title of the screen play that will occupy the stellar position on the celluloid half of the bill scheduled for the week beginning tomorrow at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. The principal roles are played by Mary Ellis, star of the operatic and dramatic stages as well as the cinema; Walter Pidgeon, John Halliday, Norman Foster, Edgar Kennedy and Ruth Donnelly. On the stage, the proceedings will be headlined by that distinguished English maestro, Jack Hylton and his orchestra. Mr. Hylton denominates his "act" a "Continental Revue," enlisting the services of Pat O'Malley, Magda Neeld and Peggy Dell. Newsreel and Freddie Clark's orchestral contributions will complete the bill.

Although Universal's new picturization of Edna Ferber's "Show Boat" is going great guns in its third week at the RKO-Keith Theater, the management makes known that the next screen attraction on Fifteenth street will be "Let's Sing Again," in which Bobby Breen, the 8-year-old prodigy, is the pictured star. Henry Armetta, George Houston and Vivienne Osborne lead the supporting cast. The bill will be augmented by the customary short-reel subjects.

When the phenomenal six-week run of "Ecstasy," starring Hedy Kiessler, comes to an end at the Belasco Theater, the chief screen attraction will be a revival of "The Guardsman," in which the costellar roles are played in their best manner by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. In the supporting cast will be found such noted players as Roland Young, ZaSu Pitts and Maude Eburne. The companion feature of the bill will be "The Plow That Broke the Plains," best of the U. S. Government documentary films.

For the week beginning tomorrow, the Columbia Theater will present as its chief screen attraction the new costarring vehicle for Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor, "Small Town Girl." In this subject, Miss Gaynor does perhaps the best work of her career as the young woman of the title who was almost "done in" by the requirements of being the metroplitan wife of a brilliant young surgeon. The usual short-reel features will supplement the major offering.

Ronald Colman, Claudette Colbert, Victor McLaglen and Rosalind Russell will continue to occupy the screen at Loew's Palace Theater for a second week, beginning tomorrow, in the Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of Ouida's famous story of "Under Two Flags." A huge supporting cast appears in this romantic adventure story, set at the edge of the Sahara Desert, where the Foreign Legion undergoes its trial by fire. The supplementary subjects also will be carried over.

For the week beginning next Sunday, the Little Theater will present a revival of "Smilin' Thru" as the chief feature of its bill. The principal roles in this subject are assumed by Norma Shearer, Frederic March and Leslie Howard. The bill will be augmented by abbreviated camera subjects and newsreel.

With summer temperatures prevailing these past few days, Glen Echo Park really has hit its midsummer stride. All of the attractions—and they are 50 or more in number—are in full operation, including the Crystal Pool, one of the finest natatoriums in the East. Dancing continues a popular feature in the Spanish Garden Ballroom and the self-driven motorboats are still getting a big play.

"Kapital Kapers" will hold the boards at the National Theater on Friday and Saturday nights of this week. This revue, presented by the Young Democrats Club of Washington, has been prepared under the stage direction of William Holbrook, noted New York director, and will consist of 24 varied program units. Among the principals are Helen Shaffer Mark, mezzo; Orma Ewing, S. Carlton Ayres, Regina Hope, Jack Collins, Betty Grey and Charles Dixon, supported by an ensemble of 125.

Tomorrow night at 8:30 in the auditorium of Wilson Teachers' College, the Players' Club of the Central Community Center will present their final play of the season, Owen Davis' "The Haunted House." Evelyn Schweizer and William Austin Davis appear in the leading roles.

"The Nut Farm" will be presented by the East Washington Troupers in honor of the faculty and graduating class of Eastern High School next Tuesday night in the school auditorium at 8:15 o'clock. Admission will be by invitation only.

Metropolitan

"THE KING STEPS OUT." Columbia picturization of a story by Gustav Holm, Ernst Decsey, Hubert Marischka and Ernst Marischka, adapted to the screen by Sidney Buchman, starring Grace Moore and Franchot Tone, with Walter Connolly, Victor Jory, Raymond Walburn, Elisabeth Risdon, Nana Bryant, Frieda Inescourt, Herman Bing, George Hassell and Johnny Arthur. Music by Fritz Kreisler. Directed by Josef von Sternberg.

The lilting Kreisler melodies from the operetta "Cissy," have transferred themselves to the Metropolitan Theater, where Grace Moore continues to exert the charm of her splendid voice from the screen in a continuation of the downtown run of "The King Steps Out." Yesterday's audiences perpetuated the enthusiasm with which this sprightly subject was greeted upon its recent engagement at the Earle.

The story is a vivacious one of typical comic opera proportions and implausibility which is as rich in humor as it is in romance. It is all based on the slightly hoary legend of the ugly duckling princess who saves har favored sister from an unwelcome royal match by winning the youthful king for herself. The scene of the action is the Hungary of the Hapsburgs, with fleeting glimpses of Bavaria, whence come the family intent upon furthering their prestige by alliance with the ruling house in Vienna.

Is Whimsical Romance.

During the process of an unwitting and very gay courtship, incognito, the king surrenders to those youthful spontaneities that give logical rise to the title borne by him. He steps out not once, but times enough to make certain that the little "dressmaker," with whom he has been celebrating, is "the girl" instead of her more sedate sister. It is all as whimsical as it is tuneful and pleasing to the eye.

The cast was chosen with a fine eye to diversity of mood and action. Miss Moore, of course, is the hoydenish Cissy, who pulls the wool over everybody's eyes but her own, and Franchot Tone is an amiable and likable young monarch. The burden of the comedy falls to the lot of Walter Connolly, as a beer-drinking Bavarian paterfamilias, and Herman Bing, in the role of an "r" rolling innkeeper. The best of the straight character delineations are contributed by Elisabeth Risdon, as the queen mother, and Frieda Inescourt, as the princess who didn't want Francis Joseph until she discovered she couldn't have him.

"The King Steps Out" is a complete triumph for Director Josef von Sternberg, who seldom has done anything quite so handsomely as this.

The program inaugurated yesterday at the Metropolitan, as usual, is augmented by short-reel screen subjects and the combined issues of the Paramount and Universal newsreels.

'Cinderella' Is Chosen.

Nelson B. Bell

About the Showshops

HAVING belatedly dropped in a night or two ago to catch my first view of "Ecstasy," just ending its record-breaking, six-week engagement on the screen at the Belasco Theater, I find much to applaud and much to condemn in this Czechoslovakian source of controversy.

BELL.

Paced to the normal gait of a snail, the picture, nevertheless, betrays an eloquent sense of directorial skill. It tells its story with an almost irreducible minimum of dialogue, yet tells it so transparently that none can fail to grasp what many are pleased to consider its sinister import. And I would not be the one to say that its import is not sinister. Certainly there is no leaning over backward on the side of delicacy in the unfolding of the tale of the beautiful young woman married to an elderly tycoon and infatuated with a young engineer engaged on a PWA project, or something.

By use of symbols that may hardly be mistaken, is unfolded a sordid story that offers rather ample justification for the perturbation originally felt by the customs officials when the first prints of "Ecstasy" reached this country to serve as fuel for an official bonfire. I should not be at all surprised to learn that it was merely a case of spontaneous combustion, after all.

But whether his subject matter was wholly chaste or not, the director of "Ecstasy" demonstrated a complete command of the possibilities of his medium. The subtlety of his innuendo is superb; his utilization of feminine nudity utterly frank without at any time being malignantly flagrant. It is the underlying theme of the whole business that makes it fair prey for the censors.

I cannot for the life of me understand why they didn't call it "Sexstasy" hot off the bat and have done with it!

It is Ed Hill, chairman, who calls up to say that the boys' and girls' committee of the Washington Kiwanis Club is presenting an Indian marionette show in the Almas Temple rooms, 1315 K street, tonight at 8. The entertainment will be provided by Indians from the Haskell Institute and will deal with the tribal rites and legends of the original Americans. The Haskell group are in Washington as a special feature of the Farm Women's convention now in session.

A note from Helen Hoerle, one of the more able of the distaff disseminators of theatrical intelligence practicing her profession in the purlieus of Times Square, announces that A. Raymond Gallo has engaged Stuart Chaney to fashion the scenery and costumes for "The King's Breakfast," the comedy of England in 1881, by Rita Weiman and Maurice Marks, which will be placed in rehearsal immediately after Labor Day under the direction of Auriol Lee. "We hope to open in Washington—hence this," says Helen in a personal aside.

It would be interesting to know when a fellow is supposed to get a little sleep. Here comes a note from Ray Bell—no relation—of the Loew forces, announcing that "Fury" will be screened for the drayma desks at high noon on Saturday. As I see it, there is no sense whatever to these previews in the middle of the night.

Dots and Dashes.

Speaking of busman's holidays—as nobody was—Col. Harry Long, former Loew division manager in this territory, motored into Washington from Cleveland Tuesday afternoon and left yesterday for Virginia Beach . . . After a little suntanning and theater looking-overing, Col. and Mrs. Long will return to the Capital for the week-end . . . And then get back to work in Cleveland . . . And were they prevalent at the Variety Club Tuesday night! . . . This fellow Steve Cochran, the old Panjandrum of the National Theater, has something up his sleeve besides his arm . . . Walking around the streets wearing an expression like that self-satisfied cat that just swallowed the canary, Mr. Cochran, one suspects, has sewed up that summer theater project that has been driving him nuts these past several weeks . . . Although that is hardly a drive—just a short putt! . . . But try to wheedle the details out of him! . . . It takes a very fine wheedler, indeed, so if yours is out of repair, don't try it . . . A Miss Appleby and a Miss Kelly, the former secretary to Irving Thalberg, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and the latter serving in a like capacity to Harry Rapf, are in Washington trying to find their way around on a sightseeing trip . . . And so is Ed Kuykendahl, national president of the M. P. T. O. A. . . . Motion Picture Theater Owners of America to you . . . Mr. and Mrs. Art Reilly are hosting their friends at the Willard on Sabbath afternoon in celebration of their twentieth wedding anniversary . . . Chomming pipple, the Reillys, numbered among this department's most valued friends . . . Even if Art is as inveterate a punner as some others we meet every time we look in a mirror . . . Those newcomers to the Fox Movietone News, Ed Sullivan and Jimmy Fidler, are valuable additions . . . The Post's "Broadway" columnist may be a little cramped by that opera hat and overcoat, but he knows his way around and all the principal guys by their front names . . . And while you are at the Fox, it might occur to you that Benny Meroff is only a step away from Frank and Milt Britton and the California Collegians as impresario of the prize nut band of the four-five-or-six-a-day . . . Add local street scenes: Superintendent of Schools Ballou enjoying a luncheon toothpick on the curb at Fourteenth and I streets at 1 o'clock of a Chewsday . . . Katharine Cornell started something . . . Hot on the heels, so to speak, of her illustrated brochure, comes one from Walter Hampden in celebration of his 1,000th performance of Cyrano in the Rostand comedy of the Bergerac . . . Very handsome . . . And it makes no mention of the fact that "Achilles Had a Heel."

Beating-You-to-the-Punch Note.

Nor of the fact that The Post has one, too, for ever bringing that up!

Catholic University Seniors to Be Feted

Catholic University alumni will join this week in celebration of "Senior Week" at the school. The alumni will open the commencement week program with a dance Friday night at the Willard Hotel in honor of seniors.

On Tuesday, the seniors will face the alumni at baseball. The game is slated for 2 p. m. On the same night, a smoker will be given at the Hamilton Hotel at 8 o'clock. Seniors then will be welcomed into the alumni association.

Griffith-Consumers Shows Heating Devices

One of the most complete exhibits of automatic coal and oil heating equipment ever show in the East has been opened to the public by Griffith-Consumers Co., fuel dealers. Almost the entire first floor of the company's main office at 1413 New York avenue northwest has been devoted to the exhibit of modern heating and air conditioning equipment for the home.

The display is attracting many visitors.

Trio to Photograph Mountain From Air

Three men will take off in an airplane early in July from Fairbanks, Alaska, to photograph for the first time from the air America's highest mountain and the uncharted wastes to the south and west of it.

Mount McKinley is the mountain. It reaches 20,300 feet skyward. It's snow-tipped cap has never been photographed from a plane. Neither have the furrows—the hills and gulleys—of its topography.

Bradford Washburn, of Cambridge, Mass., noted explorer and photographer, will make the pictures. With him will be only a pilot and an assistant in an especially equipped plane.

Two years ago, Washburn led an expedition over the jagged glaciers to the summit of Mount Crillon, 12,727 feet.

104 to Get Degrees At Southeastern

With the commencement address delivered by Sir Willmott Lweis, Washington correspondent of the London Times, commencement exercises will be held tonight at Southeastern University.

Degrees will be given to 104 graduates.

In the school of accountancy, 38 will be graduated, while 66 will receive degrees from the school of law. Gold scholarship keys will be given three honor students. Dr. James A. Bell, president of the university, will make the awards.

George W. Offutt, dean of the school of law and vice president of the Y. M. C. A., will introduce Sir Willmott.

Dr. C. E. Hawthorne, pastor of the Wallace Memorial Presbyterian Church, will offer the invocation.

Indians Will Depict Legends, Customs

The Blackfeet Indian legend of Scarface and how he won Bright Star, the girl he loved, will be enacted tonight at 8 o'clock in Almas Shrine Temple, 1315 K street northwest, by the famous Indian marionettes of Haskell Institute.

Sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Washington, the program will be a benefit performance for the boys' and girls' committee fund. Charles W. Pimper is chairman.

Four boys and two girls are the puppeteers. They are Maggie Kewaskum, Bessie Metlock, Kenneth Scott, Joe Wesley, Robert Sommers and Dana Knight. All have had many months of training in pulling the strings and reciting the parts. Besides "Scarface," the entertainment will include a Potawatomi Eagle Dance, an Assiniboine Fool Dance and vocal selections.

Yanks Blast White Sox, 11 to 1

Ruffing Wins as Phelps Loses His First to Victors.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 3.—The Yankees climbed aboard Babe Phelps today, after being beaten twice by him this season, and shelled him from the mound in chalking up an 11-to-1 win over the Chicago White Sox, to even their current series.

Two-thirds of the Yanks' Italian batting brigade, Frank Crosetti and Joe DiMaggio, led the 15-hit barrage on Phelps and his successor, Red Evans, who was called in for relief duty in the midst of the New Yorkers' sixth-inning, four-run attack.

Charlie Ruffing, turning in his fifth victory of the season, for a .500 pitching average, let the White Sox down with five hits as the Yankees maintained their 3½-game edge in the American League standings.

Crosetti had a double and single, and hit his seventh homer. DiMaggio brought his consecutive game hitting streak to 16 by hammering out a single and a triple, the latter with the bases loaded.

The lone Chicago run, in the third, came as a result of a pass to Rip Radcliff, singles by Mule Haas and Mike Kreevich and Zeke Bonura's fly.

168 Set for National Open Tourney Today

Revolta Held Favorite, Picard Next; Parks 50-1 Shot.

By Dave Herman,
A Staff Correspondent.

One hundred and sixty-eight of golf's finest thoroughbreds will face the barrier in the fortieth running of what looms as the most exciting National Open championship in history.

Final workouts were held today under a blistering sun that baked the fairways and greens and worked to advantages in some cases and disadvantages in others.

The race will be over the 72-hole route, with each post 18 holes. The idea is to make each post a winning one—the aim of 134 professionals and 34 amateurs.

Sam Parks, the Pittsburgh boy who proved . . . Bold Venture of the 1935 Open at Oakmont's treacherous course, isn't figured to come close, for on the line he is rated a 50-to-1 shot.

Revolta Is Standout.

Since last year's unexpected triumph, Parks has fared miserably. He won something like $50 in the coast-to-coast tournaments, which is a poor showing for a National Open champion.

Late this evening when the firing and the ballyhoo ended, the name of Johnny Revolta, the Evanston, Ill., professional with the heart and fight of a Brevity, stood out prominantly.

A parting practice round of 69 that followed his 68 of Tuesday left a very favorable impression with the golfing scribes and was the most potent single factor in hoisting him to the top of the line in the pretournament calculations.

Henry Picard, the Hershey kid, whose smooth, free-wheeling swing is a thing of joy to watch, is right behind Revolta in the balloting, although Picard had only a 73 to show for his final tune-up today.

With apologies to Bill Bennings, we would like to offer some of the local golfing horses as they will run tomorrow:

Wiffy Cox, 20 to 1—Hard to guess; may be very close.

Several changes in pairings and starting times involved two Washington, D. C., golfers.

Charlie Kocsis, crack Detroit amateur, recent winner of the Western Collegiate Conference championship, has exchanged places with Billy Taylor, Detroit professional, and will play with Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase Club professional, at 10:45.

Jack Hoerner, former Stanford University star, a Nebraska-born boy now playing out of North Shore Club, Chicago, scene of the 1933 Open won by an Omaha pal, Johnny Goodman, has been paired with Wiffy Cox, of Kenwood, at 1:15. Hoerner, an amateur, replaces Johnny Toman, of Chicago, who withdrew.

Mel Shorey, East Potomac pro, tees off at 9:40 with Red Gann, of Chattanooga, and Leo Walper, unattached District professional, will play with Louis Chiapetta, of Jackson, Mich., at 11:50.

To Start at 8:15.

If practice scores mean anything, Ralph Beach, former Washington, D. C., pro, now at Suburban, Baltimore, should step out tomorrow. Beach, playing with Barnett, shot a 69 and tied Revolta for the day's practice honors. Barnett was way off, carding a 77.

Cox played with Horton Smith, and the Kenwood fusilier and the

Harris Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Tilt for Bisons

Toronto, Canada, June 3 (AP).—Bill Harris, former Pittsburgh Pirates' pitcher, hurled a no-hit, no-run game for the Buffalo Bisons today in the seven-inning nightcap of a double-header with Toronto. The score was 2 to 0 and gave the Bisons a split in the twin bill, after Toronto won the opener, 5-3.

Jones, Party Play Baltusrol Course And Steal Show

By the Associated Press.

Springfield, N. J., June 3.—Bobby Jones came back to Baltusrol today and on the eve of the National Open golf championship stole the show.

As a finalist in the National Amateur championship here in 1926, and for other obvious reasons, Jones was made an honorary member of the Baltusrol Club. So he was advised upon arriving that if he wished to play, he would, like all other members, play on the lower course. The entrants in the championship were playing on the upper.

So Bobby took his three partners, Hal Sims, the bridge expert; Clarence Budington Kelland, the writer, and Grantland Rice, the sports writer, and they moved over to the first tee and flipped a coin for partners.

By the time Jones had reached the first green several hundred were around the greens, much to the distress of Kelland and Sims, who like to play their golf in privacy.

Jones had two birdies on the first four holes, missing an ace at the first short one by only a few inches. Then, at the first par 5, he hit two tremendous full-wood shots to within 10 feet of the pin, but missed the putt and was forced to take a birdie.

At this point Sims, who drew Rice for a partner, asked Jones if he ever played bridge.

Macks' 5 Runs In 8th Beat Detroit

Athletics' 11-7 Victory Evens Series; Goslin, Fox Hit Homers.

Kimsey Gives 4 Walks, 2 Wild Pitches to Lose Game.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, June 3.—The Athletics evened the series with the Detroit Tigers by capturing the second game today, 11 to 7.

Five runs in the eighth, when Relief Pitcher Chad Kimsey gave up two singles, four walks and two wild pitches, cinched the game for the Macks.

Pete Fox and Goose Goslin hit homers in the fifth and ninth innings, respectively. Goslin's started a three-run rally after the first two men up in the ninth expired.

Giants Beat Cubs At Chicago, 3 to 0

Chicago, June 3 (AP).—For the first time in more than a year the New York Giants defeated the Cubs at Wrigley Field today, getting to Curt Davis in the first inning for all their runs and a 3-to-0 victory.

Hal Schumacher snapped the Giants' three-game losing streak by holding the Cubs to three hits, one each in the second, fifth and seventh. It was the lean right-hander's sixth victory against two losses.

Champ Sees Schmeling, Says Louis In for Interesting Time

By the Associated Press.

Napanoch, N. Y., June 3.—James J. Braddock, the heavyweight champion, watched Max Schmeling go through his paces today and predicted the German will make things interesting for Joe Louis in the Yankee Stadium June 18.

"Max looks pretty good," said the champ. "He's in tip top physical condition and he's hitting better. He's sharppened up his right a lot since I saw him.

"He's changed his style of fighting a bit, too. In his other fights in this country Max has always used a weaving form of attack and taken a lot of punches. Now he's standing up as he goes in and they're not hitting him so often."

"Will Max make trouble for Louis?" some one asked.

"I don't know about that, for I haven't seen Joe box and I don't know how to take these stories about his poor condition," replied Braddock. "But I know that the Schmeling I saw today is capable of putting up an interesting fight with anyone."

The regulars here say today's workout was the best since Schmeling began boxing more than two weeks ago. Before 500 persons, the Teuton stepped six fast rounds with Jerry Pavelik, Jerry Johnson and Heinz Kohlhaas. He wasn't even blowing at the finish.

Instead of pulling punches and boxing under wraps as most fighters do when future prospective opponents are in the audience, Schmeling really bore down.

He mixed things up with Pavelik and Johnson, then staged a two-round slugging bee with young Kohlhaas. At the finish Max had a slightly cut lip and Kohlhaas a bleeding nose.

Ferrell Hurls Red Sox to Victory

Boston Takes 2d Game From Cleveland by 6-2 Score.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 3.—Wes Ferrell added a timely single to his effective "nuthin ball" delivery today to provide the Boston Red Sox with a 6-2 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

The victory was Ferrell's seventh in 11 starts and the second straight for the Red Sox over the hard-crowding Indians. Those rivals have met six times this season and honors are now even.

The Indians scored twice in the fourth and had a 2-1 lead when Ferrell's single scored Johnny Kroner and Moe Berg in the seventh. Johnny Allen, Cleveland's starting pitcher, was belted for five one-baggers and Jimmy Foxx's double for a total of five runs in that inning.

When all the damage had been done, Allen was relieved by Ralph Winegarner, who pitched perfect ball for the Sox's last turn at bat.

Indian News Captures Feature Event in Mud at Charles Town

Bonnie Dhu Wins Place Honors

Wise Sister 3d; Marge Takes 1st; Palumbo Rides 2 Winners.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 3.—Indian News, a daughter of either The Porter or Messenger, according to the breeding books, ploughed through the mud here this afternoon to win the Front Royal, the feature race of the day. J. B. Belk's colors, worn by the winner, were first and third in the 6½-furlong contest with Wise Sister taking the show money. Between them came Bonnie Dhu to flatter her backers.

Some 3,000 customers were in the stands and the majority stuck with the form and backed the Belk entry into odds on favoritism. A $3.60 mutuel resulted.

The summer heat and the dust that marked the morning were chased by a drenching rain that broke just after the finish of the third race and made the track a lake. Thereafter the horses had a sticky, soggy oval.

Had the pay-off on the feature race been made at the far turn, Prince Turley would have taken the honors by the best part of a city block. The Prince of Wales gelding opened a lead going to the first turn and ran like a scared rabbit along the backstretch. Bonnie Dhu made some futile attempts to keep up but Jockey Tryon was content to restrain Indian News in third position just ahead of Wise Sister.

Turning for the stretch, Prince Turley began to wilt and Indian News began to gather the momentum that was to make her the winner. Bonnie Dhu just kept moving at the same gait. In the stretch, Prince Turley quit to a walk and Indian News answered the drive of her rider to be "going away" at the end.

Two sons of Flying Ebony teamed to produce the day's $61.40 Daily Double.

The only race of the day run on a fast track, saw Marge, thought to be only a mudder, take the mragin of Egeon, the favorite and Forest Faun. A field of seven competed over the seven furlong close. L. Garrett did a good job of riding the $6.80 winner. The storm that had been brewing began to break as the horses reached the stretch.

The second event was run over a track that resembled a canal. Flying Carpet, purchased last week by Mrs. M. N. Bond at Belmont, proved the winer by a nose margin over the favored Truthfully with Roque Pine third. Truthfully set all the pace and appeared to have the race locked up when she entered the stretch. However, Jockey Hernandez let up on his riding believing he would win easily. He put his mount to punishment when he found Flying Carpet closing on him but Truthfully could not resist the Flying Ebony colt. The wnner paid $9.40 and was in charge of Sammy Palumbo.

Another son of Flying Ebony found the sloppy track to his liking in the third race. Justa Flight picked up the leaders going into the far turn and emerged in front to hold Flying Dervish safe in the final drive. Povel, the pace setter most of the way, was third in a field of eight. Justa Flight was overlooked in the wagering and paid a $15.60 mutuel.

Mazyniata, a $5.20 favorite, led all the way in the fifth race to defeat among others, Towee and Big Dipper. Palumbo rode his second winner of the day on the ancient Mayne mare.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARGE, $6.80, $2.80, $2.80; EGEON, $3.20, $2.40; FOREST FAUN, $2.80.

MARGE had speed to go to the front at once, was rated along and was midly shaken up to resist EGEON'S closing rush. The latter, forwardly placed, made repeated attempts to challenge the leader during the last three furlongs and was closing around rapidly at the end. FOREST FAUN had no excuses. FOGGY DAWN outrun to the stretch, closed full of run. CANYONE went evenly. THREE GRAND had a flash of early speed. JUSTA MOMENT was a trailer.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING CARPET, $9.40, $4.20, $3.20; TRUTHFULLY, $3.80, $2.80; ROQUEPINE, $3.20.

FLYING CARPET, outrun to the stretch turn, came with a bold rush when placed to punishment and wore down TRUTHFULLY in final strides. The latter assumed command at once, opened up a long lead leaving the backstretch, but tired suddenly in the last eighth despite severe punishment. Hernandez let up on his mount entering the stretch. ROQUEPINE saved ground all the way and closed willingly along the rail. BUSY TONY began improving his position at the far turn, but could not threaten. DOREEN quit after forcing the pace for a half. PORTEVER was virtually left and pulled up lame.

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, SLOPPY.

THIRD RACE—About 5 furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:29½. Off at 3:30½. Winner, Mrs. M. R. Waugh's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JUSTA FLIGHT, $15.60, $6.60, $4.20; FLYING DERVISH, $6.20, $3.20; POVEL, $5.20.

JUSTA FLIGHT, sent into contention with a rush in mid-backstretch, came around leaders to take command entering the stretch and held FLYING DERVISH safe. The latter worked his way up steadily and came with a closing rush under punishment. POVEL, first away, shook off PETEE LAD, but tired entering the final straightaway. PETEE LAD could not keep up. TULEYRIES STAR saved ground all the way, but could not threaten. GOOD GRACIOUS had early speed.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $61.40.

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, MUDDY.

FOURTH RACE—About 5 furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. The Lee Town. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:03½. Winner, O. S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVER ARCH, $28.00, $6.00, $3.00; CLEAR KNIGHT, $3.40, $2.60; ROYAL VEIL, $2.60.

SILVER ARCH, rushed to the front at once, ran head and head with CLEAR KNIGHT to the far turn, carried latter slightly wide swinging for the stretch and was drawing clear at the end. CLEAR KNIGHT was rushed to the pace setter, fought it out willingly thereafter. ROYAL VEIL saved ground entering the stretch and closed full of run. JACK LOW went evenly and had no excuses. ADRIATIC had brief early speed.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. The Chesapeake. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:28. Off at 4:31. Winner, A. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAZYNIATA, $5.20, $3.20, $2.80; TOWEE, $8.00, $4.60; BIG DIPPER, $14.00.

MAZYNIATA, quickest to begin, stood off repeated challenges from BIG DIPPER and drew far out while saving ground and was being urged slightly at the end. TOWEE, a trailer for a half, went through on the rail entering the stretch and closed with good courage. BIG DIPPER tired in the final stages from chasing the winner. RUNANSTAY showed a good even effort. MINTIE went wide at the first two turns. BARNSTORMER appeared to dislike going mud and quit after a half.

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, MUDDY.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; allowances. The Front Royal. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:01½. Off at 5:07. Winner, J. B. Belk's ch. f. (4), by The Porter or Messenger—Nantokah. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:28.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—INDIAN NEWS (entry), $3.60, $2.60, $3.00; BONNIE DHU, $6.40, $4.00; WISE SISTER (entry), $3.00.

INDIAN NEWS, within striking distance of the leaders, while under slight restraint from the start, came with a rush when put to a drive entering the stretch and easily dis osed of BONNIE DHU. The latter, closest to the pace, saved ground and came willingly at the end, but was unable to resist the winner. WISE SISTER went wide into the stretch and closed resolutely in the middle of the track. WISE MONEY dropped back steadily after being forwardly placed for three furlongs. PRINCE TURLEY opened a long lead along the backstretch, but tired suddenly and pulled up lame. CHAMBERSBURGER was always outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 5:33. Off at 5:34. Winner, Mrs. S. Eames' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DR. JILLSON, $13.00, $8.00, $4.00; FAMOUS CLAYTON, $5.20, $3.40; THIS PLAY, $3.60.

DR. JILLSON was sprinted to the front on the outside going to the first turn, was steadied along in front while saving ground and was being eased up through the stretch. FAMOUS CLAYTON went to the outside for racing room midway of the backstretch, gained steadily thereafter and was next best. THIS PLAY saved ground entering the straightaway and closed with good courage. FLAGEOLET faltered after being forwardly placed for a half. LADY GLASGOW was through early. HARMOAK went very wide at the first turn and was not persevered with thereafter.

EIGHTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:59. Off at 6:03. Winner, A. W. Getz's ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOTTY DON, $7.20, $4.00, $3.40; DEARZIN, $4.40, $4.80; PUKKA HEAVEN, $3.80.

SCOTTY DON assumed command in the opening furlong, shook off PUKKA HEAVEN, but had to be ridden out to hold DEARZIN safe. DEARZIN, shuffled back going to the first turn, came through on the rail to engage SCOTTY DON at far turn and fought it out willingly, but Palumbo outrode Pikor. PUKKA HEAVEN, off alertly, showed a good effort. TULEYRIES WAND went evenly, but could not threaten. The others were never factors.

Mrs. Walper Is Surprise Victim

Mrs. Mackenzie Stages Desperate Rally to Triumph.

By Helen Dettweiler.

Three Congressional golfers gained the semifinal round in the District Women's Championship, as Mrs. Roland Mackenzie had to stage an almost desperate rally to come through.

Mrs. Mackenzie, one of the tournament favorites, was 1 down to her clubmate, Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, coming up to the eighteenth hole. Mrs. Dowdall's third shot was about 20 feet past the pin, and she failed to drop her 4 as Mrs. Mackenzie pitched her third within a few inches of the cup for a sure par. At the nineteenth hole Mrs. Mackenzie had a birdie 5 to Mrs. Dowdall's par 6.

So, in the next round, the Congressional champion will meet Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley, who is after her third crown.

And an interesting phase of the tournament is that in the semifinals two Bettys will meet, and in another bracket of that same flight two Helens will meet for Mrs. J. O. (Helen) Rhyne disposed of Mrs. Leo Walper, while Miss Helen Dettweiler blasted the hopes of Miss Winifred Faunce for another clean-up.

Miss Faunce Upset.

Miss Faunce played very well—stroking around the long layout in 34—she showed the lack of playing only when she three-putted. The Manor star lost the first hole to a birdie 5, but from then on it was a close struggle.

Miss Faunce laid her opponent a stymie on the sixteenth green to win the hole and decrease Miss Dettweiler's lead to 1. The seventeenth was halved in fours as Miss Faunce sank a long putt, and then on the eighteenth Miss Dettweiler laid a stymie to blast all hopes of a tie.

Mrs. L. G. Pray, one of Manor's leading stars, took Mrs. Meckley all the way to the sixteenth hole before bowing, 3 and 2. Mrs. Meckley completed the 13 and turned in the lowest score of the day, a fine 82.

Mrs. Walper Beaten.

Mrs. J. O. Rhyne eliminated one of the tourney's outstanding favorites when she disposed of Mrs. Leo Walper on the fifteenth green by the count of 4 and 3. This might be termed a minor upset, although Mrs. Rhyne has been playing fine golf of late.

There were highlights in other flights. Miss Marion Brown, the young Manor star and one of the District's better players, bowed to Mrs. E. L. Reed, who shot a good 88 to win, 3 and 2.

Mrs. Frank R. Cheefer, of Chevy Chase, took Mrs. T. J. Johnson, recent winner of the Star Cup, to the twenty-first hole before she could dispose of her in the longest match of the day. Miss Mary Jane Lightbown, who had played only three 18-hole rounds previously, continued to forge ahead in her flight by conquering Mrs. T. D. Peyser on the last green.

Results of other matches and pairing times are as follows:

First flight—Miss Helen Dettweiler defeated Miss Winifred Faunce, 2 up; Mrs. J. O. Rhyne defeated Mrs. Leo Walper, 4 and 3; Mrs. R. R. Mackenzie defeated Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, 1 up, 19 holes; Mrs. Betty Meckley defeated Mrs. L. G. Pray, 3 and 2.

Ballston Jrs. to Play.

The New U. S. Open Champion May Be in This Group

168 to Tee Off In Open Play Today

Joplin ghost trimmed Jimmy Thomson and Johnny Rogers, Denver pro, 2 up. Mr. Cox was 10 bucks richer tonight. Cox reported a 75.

Shorey and Walper weren't het up about their scores. Each had about 77.

The all-day parade will start at 8:15, with Jack Munger, Texas amateur flash, and Zell Eaton, of Oklahoma, who recently turned pro, breaking first on this 6,886-yard par-72 layout.

With Revolta and Picard big favorites, and Horton Smith well backed, Sarazen, the roving Roman, golfdom's man-of-war, again appeared the most dangerous man in the field, as he always is. Sarazen evaded all questions propounded by reporters, after Billy Burke was 2 up on him and 2 under par in a 13-hole match.

Bobby Jones, retired "grand-slam" ruler, added a touch of drama to the final drills by playing this afternoon in a foursome consisting of Grantland Rice, famous golf scribe; Clarence Buddington Kelland, novelist and short story writer, and Hal Simms, bridge expert.

The general belief is that the golfer who conquers the first six holes will be the man to watch. Those holes run out 1¼ miles before the course doubles back, and, whether the wind is with or against you, there is trouble ahead.

These traps are ridged, the greens closely mowed and rolled, and the rough is long enough to trouble but not punish the golfer, as one pro expressed it. They're not trying to make this course tough. It's fair and a good test of golf. Seven of the golfers who played in the 1915 open here, won by Jerry Travis with a 297 total, are back for another fling. Walter Hagen's one of 'em. None of the boys who played in the 1903 open at the old Baltusrol course is here.

Accounts and Deposits Beats Indian Service

Aided by the brilliance of Pitcher Harry Seay, Accounts and Deposits trimmed Indian Service, 10 to 4, in a Sport Center Government League game yesterday on Diamond No. 12 in East Potomac Park. Rain halted play at the end of the fifth inning.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

IF, as Brisbane, or Socrates or somebody once said, repetition makes reputation, then Jake Powell is in a fair way toward winning some distinction as The Wild Man of the Base Paths in the American League.

POVICH.

Powell is, indeed, the American League's only counterpart of the Cardinals' Pepper Martin, whose riotious base-running is in itself a separate chapter of big league baseball in this generation. With apologies to Powell, they even look alike. Both are built along the same general lines of slightly-stunted Gas House toughies and both affect the short sleeves that reveal deep-tanned smithy biceps and powerful forearms.

Like Martin, Powell is slightly bow-legged and like Martin he can acquire a dirty uniform in a single inning of play. But the resemblance doesn't end there. Like Martin, Powell is fleet of foot, bold of purpose and concentrated granite when he strikes.

Powell's depredations against American League infielders are rapidly winning him the soubriquet of the scourge of the base paths. Already he has tumbled Hank Greenberg and Mickey Cochrane out of the Tigers' line-up with his slam-bang play and only Bill Werber's looseness at his job saved him a similar fate. But Powell doesn't have to hit to hurt. The damage he has done to teams collectively with his helter-skelter base running has been plenty.

You remember the day he scored all the way from second base when Cliff Bolton slammed a fly to deep centerfield where Wally Moses, of the As, made the catch. Another guy might have been content to pull up at third, but not Jake. He scored on that play and gave Washington fans something to tell their grandchildren about.

He's leading the league in stolen bases now, in case you forget. And a guy doesn't get out in front like that unless he's a swell base runner, and fast to boot. The lead that he takes against the pitcher shames the conservative base runners in the league, but in two seasons of watching him play every day this department has never seen him nipped off a base.

He pulled one out there at Griffith Stadium yesterday that was another one for the books. I mean when he scored from second base on an ordinary force-out in the infield. When Lary took Stone's grounder and forced Myer at second with a throw to Carey, Powell was lighting out for third, already harboring the suspicion that the Browns would try for a double play at the ball.

He was correct. Carey shot the ball across the diamond to Bottomley in an effort to double Stone, but Powell didn't pause at third. He kept on toward home, where the play was close, but Jake didn't bother to slide. He scored standing up because he was between Catcher Rollie Hemsley and Bottomley right in line with the throw and if the ball hit him, why, that was the Browns' tough luck. If the ball did hit him, they'd probably have had to take a couple of stitches in the ball.

Bucky Harris thinks so highly of Jake that he's given the local boy carte blanche to run on his own. Jake doesn't have to wait for any signals from the Washington manager. He runs when he thinks he's got a chance to swipe a base and Harris is willing to let it go at that.

He's lucky, too. When he does miscalculate his speed, and is apparently out by yards, it's 2 to 1 that the catcher will make a wild throw, or the infielder will drop the ball, or something, and Jake will get an extra base. If there's such a thing as a charmed life on the base lines, Jake owns it.

Jake's one of Clark Griffith's best investments. The Washington owner plucked him off the Takoma Park sandlots and nursed him through four minor leagues over five years, but it's a handsome dividend that Jake is paying the Nats. He's injected a gob of color into a ball club that had been as colorless as the space between these lines. He's a show.

Out Fishin' . . . . .

By Jack Hawley.

Yesterday was apparently an excellent day for salt-water fishing. L. B. Johnson, J. Algabright, George Stoneseipe, R. Carey and M. I. Deale took this writer's suggestion and engaged Capt. Emory Evans for a trip to Deals Island, a distance of approximately 28 miles from St. Jeromes Creek (Ridge, Md.), whence they embarked—returning with 240 croakers and 21 trout. Mr. Algabright landed a double—two trout on the same line, one weighing 3 and the other 1¾ pounds.

Their catch of trout averaged 2½ pounds—above average.

However, the trout in the vicinity of Deals Island and, for that matter, around the edge of N. W. Middles are not only abundant now but are running above standard in weight—1½ pounds. Anglers who are procrastinating should change their delayed plans and get on the water now—it won't always continue as it is now, line hitting the bottom and suddenly a strike, then another—an uncommon double. Hundreds of croakers are being brought to shore daily and we trust to worthy beneficiaries.

A. H. G. Mears does the unusual and phones this writer from Wachapreague, Va., as this goes to press: "Sea bass, porgies, channel bass, trout (weak first), croakers and king fish are being landed with regularity by all boats in this vicinity today. In response to your inquiry regarding bluefishing (note) in these waters: They have not arrived and we don't expect them before the water is warmer. We get an occasional straggler but the season is not yet in the making. Give us a few hot days and we'll get 'em—not before." Thanks, Mr. Mears—this column said so yesterday.

From now on the question mark of catching hardheads (croakers) can be erased—they are here and can be caught most anywhere in the Chesapeake or its tidal waters. Get plenty of bait and pick your fishing grounds below but not excluding Galesville, Md. However, the further down the better—later in the season work up toward Galesville, etc., for croakers and trout, also small bluefish. Don't forget the fact that bait is very scarce in the lower Potomac and Chesapeake areas.

Green shrimp and peeler crabs will make your fishing trip a success if you are provided an ample supply, without which you will witness others (anglers) landing them fast and furious and a request for a donation of bait after yours is gone. So take our tip and get your bait here before you leave.

Channing Wins 3 Scholastic Matches

The lanky blond required three hard sets to down Johnny Hatch, ace of Western High, went on to rout Davis Johnsen, District boys champion, 6—1, 6—3, and then whipped Landsman, a fellow Centralite, by scores of 6—1 and 6—2.

Reaching the semifinals along with Channing was Nate Ritzenberg, local and Middle Atlantic junior champion, who disposed of Buddy Adair and M. Hatch. Allie Ritzenberg was leading Zan Carver, of St. Alban's, by one set in a quarter final match when rain halted further activity.

In the doubles division Channing and Adair, of Central, and the Ritzenberg brothers, representing Devitt, reached the final round and will play for the title today at 4 p. m.

The singles tournament also will be concluded today, the semifinals being slated 9:30 a. m. and the finals at 2 p. m.

Singles.

First round—March (Tech) defeated Bruns (Western), 6—2, 6—4; Albert Ritzenberg (Devitt) defeated Cole (Tech), 6—2, 6—0; Carver (St. Albans) defeated Geifand (Central), 6—2, 6—2; Royal (Roosevelt) defeated Burnside (Western), 8—3, 6—4; Adair (Central) defeated Zeller (Tech), 6—0, 6—0; Channing (Central) defeated J. Hatch (Western), 6—0, 1—6, 6—2; Landsman (Central) defeated Hoyt (Woodrow Wilson), 6—1, 1—6, 6—2.

Second round—Albert Ritzenberg (Devitt) defeated March (Tech), 6—4, 9—7; Carver (St. Albans) defeated Royal (Roosevelt), 6—3, 7—9, 6—1; Nathan Ritzenberg (Devitt) defeated Adair (Central), 9—7, 6—1; M. Hatch (Woodrow Wilson) defeated Harford (Tech), 7—5, 6—2; Channing (Central) defeated Johnsen (Roosevelt), 6—1, 6—3.

Third round—Nathan Ritzenberg (Devitt) defeated M. Hatch (Woodrow Wilson), 6—0, 6—2; Channing (Central) defeated Landsman (Central), 6—2, 6—1.

Doubles.

Nathan and Albert Ritzenberg (Devitt) defeated Johnsen and Royal (Roosevelt), 6—0, 6—3; Channing and Adair (Central) defeated Hardy and Zeller (Tech), 6—1, 6—1.

Naval Air Station Takes Loop Lead

Fort Washington Bows, 10-9; Medicos Lose.

Naval Air Station squeezed out a 10-to-9 victory over Fort Washington yesterday to take undisputed possession of first place in the Army-Navy League of the Washington Sandlot Association. Botzko pitched the whole game for the winners.

In the only other league game played yesterday Receiving Station trounced Army Medical Center by a score of 7 to 4. Pitcher Orzech, of the winners, captured individual honors with a two-bagger and a home run in two trips to the plate.

Koverly Loses Match For Socking Referee

New Haven, Conn., June 3 (AP).—Gino Garibaldi, 215, won a wrestling match with George Koverly, 218, tonight when his opponent was disqualified for smacking Referee Jack Fischman on the jaw in the main bout of a card at the arena.

Mangan and Nordell Suspended by A. A. U.

New York, June 3 (AP).—Joe Mangan, one of the country's ranking milers, and Frank Nordell, former New York University track ace, have been suspended indefinitely by the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union.

The two stars were summoned to appear before the registration committee, headed by John Deignan, to explain irregularities in expense accounts. When they failed to put in their appearance, they were automatically suspended, according to Dan Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 3 (AP).—Joe Mangan, one of America's best milers announced tonight he had retired from competition for the year and would not be a candidate for the Olmpic team.

Cowboy Scott Defeats Jacobs by Decision

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Va., June 3.—Cowboy Howard Scott, Washington lightweight, won a unanimous ten-round decision from Stumpy Jacobs, of Norfolk, in a fast feature bout here tonight. The victory was a costly one for Scott, whose left eye was cut so badly in the engagement that he will be unable to box Lou Feldman in Baltimore next Monday night, as scheduled.

The rejuvenated Virginian made a good fight of it from the first bell. He pursued Scott relentlessly for the first four rounds, which he won, but the smart little boxer from the District won more or less with ease from that point on.

DiMaggio Is Due For Slump—Cobb

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, June 3.—Ty Cobb, who ought to know, fears for the batting average of Joe DiMaggio when the men among the spectators begin to shed their coats.

"His hardest days at the plate are just ahead," said Cobb today while discussing the start of the Yankee player in the American League.

"Pretty soon now it'll be as hot as all getout in the Eastern cities and the men in the big double-deck outfield stands will take off their coats. That solid white background will make it much more difficult to hit. If he can continue to murder the ball under these changed conditions he will have no worries."

Lyman's Horses Seek 4th Title In Show

The Riding and Hunt Club show at Meadowbrook next Saturday afternoon will find Col. Lyman's Little John and Mauri Girl each striving for its fourth consecutive championship against severe opposition.

Little John, a 6-year-old brown horse by Scamp, annexed the Hunter championships at the Riding and Hunt, Arlington and Fort Myer shows held recently. Mauri Girl, an aged mare, won the jumpers' championship at the same shows.

Among those to contest the laurels of the Lyman entries will be Emory Galliher's Applejack, hunter champion of this year's National Capital Show, and Margaret Hill's Questionnaire.

The Hunt Club Show will be the second in a series of four. Hunter and jumping champions are named at each show and, at the conclusion of the shows a grand hunter and jumping championship will be awarded.

Nine classes have been arranged for next Saturday's show. They include ladies' hunters, open hunters, working hunters and hunter hacks for hunters, two open jumps, a scurry and a novelty jump for the open horses, and a novice saddle class.

Augustus Riggs, M. F. H., of the Howard County Hunt, and Col. Berkeley T. Merchant, United States Army, will judge.

Steel Demand Ample to Hold Rate of Output

Pig Iron Production in May Is Largest in Six Years.

New York, June 3.—"Without the benefit of much buying in anticipation of higher third-quarter prices, steel demand is sufficient to maintain ingot production at 68 per cent of capacity," says Iron Age in the weekly summary today. "The trend even appears to be upward, and it is likely that the placing of heavy tonnage for June shipment at the current prices will force output above the 70-per cent level this month.

"May pig iron production rose to 84,837 tons daily, a gain of 5.9 per cent over April's rate of 80,123 tons, establishing a new six-year record. Total output was 2,629,957 tons, compared with 2,403,685 tons in April. Five stacks went into blast last month and two were taken off. The 147 active stacks on June 1 were making iron at a rate of 85,790 tons daily.

"Steel price advances, in addition to those announced last week, include steel sheet piling and bolts and nuts. Contrary to early reports, cold-rolled strip will not be raised, nor will wire products. No changes in rail and track accessory prices are expected before the fourth quarter, and discounts on tubular goods will not be altered.

Auto Orders Recede.

"The decline in automobile assemblies, which was rather sharp two weeks ago, amounted to only 1,500 cars last week. During the current period a more pronounced drop will be recorded, but weekly output will still be well above the 100,000-car level. June assemblies will top 400,000 units, but July will see drastic curtailment as preparations for new models are begun. All of the steel required for production of 1936 models is expected to have been purchased by June 15 and not more than a month will be needed to complete shipments. It is possible that motor car makers will stock steel this month against price advances, but not many of them have established their new model needs accurately.

"Orders from the railroads have been light recently, but specifications from the car builders are heavy and will continue through the summer. A secondary rail buying movement is still anticipated. The Birmingham and Colorado mills are approaching the end of their runs, but the Chicago capacity will be operated at 50 per cent through July.

Fabricated structural steel lettings are higher at 20,350 tons, compared with 11,900 tons last week, but new projects have declined from 27,400 tons to 11,800 tons. However a number of large jobs will soon be out for bids. New schools in New York will take 25,000 tons and two sections of the West Side elevated highway in Manhattan will require 12,000 tons."

Cuban Bonds Up $100; Court Holds Them Legal

New York, June 3 (AP).—Cuban Public Works 5½ per cent bonds soared up about $100 per $1,000 face value on the stock exchange early today on the decision of the Cuban Supreme Court holding the issue constitutional and legal. Shortly after the opening of the market the bonds attained a new high for the year at $605 per $1,000 bond on a heavy volume of buying. Profit-taking at the close dropped the price 3 points from high.

An American group, including the Chase National Bank, distributed the 5½s and granted a $20,000,000 bankers' credit, also validated by the decision. The question of legality of the bond issue and the credit had been a source of controversy between the bankers' group and the successive governments of Cuba which followed the termination of the Machado regime in the summer of 1933.

$245,983,073 Issues Are Filed With SEC

The total involved is $245,983,073.21, of which $215,885,575 represents new issues. One statement involving $229,985 was received as a refiling.

Savings Gain Half the Loss Of Lean Years

Total Now 53½ Billions; 56 Billions in 1930 Was High Point.

New York, June 3.—Total national savings as represented by the deposits or assets of savings institutions, according to the Index of the New York Trust Co. today, have made up more than half their depression losses and now aggregate more than $53,500,000,000, as compared with the high point of $56,000,000,000 attained in 1930.

Of these savings, assets of life insurance companies with 63,000,000 policy holders amount to $23,200,000,000, or more than 40 per cent of the total; savings deposits of 41,000,000 persons in mutual savings and other banks to $22,600,000,000, and assets of building and loan associations with 8,000,000 members to $6,445,000,000.

"The renewed upward trend in national savings, reflecting the increase in national income since 1933," the Index says, "has not been uniform for the various classes of institutions cited. The assets of life insurance companies, for example, have continued an expansion which was not even interrupted by the depression. Their record has been one of continuous growth since 1880 and while the pace somewhat slackened after 1931, the total gain since then amounts to some 15 per cent of the total of that year.

"The depression record of mutual savings banks deposits is almost as good in this respect as that of the life insurance companies. There was a consistent increase in total deposits through 1932, when the peak figure of $10,039,958,000 was reached. A decline in the next year carried this down to $9,760,221,000, and it has subsequently recovered to $9,871,523,000. That is, the funds of some 13,415,000 depositors are now less than 3 per cent below their record.

"Savings deposits in other banks and the assets of building and loan societies have not fared so well. The former have increased substantially since 1933, but are still well below their 1928 peak, while the latter experienced a further decline in 1934."

Stocks Drift Lower in Dull Trading; Bond Tone Hardens; Sterling Strong.

New York, June 3.—Rising temperature and humidity depressed the stock market, but bonds hardened. Turnover in stocks was the smallest in three weeks, at 650,000 shares. Prices were irregularly lower throughout. September wheat closed unchanged at 84¾ cents a bushel.

On the home front the most encouraging development was that Congress might possibly adjourn by the end of the week. Cheering as that hope was, the fly could not keep out of the ointment. At least the general opinion was that adjournment was unlikely without passage of a tax measure, the Senate version being favored. No tax aimed at undivided profits of corporations in order to force larger dividend distributions will be liked, nor will it be anything but harmful. In so far as business—particularly small business—may be hurt by such a tax, any temporary advantage to the Treasury of larger collections on individual incomes, increased by heavier dividend payments, will be more than offset by the ailing goose that lays the eggs.

Help in Sight.

To have Congress out of the way will, nevertheless, give business another breathing spell, interrupted though it is bound to be by political spellbinding. Midweek trade news was favorable. The steel trade reviews spoke of good demand and rising operating rates. Railroad freight-car loadings last week fell about 6 per cent under the total of the preceding week, reflecting the holiday interruption, but the traffic was more than 6 per cent greater than in the corresponding week of a year ago. Electrical output also rose sharply, compared with last year.

While that is going on, the consumption trades, wholesale and retail business men, and others, are carrying forward an intensive advertising campaign to capture the bonus dollar, soon to be distributed. With such great interest shown in the spending, it may be taken for granted that trade will fatten on the affair. That will help to stave off the usual summer slackness, but it may have to be paid for this autumn.

Sterling Buoyant.

Sterling rose vigorously by more than 2 cents to a new high price for several months, above $5.02. This was close to the $5.03⅛ high record made February 3. The advance was purely a reflection of a bad break in the London-Paris cross-rate, francs being quoted at more than 76.30 to the pound, as compared with a recent level around 75 francs to the pound. Against dollars the franc was securely anchored at its pegged quotation by the willingness of the Bank of France to allow unlimited amounts of gold to go out, and French franc futures were fairly steady.

The British Equalization Fund which interferes with, but never attempts to fight a definite trend, bought francs around the 76 to the pound level, but withdrew when buying orders for sterling became too heavy. It sold pounds and bought francs again around 76.18 and again at around 76.25, but there was no evidence of a stop-the-rise-at-any-cost attitude. Open market gold fell heavily with francs in London.

Paris Disorders.

The exchange market did not like the news of strikes and disorders in Paris. It felt that, if the unrest were sufficiently powerful, concessions would have to be made and that the outlook was such as to make desirable some reversal of deflationary policies. Yet, as most traders viewed the franc, if the Government moved along anti-deflationary lines all hope for maintaining the present valuation of the franc would have to be given up. The rise in sterling created widespread changes in quotations for currencies in the so-called sterling area. The Scandinavian currencies, Argentine pesos, yen and the Indian rupee rose with vigor.

Flight of Capital.

Trouble broke out in another quarter—Holland. The Dutch Central Bank, noting a great flight of capital and loss of gold in sympathy with the growing difficulties of the French currency, lifted its discount rate to 4½ per cent from 3½ per cent, the usual conventional gesture to stop gold exports. Probably no greater effect will be felt than has followed the last increase in the Bank of France's rate, for the present exodus of funds is impelled by fears for the gold standard itself, rather than by disparities in interest rates and commodity prices as among other countries. It is taken for granted that if France does decide to go off gold, Holland and Switzerland will promptly follow. That then would bring up the question acutely in Germany, Italy and possibly some other countries.

Padding.

So far as reducing padding of subscriptions to new Treasury issues, the Treasury and the Federal Reserve banks might just as well have let the old rules stand. Subscriptions to the new bonds and notes, according to preliminary information given by Secretary Morgenthau, were about seven times the amount asked for. Apparently the subscriptions and the allotments will be about the same as for the issues of last March. There was just as much padding, but it was done by a different class of subscribers. This time the so-called genuine investors—individuals and institutions—asked for more than they wanted. They could see that the new issues would go to a fat premium and that allotments would be greater for banks and other investors than they would be for dealers, so they subscribed for more new securities than usual. They will profit accordingly. All that has happened is that the dealers will make less and other classes of subscribers will get more.

Prevention.

There appears only one effective way for the Treasury to cut down on the joyriding type of subscription. That way, as has been stated here before, would be to ask for less money and to allot on the subscriptions so generously as to give joyriding subscribers a bit of colic. It is clear that the new subscription regulations, for which the Secretary of the Treasury is passing bouquets to the Reserve banks, really embarrassed nobody but a few small dealers who were scanty on capital but long on enthusiasm for Treasury financing operations. Almost any Wall Street house could put in any subscription it desired and pay any amount of money down, borrowing the money on securities other than those about to be issued, which is legitimate.

Holland Rate Raised Again To Keep Gold

Increase, Second in Week, Lifts Discount 1% to 4½%.

By the Associated Press.

Amsterdam, June 3.—The Netherlands bank rate today was ordered raised from 3½ to 4½ per cent, effective tomorrow.

The rate was increased from 2½ to 3½ per cent on May 30.

The action, second increase in the rate in a week, was taken in an attempt to check the outflow of gold and to protect the guilder from speculative attacks.

Financial authorities have expressed fear it might be difficut to hold the guilder on the gold standard should the French franc be devalued.

New York, June 3 (AP).—Wall Street foreign exchange authorities saw today new evidence of crystallization of the French economic and financial difficulties in the labor disorders and continuing outflow of gold from Paris.

Pressure on the French franc, it was felt here, was being transmitted to currencies of other continental gold bloc countries and caused the second increase in a week in the Dutch discount rate which today was raised to 4½ per cent from 3½ per cent.

A new gold shipment left France today when the Acquitania sailed from Cherbourg with $10,200,000 of the monetary metal. The weekly statement of the Bank of the Netherlands, showed that for the period ended June 1 the institution had experienced a gold loss of 43,600,000 guilders (about $29,672,000) cables to bankers here indicated.

Uncertainity over the European gold bloc status brought new demand for the pound sterling both here and abroad. In New York the pound was quoted at $5.02, up 2 1-16 cents to a new high since February. Abroad the pound advanced to 76.25 francs against 75.93 francs yesterday, also a new high for the current move.

Door-to-Door Pick-Up Sets Passenger Peak

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, June 3 (AP).—The largest day's volume of passenger traffic in its history was claimed today by the Cedar Rapids & Iowa City Railway for the initial day of its "door-to-door" passenger service

At a lower cost than standard rates formerly in effect, the company has agreed to pick up passengers at their homes or offices, take them by taxicab to its interurban stations, and then from the other terminal again by cab to their destinations. Officials here said it marked the first time an American railroad had undertaken pick-up and delivery of passengers.

Municipal Bonds Higher.

New York, June 3 (AP).—An advancing trend in municipal bonds since May 1 is indicated by the index of the Bond Buyer, which reached a new high on June 1 with an average yield on bonds of 20 large cities at 3 per cent. On May 1 the average on the same group of bonds was 3.12 per cent.

April Financing At 8-Year Peak

Boston, Mass., June 3.—Total corporate financing in April jumped to the highest amount for any April since 1928, but as in previous months, refunding predominated with only 18 per cent in new capital. Public utilities led by far in refunding operations, with industrials second and rails third.

Wheat Is Firm Against Realizing

Chicago, June 3 (AP).—Persistent dry weather Northwest, a sharp advance of the Liverpool market and a 2-point rise of sterling tended to lift Chicago wheat prices today. In the end, however, stimulating effects were almost neutralized by bearish unofficial crop estimates and by profit-taking sales on the part of previous buyers.

Wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to ¼ cent up, July, 84½@84⅝; September, 84⅝@84¾; December, 86¾@86⅞; corn, unchanged to ⅝ higher; July, 60@60⅛; September, 57⅝; December, 52½; oats, ⅜@½ advanced; July, 25⅛, and rye at ¼ gain; July, 54. # Hawaii Calls for Bids On $1,750,000 Bonds

New York, June 3.—The Territory of Hawaii, through Treasurer W. C. McGonagle, has issued a formal call for bids on an issue of $1,750,000 of territorial refunding bonds. Bids will be received until June 12 at the office of Bankers Trust Co., New York.

Bidders will be required to name an interest rate not to exceed 3 per cent, with one rate of interest for all maturities which are to run from 1941 to 1945. No price less than par will be considered.

Brunswick-Balke Dividend.

Chicago, June 3 (AP).—Directors of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. have authorized payment of a dividend of 1¼ per cent on the preferred stock, it was announced today. The dividend is payable July 1 to stock of record June 20.

Real Income Drops Despite Higher Wages

April Increases in Rent and Food Cut Into Net Balance.

New York, June 3.—The average man, woman and child in the United States had more money to spend during April than in March. At the end of April, however, they had less money left from their income than they did in March. Increases in wages and salaries fattened April pay envelopes. Higher prices for food and rent in April, however, took more from the average pocketbook than they did in March. As a result the real income, which is the difference between actual income and living costs, last month was two-tenths of 1 per cent less than in March, according to the current consumers' study made by Investors Syndicate.

Wages and salaries during April were up 2.1 per cent and 1.6 per cent, respectively, over those in March, but the income index was up only two-tenths of 1 per cent, because investment income, the money received from securities in the form of interest and dividends, declined 3 per cent. The trend of investment income is upward, as indicated by the profits of corporations, but few large corporations made interest or dividend payments during April.

Clothing Lower.

Although clothing quotations were down two-tenths of 1 per cent and general expenditures declined seven-tenths of 1 per cent in April, compared with a month earlier, such decreases were more than offset by advances of 1.2 per cent in food and 1.4 per cent in rents, the latter two items being sufficient to bring about a net increase in consumers' outgo of four-tenths of 1 per cent, just double the rise in income, thereby causing a net decline of two-tenths of 1 per cent in real income.

The average American on May 1, 1936, however, had 4.8 per cent more real income than he did on the same date a year ago. Between these two dates wages and salaries rose 6.6 and 5.2 per cent, respectively.

Bank of Commerce Votes $5 in Dividends

Directors of the Bank of Commerce & Savings have declared a dividend of $3 per share on the stock of the bank and a special dividend of $2, both payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20.

Philadelphia Sets New Shipping Peak

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP).—The Board of Commissioners of Navigation announced today that shipping at the Philadelphia Port during May exceeded the all-time high mark of April.

An increase of 34 vessels, 106,698 gross registered tons in foreign shipping and 8,056 tons in intercoastal trade, was reported. The increases were in the importation of sugar, iron ore and chalk. Coal, benzol and lubricating oil led the export trade gains.

Power Output Drops Slightly for Week

New York, June 3 (AP).—The Edison Electric Institute reports output of electric power last week totaled 1,922,108,000 kilowatt-hours, a decrease of 1.2 per cent from the preceding week, and an increase of 18.0 per cent over the same week last year. The decline was less than seasonally expected.

All major geographical regions reported a substantial improvement over a year ago.

The Federal Diary

By Betty Read.

Perhaps the question of whether Claude Babcock will continue as president of the American Federation of Government Employes will be settled Saturday. Perhaps it won't.

Anyway, last Friday Babcock sent out telegrams asking all other members of the national executive council to meet him at the Hamilton Hotel on that day, and the much-discussed question of whether he has injured the effectiveness of the federation by his criticism of the "spoils system" of the Roosevelt Administration, issued by the Republican National Committee, will be threshed out.

With the annual convention of the A. F. G. E. scheduled for September in Detroit, this meeting may be simply the gun that sets off the powder that will blow him out of office, or it may be that the whole question will be dropped here and now. The convention does not elect officers this year, so Babcock would normally continue for another year, and he made his first statement on the situation yesterday when he declared: "I have no intention of resigning unless the good of the federation requires it or unless the majority of the federation asks it."

Procedure Outlined.

The constitution provides a special method of removing or recalling officers and it was said at headquarters yesterday that this is the only means by which Babcock can be relieved of the presidency.

"Fifteen per cent of lodges in good standing shall, upon united request, require the executive council of the federation, through the secretary, to submit to initiative vote any definitely stated proposition proposed; to referendum vote, and any action of the convention or executive council; to recall vote, any member of the executive council, or of any committee of the federation," the constitution reads.

As president, Babcock is a member of the executive council and therefore subject to these regulations.

It further provides that local lodges shall have the right of intercommunication to acquire the necessary 15 per cent to initiate action on a recall proposition. Any officer against whom recall has been started shall be served with a copy of reasons and no vote shall be taken until this officer has been given an opportunity for explanation in the official organ.

"The provisions of this article shall be the law, notwithstanding the interpretation of any other article," the constitution states.

Political Link Denied.

Babcock denied that he has any political ambitions, either here or in his home State of Michigan, behind his "spoils system" statements and declared he wrote the pamphlet as a private citizen and not as president of a nonpartisan organization of Government employes.

"Not a word in the pamphlet has been denied by anyone, Democrat or Republican," he said. "I always have and always will attack the spoils system under any administration.

"My career for 15 years has been in the protection of the civil service merit system, and my right to do this as an individual cannot be taken from me by anyone."

To date, about a half dozen letters of condemnation of Babcock, charging violation of the federation laws which bars the injection of political, racial or religious issues into its deliberations, have been received, and these have come from nearby lodges, it was pointed out. Nearly all of the 16 executive council members from all sections of the country will be on hand for Saturday's meeting.

In spite of the storm around the president, a total membership of 33,604, including 792 new members within the past week, was announced.

After 30 years' service in the division of fish culture, Bureau of Fisheries, F. H. K. Kerns will retire June 30 from the office of superintendent of distribution. Kerns is retiring because of physical disability, as is Miss Lillian W. Hurdle, 64, who has spent 44 years in the same division.

Frank A. Porterfield, who has been in charge of the laborers and a receiving and shipping clerk in the Census Bureau since 1908, retired from service on pension last Saturday.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Suspense over the French situation brought out renewed demand for the pound sterling yesterday which displayed new strength in world foreign exchange centers, while other currencies held steady against the dollar.

Sterling was well supported in New York near its highest since February, $5.01⅞ up 2-16, after touching $5.02. The French franc was unchanged at 6.58⅞ cents and Swiss francs also were unchanged at 32.31 cents. Holland guilders were unaltered from the previous day's quotation of 67.55 cents.

In London the dollar declined to 5.01⅞ to the pound, off 2 cents, while in Paris the dollar closed at the equivalent of 6.583 cents to the franc, as compared with the overnight New York rate of 6.58375 cents to the franc.

Curb Prices Sag In Dull Trading

New York, June 3 (AP).—With only a few outstanding exceptions stocks in the curb market inched into lower ground on very light turnover today. Among the handful of issues moving counter to the general trend and closing substantially higher, were American Hard Rubber, up 3¼ points at 37; Fisk preferred, up 1½ at 49; Humble Oil, up 1 at 58½, and United Light & Power preferred, up 1⅛ at 48⅝.

Fairly sizable setbacks were dealt a number of stocks, including Electric Bond & Share 5 per cent preferred, off 2¼ at 71, and Dictograph Products, off 1⅜ at 21.

Culbertson on Bridge

Shrewd Card Placing.

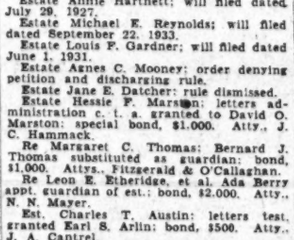
It is just as inexcusable for a declarer to overlook the preceding bidding in planning his plays as it would be for a mariner to throw his chart overboard when entering a dangerous, rock strewn passage. Bridge is difficult enough. There is no need to make it even more difficult by deliberately closing one's eyes to any sort of guide.

In the hand shown below, the declarer made a shrewd inference from one bid of an opponent, and thereby fulfilled a vulnerable game contract.

West, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



The bidding:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 heart | Pass | 1 no trp. | Double |
| Pass | 2 spades | Pass | 3 spades |
| Pass | 4 spades | (final bid) | |

East opened the deuce of hearts, dummy played low, and West's king won. The ace of hearts followed, after which West led a trump. Declarer won with the nine and immediately played a low diamond, finessing against the queen when East followed with a low card. West took the ace and returned another spade. Dummy's ace won and a third round of spades to North's jack cleaned up the trump situation.

Now the declarer took stock. He already had lost two tricks in hearts and one in diamonds. It was vital to avoid the loss of a club trick to the queen (the diamond queen already had been located by the finesse in East's hand). The natural way to finesse the club, since declarer lacked the ten spot, was up to the K-J, hoping the queen lay in West's hand. But the declarer took thought of the bidding! East had responded with one no trump to his partner's opening heart bid. He had done so with no honor in spades, none higher than the jack in hearts, only the queen in diamonds. Why, he must have the queen of clubs also, or he certainly would have passed to the one heart bid!

On this flawless reasoning, declarer decided to take what is known as a "backward finesse." He laid down the jack of clubs from his own hand. He knew that if East held the Q-10, nothing could be done about it, but since the queen was located definitely by his reasoning, he could only hope that West had the ten spot.

His logic was well rewarded. East covered the club jack, dummy's ace won, and then a finesse to the nine spot in his own hand was crowned with success. Later, the established diamond finesse against East's queen clinched the victory.

Indicted Mayor Of Alexandria Denies Fraud

Posts Bond on Charge in Bankruptcy Case; Hints 'Politics.'

Emmett C. Davison, mayor of Alexandria, accused under two Federal grand jury indictments of perjury and fraudulent financial manipulations during bankruptcy proceedings last December, voluntarily posted a $3,000 bond late yesterday and at the same time vigorously denied charges with hints of undercover political efforts to remove him from office.

Although no date has been set for trial, Mayor Davison, nationally known labor leader, said he had no fears as to the outcome. He branded the charges as deliberate attempts to oust him as Alexandria's chief executive because he "tried to shake things up a little."

The first indictment charges Davison with "unlawfully, feloniously, fraudulently, knowingly, wilfully, falsely and corruptly" testifying before Frederick L. Flynn, referee in bankruptcy, last December 6 and 23.

The second accuses him of "fraudulently and feloniously" concealing from Joseph M. Pancoast, trustee for Davison's bankrupt estate, assets of $4,156.06, $600 and $387.61 and having made a false oath.

Petition Withdrawn.

The charges grew out of voluntary bankruptcy proceedings filed by Davison, November 18. The petition, however, was withdrawn April 8, according to Davison, and his creditors were paid in full.

Under the perjury indictment, Davison is accused of testifying before Referee Flynn that he was bankrupt on November 18, "when in truth" he allegedly had $3,756.06 in a savings account at the Citizens National Bank of Alexandria and $786.43 in a checking account at the same institution.

Check Use Cited.

A second count of the perjury indictment charged Davison with false testimony as to the disposition of a $387.61 salary check received from the International Association of Machinists, of which he is general secretary. This money, it was alleged, was received the same day he filed the bankruptcy petition.

The second indictment contained four counts of concealment. In general, the charges accused Davison of concealing from Pancoast, trustee of the estate, "certain large portions of property" consisting of $4,156.06 on deposits at the Citizens National Bank in the names of his wife and daughter and $600 in a checking account.

Mayor Davison, a former director of the Commercial National Bank of Washington, was sued last July for payment of an unpaid note for $5,000. Judgment was returned on November 5 and it was a short time later that he filed his bankruptcy petition.

Mayor Davison, father of six children, sitting in his modest home on the outskirts of Alexandria yesterday, bitterly attacked the charges. He said he had been in ill health for some time.

"But when I get back on my feet," he continued, "I'll battle this thing to the limit. I have never knowingly violated a law in my life—and I'll admit there often have been temptations.

"I have always been fearful of doing something to make me appear small in the eyes of my family and children. I have tried to be a model for my children and I am proud of what I have done."

He intimated that when his case comes to trial the charges will take a "different turn."

"As a public official," Davison said, "I have become a target. I have been trying to shake things up around here and the common people are with me. Everyone knows that since I have held office Alexandria's unemployment problem has become almost nothing."

Borah Believes Test-Proof Pay Bill Is Possible

Senator Favors Minimum Wage in Principle; He Cites State Laws.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, yesterday expressed the opinion that in spite of the Supreme Court decision holding the New York minimum wage law unconstitutional, a bill covering minimum wages could be drawn which would not be vulnerable.

"I do not speak with absolute assurance, but I am strongly of that opinion," Borah said. "I am speaking of State laws."

The Senator said that at any rate he wished to investigate the situation further before making up his mind about changing the Constitution.

"I believe the Constitution belongs to the living and not the dead," he said. "But I want to know that we have exhausted all powers before proposing a change.

Necessity Uncertain.

"It should not be forgotten that when you open the door to change on this subject there are many other subjects which it would be necessary to consider. To put it in a nutshell, I am for the minimum wage principle, but I am by no means certain that a change is necessary."

Asked about the Federal regulation of production conditions, Borah said:

"The National Government cannot possibly deal with the subject of wages without dealing with all the kindred and related subjects, all the conditions of production on the farm and in the factory. I don't see how the National Government can deal with the question of wages without having control of the whole. I believe we should exhaust every possibility of State regulation before putting the Federal Government into this field."

Meanwhile, labor leaders were advocating enactment of the Wagner-Healy bill providing that Government contractors must abide by code conditions. This measure was seen as a partial remedy for the situation brought about by the decisions outlawing the minimum wage and Guffey coal conservation acts.

Bill Approved.

By the Associated Press.

The Walsh-Healey bill, amended to require contractors dealing with the Government to observe a 40-hour work week in their plants, was approved yesterday by the House Judiciary Committee.

Civil Service Extension

the basis of the good old democratic principle of 'equal rights to all and special privilege to none.'

"Personal favoritism exercised by officials in key positions in the civil service is a far greater menace to the merit system than so-called political patronage.

"To eliminate this form of the spoils system, our bill provides that every personnel officer shall file a sworn statement that in the appointment and promotion of civil service employes he shall not be guided by either personal or political favoritism."

A futile move was made in the House several weeks ago to revive a bill to place postmasters under civil service after President Roosevelt at a press conference had indorsed the proposal.

Representative Ramspeck, chairman of the Civil Service Committee, went before the Rules Committee and asked for a special rule to bring the measure on the floor. The committee failed to grant the rule, and Ramspeck charged that "back-home" political committees were blocking the measure because it would deprive them of a vote-getting privilege.

The La Follette-O'Mahoney bill provides that all postmasters be appointed without term under civil service laws. At present only fourth-class postmasters now are so selected. First, second, and third class postmasters are now appointed for four-year terms by the President, confirmed by the Senate, but recommended by members of the House.

Under the new measure any postal employe at an office in the first or second class could be appointed to the postmastership if found qualified for reappointment by the commission. This provision would not become effective until January 1, 1938.

The section dealing with the extension of the civil service laws to Government employes now outside the merit system authorizes the President to place any position or group of positions within the classified civil service by executive order.

An incumbent of a permanent position affected by such an order could acquire civil service status by taking a competitive examination or getting certification from the head of the department or agency that he had served with merit for not less than a year, in which case he would be required to take only a noncompetitive examination.

The Federal personnel council would consist of the heads of the several executive departments, the president of the Civil Service Commission, the director of the Budget Bureau, the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the administrator of the Veterans' Bureau, the governor of the Farm Credit Administration, the chairman of the Social Security Board, the heads of such other independent establishments as the President may designate, and a civil service employe from each of the aforesaid agencies to be named by the department head.

Provision is made for the appointment of an executive secretary who shall be an expert in personnel administration and shall receive a salary of $10,000 a year.

The council is authorized to make a study of all positions in the Federal Government now subject to the classification act of 1923 for the purpose of including them in the act.

One section of the bill enables the States, Territories, dependencies and municipalities and other local governments in the United States to utilize the services of the United States Civil Service Commission in the development of and operation of a merit system in their respective jurisdictions.

All appointments to Government positions under civil service would be for probationary periods of six months under the La Follette-O'Mahoney bill. At the expiration of such periods the service of the appointee would be automatically terminated unless the appropriate appointing authority certified to the Civil Service Commission that he is qualified for a permanent appointment.

The final section provides that all personnel officers shall file with the chairman of the Personnel Council a sworn statement "that in carrying out the duties of their respective offices they will not appoint or promote or recommend for appointment or promotion any civil-service employe on any basis other than that of merit and efficiency, and that in no case will they permit any personal or political favoritism to influence their action."
